CHARLES A. COMISKEY DEAD

CAPONE PRISON TRIP HINGES ON APPEAL TODAY

Al Shares Jail Cell with D'Andrea.

Al Capone spent a comfortable night in the county jail, and the gloom engendered by uncertainty as to his immediate future was lightened by the companionship of his faithful lieutenant, Philip D'Andrea.

D'Andrea was arrested and separated from his master two weeks ago when his fidelity led him to carry a gun into court during Capone's trial on income tax evasion, but a reunion was effected on Saturday. Capone was placed in the same cell where D'Andrea is awaiting the outcome of an contempt of court case.

Whether Capone will stay in the jail for an indefinite period or leave shortly or very soon for Leavenworth penitentiary to begin serving his eleven year sentence for tax evasion is uncertain.

Lawyers Seek a Way Out.

His lawyers, Albert Fink and Michael Ahern, were in conference last night discussing what steps they might take today to delay his trip to prison. During the afternoon they visited their client in the jail, his first visitors of the day.

The cell where Capone received the visitors is a large one, about twenty feet square in the hospital ward on the fourth floor of the jail. Warden Joseph Kenneally said the gang chief and his bodyguard were placed there because it is more sequestered than the regular cell blocks and the possibility of commotion which their presence might cause is correspondingly avoided.

Capone was not deprived of the ordinary comforts of life. There is a shower bath and lavatory in the cell, with cots that afford restful sleep. All the newspapers are brought to him and in addition to the regular jail fare at breakfast and supper, delicacies may be sent in by relatives or friends.

Lunch Sent In by Wife.

Capone's luncheon was sent in by his wife. It comprised kidney stew, a ravioli dish, and bread and butter. D'Andrea also received his noon repast from the outside and he joined Capone in the meal. The privilege of receiving luncheon from friends or relatives is not a special one, the warden explained, but is accorded to all prisoners.

For breakfast there were corn meal mush, a duller [hard] roll, butter, and coffee; for supper, stewed apples, bread, butter, and tea. Assistant Warden Edward Nittell said that Capone greeted him with a cheery "Good morning," and ate his food with relish. During the day the gang chief read the papers, smoked many cigarettes, and talked things over with D'Andrea. The music of a band which is now out to the jail by a church organization on Sundays cheered them in the afternoon.

The gangsters' companions in the cell were four hospital prisoners, one with a broken leg, another with a skin affliction, and two who have undergone operations at the Bridewell.

Capone Ready for Prison Trip.

Should further orders are forthcoming from Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson, who sentenced Capone on October 17, adding a fine of $50,000 and costs of the trial to the penalty, United States Marshal Henry C. W. Hoffman is prepared to take the gangster to prison tonight. Judge Wilkerson denied a supersedeas, which would have stayed Capone's commitment to the penitentiary, and granted an appeal bond. But the judge instructed the marshal to wait until today before executing the writ committing the gangster to prison.

Marshal Laubenheimer said that he would superintend the removal of Capone to Leavenworth and that four prison guards would go along. The gangster and two others would sit in the car with Capone and one guard would be stationed at each end of the car to prevent the entry of any questionable characters. A special coach would be provided for the marshal said.

Two Courses Open to Attorneys.

Capone's attorneys have two courses open before them, it was explained. They may go before Judge Wilkerson and endeavor to convince him that a writ of error automatically acts as a supersedeas. They may go directly before the Circuit Court of Appeals and apply for a supersedeas and an appeal bond. Both are discretionary with the courts, the Appellate courts, irrespective of the writ of error, and the court contends that the supersedeas

5 Killed When Stunt Flyer's Plane Crashes

Alliance, Neb., Oct. 25.—(AP)—Five persons were plunged 500 feet to their death here early tonight when a Ryan monoplane lost a wing and crashed to earth.

Only two persons saw the crash. They were Pilot Art Peterson and Mayor Merle Mallory of Alliance, who was flying with Peterson.

Both declared that Dovall had been stunting.

Dovall, said Peterson, appeared to be finishing a stunt maneuver when the wing of the ship collapsed. Peterson said he thought Dovall was either finishing a loop or a wing over when the ship was crippled. There was no fire. All five men were killed instantly.

Officials at the airport here said that Dovall, who was piloting a plane in the all-Nebraska air tour which visited here today and put on an air show, had borrowed the cabin plane after the four men had urged him to take them up for a few thrills.

Plane Falls on Roof; Pilot Dies.

New York, Oct. 25.—[Special.]—Harry Hall was killed today when his plane went into a power dive from a height of 1,500 feet and crashed on the roof of a house in Jersey City. Hall was one of several pilots engaged to do stunt flying at an air show staged for the benefit of the unemployed at Jersey City airport. A crowd of 8,000 persons saw the aviator take his fatal plunge.

Plane Falls in Ohio; Girl Killed.

Painsville, O., Oct. 25.—(AP)—When their plane crashed on a farm four miles north of here late today, Miss Mary Dorr, 20, East Cleveland, was killed and Raymond L. Manson, Cleveland, was critically injured. Investigators said the plane apparently attempted a forced landing.

Two Die in California Crash.

Calexico, Cal., Oct. 25.—(AP)—Harold Nichols, 39, Long Beach, and Clarence Pritchard, 27, Calexico, were killed today when the biplane they were flying dove to the earth from an altitude of 800 feet.

The airplane landed in an open field south of the municipal airport. Both had been flying for several months in this vicinity, but airport officials said neither was a licensed pilot.

Pritchard was unmarried but Nichols is survived by a widow and two children.

Thomas Calabrese, 47 years old, 5424 West Congress street, was found not guilty of the charge of murdering his neighbor, James J. Hill, 54 years old, 5426 West Congress street, by a jury in the Criminal court early yesterday. Judge Rudolph F. Desort held a special session of court to receive the verdict after the jury had been out since 6 p. m. Saturday. The jury reached a verdict at 2:30 a. m., but did not return it until 9 o'clock.

Calabrese shot and killed Hill last March near their homes. He admitted the killing in his testimony, declaring he followed his victim from the latter's home after his 15 year old daughter, Rose Calabrese, told him Hill had attacked her. Calabrese asserted he fired when he thought Hill was reaching for a revolver.

The daughter supported her father's testimony. The state charged Calabrese fired deliberately. Attorney Miles J. Devine, representing Calabrese, told the jury that the "unwritten law" justified the killing.

One Drowned, 2 Rescued in Lake Tragedy

A drama was enacted on the moonlit waters of the lake within sight of the Carter Harrison crib two miles off the foot of Chicago avenue last night.

It was just after sunset when Arthur Andree, 40 years old, a plumbing contractor of 1112 Holley court, Oak Park, cranked the engine of his home built speed boat, The Skimmer, swept out of the Lincoln park lagoon and set off for an evening spin. Andree could not swim.

With him were Richard Pither, 19 years old, of 719 Ridgeland avenue, Oak Park, and Edwin Slavik, 23 years old, an insurance salesman of 732 South Elmwood avenue, Oak Park. Both were excellent swimmers.

Craft Runs Into Trouble.

The Skimmer was riding the swells about a half mile off the crib when the prow struck a white cap. The engine sputtered and died. The shock had split two seams. The craft began to ship water.

Pither and Slavik quickly donned life belts and assisted Andree to strap one on also. The boat was filling fast when Slavik, a better swimmer than Pither, decided to strike out for the crib. Just then another white cap swamped the craft.

Pither held Andree in his arms while Slavik struck out for help, but incumbered by his belt, he made slow progress. Within twenty minutes he was within hailing distance of the crib and the keeper, Andrew Sloan, heard his calls for help. The cribkeeper searched for the key to the lock which chained his own boat to the crib wharf, but it was lost, so the cribkeeper telephoned the coast guard.

Coast Guard at Scene.

Within ten minutes Acting Capt. Carl Howell and a crew from Central coast guard station were beside the crib. The keeper waved a flare in a wide arc, indicating the spot where the exhausted Slavik was swimming.

"Thank God!" Slavik murmured as they lifted him into the boat.

In the moonlit water a quarter mile away Capt. Howell saw two heads. Andree seemed lifeless as he was lifted into the boat. Pither, who had been supporting him all this time, climbed in.

Blankets and coffee restored Pither and Slavik. A crew of five worked three hours on Andree, but at 9 o'clock he was pronounced dead.

Five minutes later his wife, Marie, mother of his two children, telephoned the coast guard station. "He's gone," Capt. Howell said, and heard a clatter in the telephone, indicating she had collapsed.

FAMOUS OWNER OF WHITE SOX EXPIRES AT 72

End Comes at Eagle River, Wis.

Charles A. Comiskey, president and owner of the Chicago American league baseball club, the White Sox, died at his summer home at Eagle River, Wis., at 1:25 o'clock this morning. He was 72 years old.

Mr. Comiskey died of a heart and kidney complication which had confined him to his home for several weeks. He had been in a coma for twenty-four hours preceding his death and had been in a critical condition for the last month.

His son, Louis Comiskey, treasurer of the White Sox, the only surviving member of his immediate family, was with his father when he died. Dr. Phillip Kreuscher of Chicago, who had been attending Mr. Comiskey, returned to Chicago Saturday after it was apparent that there was no hope of his recovery.

Mr. Comiskey died in his sleep. His son was the only one with him at the time.

His son said the body probably would be brought to Chicago on Wednesday.

Last of Old League Owners.

Mr. Comiskey's death removed from baseball the last survivor of American league club owners who had developed the American league into a major baseball organization and fought through the trying days of the "baseball war" with the National league. Charles Somers of Cleveland, whose financial support made the league expansion possible, still is alive, but has been out of baseball for the last 15 years.

Mr. Comiskey had been the sole owner of the Chicago club from the day of its inception. He was the only man in the history of baseball who had risen from the ranks of the players to ownership of a major league club.

Under his leadership the White Sox developed into the most valuable baseball property in either of the two major leagues. It was estimated that the Comiskey fortune, including his baseball holdings, exceeded $3,000,000.

Retires After 1919 Series.

Comiskey had been retired from active management of his club's affairs since shortly after the world series scandal of 1919. Revelations in September, 1920, that eight of his players were involved in a plot to throw the world series to Cincinnati resulted in the expulsion of the guilty players and wrecked the greatest team Comiskey had ever assembled.

The team had won the pennant in 1917 and beaten the New York Giants of the National league for the world championship, and when Comiskey learned of his players' treachery he insisted that all of them be expelled from organized baseball for all time. After that, although he maintained his deep interest in the club's progress, he seldom appeared at the ball park and left the management of the business affairs to his son, Louis, and other officials of the club.

COMISKEY'S CAREER

Charles A. Comiskey, generally recognized as one of the men who elevated baseball to its present high plane, was born on Chicago's west side, Aug. 15, 1859. His father, John Comiskey, was born in Crosserlough, County Caven, Ireland, and migrated to Chicago, where in the city's most densely populated ward he served 11 years as an alderman.

Comiskey, at the age of 17, accepted

Girl Witness Against Mrs. Judd Missing

Phoenix, Ariz., Oct. 25.—[Special.]—Officers here today became alarmed over the apparent disappearance of Lucille Moore, 21 year old nurse, counted on as a key witness in the trunk murder case against Mrs. Winnie Ruth Judd, after she had been threatened over the telephone.

It was Miss Moore who informed officers that Mrs. Judd became furiously jealous when she saw J. H. Halloran, wealthy lumberman, kiss Miss Hedvig Samuelson and Mrs. Anne Le Roi, her friends, and the women Mrs. Judd is accused of slaying.

"We have become alarmed about Miss Moore," John Brinkerhoff, chief district attorney's investigator, declared. "She has not been seen since Thursday, when she voluntarily appeared for questioning and agreed to come again."

Officers said they had learned that some one called Miss Moore over the telephone after she first talked to them and told her to "keep her mouth shut." They expressed doubt that she had left town voluntarily.

WINNIE JUDD TELLS ALL

Los Angeles, Calif., Oct. 25.—[Special.]—Mrs. Winnie Ruth Judd has made a detailed, signed confession of how she murdered Miss Hedvig Samuelson and Mrs. Anne Le Roi in Phoenix, Ariz., Oct. 17, dismembered one of the bodies and then shipped them here in two trunks and a suitcase, it was learned today.

She also has given a detailed account of her movements in Los Angeles during the five days and nights she was sought after attempting to claim the trunks.

These new admissions of Mrs. Judd are contained in a letter which she wrote and signed and turned over to her husband, Dr. W. C. Judd, Santa Monica, who made it public. They supplement those in a letter she previously addressed to her husband and later tore up only to have it discovered in a department store restroom and pieced together by the police.

Ask Extradition Today.

County Prosecutor Lloyd Andrews of Phoenix, in commenting on the two letters, declared he believed he now had sufficient evidence to convict Mrs. Judd of the murders. He said that Gov. James Rolph of California would be asked to honor extradition papers tomorrow.

In her latest version of the murders Mrs. Judd sticks to her self-defense plea, repeats that the quarrel which ended in death for two of her friends was over a woman she mentions as "Miss X," that she slew the women and disposed of their bodies without the aid of an accomplice and then calmly worked the next day as if nothing had occurred and concealed the fact that she had been wounded in the hand.

Without Accomplice, She Says.

"It has been charged that I had an accomplice, either before, during or after the actual tragedy," Mrs. Judd wrote. "This is not true. I alone shot and killed both these women, who were once my friends. I did it in self-defense, and for no other reason.

"I alone disposed of the bodies. I had no help of any kind from any one.

Then Mrs. Judd expresses the fear that she may have given cause for doubting her self defense plea by attempting to conceal her crime.

"In my dazed fright," she wrote, "it seemed to me the only thing to do was to hide—hide everything and myself. I was mistaken, but that is what I did."

Tells How Quarrel Began.

Mrs. Judd wrote that she spent the night preceding the murders with Miss Samuelson and Mrs. Le Roi in their apartment and that the quarrel started the next morning.

At this point she brings in the name of J. H. Halloran, wealthy Phoenix

BULLETIN.

New York, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Premier Laval of France and his daughter, Josee, arrived at Pennsylvania station on a special train from Washington at 6:05 a. m., eastern standard time, today.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 25.—[Special.]—Commitments of a far reaching character—one of them opening the way to reduction, if not cancellation, of the eleven billions of war debts owed the United States—were made by President Hoover in the historic conversations with Premier Laval of France which were concluded today.

This was learned tonight following the issuance by the White House of the joint statement in which Mr. Hoover and M. Laval set forth the results of their conferences.

The statement, couched in general, frequently vague terms, is freighted with hidden meanings which only the experts in diplomatic esoterica are competent to read between the lines.

Interpretation by Expert.

Resort to such an expert who is conversant with the understandings reached by Mr. Hoover and M. Laval and knows what the veiled statements in the communique are hinting at, produces this interpretation and résumé:

1. Abandoning the policies of his predecessors and his own policy hitherto, President Hoover agrees to the linking of the allied war debts with German reparations and in the event of a reduction of reparations agrees to recommend to congress the reopening of the settlements of war debts owed the United States with a view to their eventual reduction, if not cancellation.

2. The President will make no move for an extension of the Hoover moratorium, which expires June 30, next.

3. The initiative for extension of the moratorium and revision of reparations is to be taken by Germany, which presumably will ask at an early date for the appointment of the commission of experts provided by the Young plan to examine the capacity of Germany to pay the reparations fixed by the Young committee. To this procedure M. Laval agreed.

Divorces Armaments and Debts.

4. The President abandons his project to procure a reduction of armaments as a condition precedent to reduction of war debts and accepts the French thesis that armaments can be reduced only to the extent that nations are assured of security from attack.

5. France and the United States will cooperate to maintain the gold standard and to assist other nations in maintaining or returning to that standard of exchange.

6. The raid by French banks on the gold reserve of the United States in the last six weeks has been halted by M. Laval, who also agreed that in the future there should be no withdrawals of gold from this country except after consultation between the bank of France and the Federal Reserve bank of New York.

Denies Polish Corridor Rumor.

In addition to the communique the White House issued a statement denying a published report that Mr. Hoover had proposed to M. Laval a revision of the Polish corridor provisions of the Versailles treaty.

"The President has made no suggestions of any such character," said the statement.

M. Laval, accompanied by two of his advisers and by Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson, whose guest he had been over night, reached the White House at 10:30 a. m. and went into conference with the President on the phraseology of the communique.

The Frenchman examined and weighed each phrase with the utmost care. In one instance more than 30 minutes were consumed in debate on the meaning of a single word in English and its counterpart in French. All to the accompaniment of animated gesturing on the part of the President's Gallic guests.

Gives Final Approval.

At 1:15 p. m. Secretary Stimson left the White House saying the statement was completed. M. Laval lingered till 2 in further talk with Mr. Hoover and the final leave taking.

Returning to the Edge residence two hours later from the luncheon given in his honor by Secretary of Commerce Robert P. Lamont, the premier found the typed text of the communique in final form and after again giving it a careful examination returned it to the President by Ogden L. Mills, undersecretary of the treasury, who had acted as interpreter for Mr. Hoover.

An hour later it was made public. The premier was the guest of honor at a dinner given by Paul Claudel, the French ambassador, and Mme. Claudel, after which he had another talk with Senator William E. Borah, chairman of the senate committee on foreign relations.

Each one confessed afterward he had failed to convert the other to his views on the European situation. Following the dinner M. Laval accompanied by his daughter and his official party boarded a train for New York, whence they will sail for France on Tuesday.

Premier Jubilant at Success.

The premier did not conceal his satisfaction about the outcome of his negotiations with Mr. Hoover. He obtained virtually everything that he came over to get. His principal object was to head off action by Mr. Hoover to extend the Hoover moratorium or to initiate a revision of German reparations which would destroy the Young plan or both.

In the early part of September the French government became greatly concerned over the pressure being exerted on Mr. Hoover by the New York international bankers to take steps for extension of the moratorium. The French policy is to compel Germany, if it is to obtain further suspension of reparations payments, to ask for a moratorium under the terms of the Young plan, the French being insistent that the Young plan structure be preserved.

But Mr. Hoover had initiated the present moratorium after taking the British into his confidence but without consulting France. The French feared he might do the same thing again. Moreover, they regarded Mr. Hoover as definitely anti-French and were concerned at the growth of anti-French feeling in America and anti-American feeling in France. M. Laval decided to come over and see if he could not mend matters.

Makes Personal Conquest.

He succeeded in establishing cordial personal relations with the President and other American officials. His simplicity and directness made a decided hit with all who came in contact with him. And he goes away with the assurance given by the President that in the future he will take no action in matters of common concern to both countries without prior consultation of France—in other words, that he will not again ignore France as he did when he proposed his moratorium last June.

On the specific matter of vital interest to the French M. Laval goes away with the President's assurance in writing. For the joint communique states that as to revision of reparations and war debts the initiative shall be taken "by the European powers principally concerned within the framework of the agreements existing prior to July 1, 1931"—in other words, prior to the Hoover moratorium, which means the Young plan. Thus Mr. Hoover waives the right to initiate further action pertaining to an extension of the moratorium or outright revision of reparations. It will be up to Germany to invoke the provisions of leniency in the Young plan.

Limitation with Reservation.

It was at the insistence of M. Laval that there was included a phrase limiting such modification of reparations to "the period of business depression."

It is stated on the authority of one of the American framers of the communique, however, that there was a realization on both sides of the White House negotiations that any temporary reduction of German reparations was likely to become permanent.

But whether the reduction of reparations be temporary or permanent President Hoover promised M. Laval a reopening of the war debt settlements or at least a recommendation to congress therefor. The understanding is that Germany will ask, possibly at once, for the appointment of the commission provided by the Young plan to reëxamine the capacity of Germany to pay. If this procedure results in a reduction of reparations the creditors of Germany will then appeal to the United States for a reduction of the war debts on the ground that the diminution of reparations payments from Germany impairs their capacity to pay their debts to America. Thereupon Mr. Hoover will ask congress to reopen the debt settlements with a view to scaling down the annuities due the United States.

May Ask Complete Cancellation.

Furthermore it was learned authoritatively that if German reparations should be canceled entirely, and on that basis the debtors of the United States should seek complete repudiation of their debts, complete cancellation would be the proposition put up to congress by the administration.

In the White House talks Mr. Hoover always came back to his contention that the relief of Germany is the key to the relief of the world depression. He reminded M. Laval again and again that France in agreeing to the moratorium had agreed that Germany must have relief for the period of the depression. M. Laval was willing to concede that much but he kept insisting that whatever relief Germany receives shall be through the medium of the Young plan.

M. Laval appeared at first to be unconvinced that if German reparations should be reduced the United States would reduce the war debts. Mr. Hoover assured him repeatedly that if the burden borne by Germany is lifted by its creditors they will receive commensurate relief from the United States.

Reverses American Policy.

This is the most radical change of policy by the President since he abandoned the Coolidge policy on cruisers and accepted the British plan. Presidents Harding and Coolidge and Mr. Hoover until this time steadfastly refused to allow the linking of war debts and reparations. The creditors of Germany were to be required to pay the United States even if Germany were not to pay them.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 25.—(Special.)—Following is the text of the joint statement issued today by President Hoover and Premier Laval:

"The traditional friendship between the United States and France, the absence of all controversy between our two governments, a record of many events in collaboration toward peace of the world, embracing among its recent phases the adoption of the Kellogg-Briand pact, render it possible and opportune for the representatives of our governments to explore every aspect of the many problems in which we are mutually interested.

"Indeed, the duty of statesmen is not to overlook any means of practical coöperation for the common good. This is particularly true at a time when the world looks for leadership in relief from a depression which reaches into countless homes in every land. Relations of mutual confidence between governments have the most important bearing upon speeding the recovery which we seek. We have engaged upon that mission with entire frankness. We have made real progress.

"We canvassed the economic situation in the world, the trends in international relations bearing upon it; the problems of the forthcoming conference for limitation and reduction of armaments; the effect of the depression on payments under inter-governmental debts; the stabilization of international exchanges and other financial and economic subjects.

"An informal and cordial discussion has served to outline with greater precision the nature of the problems. It has not been the purpose of either of us to engage in commitments binding our governments, but rather, through development of fact, to enable each country to act more effectively in its own field.

"It is our joint purpose that the conference for limitation of armaments will not fail to take advantage of the great opportunity which presents itself and that it will be capable of meeting what is in reality its true mission, that is, the organization on a firm foundation of permanent peace.

"In so far as intergovernmental obligations are concerned, we recognize that prior to the expiration of the Hoover year of postponement, some agreement regarding them may be necessary covering the period of business depression, as to the terms and conditions of which the two governments make all reservations. The initiative in this matter should be taken at an early date by the European powers principally concerned within the framework of the agreements existing prior to July 1, 1931.

"Our especial emphasis has been upon the more important means through which the efforts of our governments could be exerted toward restoration of economic stability and confidence. Particularly we are convinced of the importance of monetary stability as an essential factor in the restoration of normal economic life in the world in which the maintenance of the gold standard in France and the United States will serve as a major influence.

"It is our intent to continue to study methods for the maintenance of stability in international exchanges.

"While in the short time at our disposal it has not been possible to formulate definite programs, we find that we view the nature of these financial and economic problems in the same light and that this understanding on our part should serve to pave the way for helpful action by our respective governments."

NAVY GRID STAR JOSEE'S ESCORT AT ANNAPOLIS

Premier's Daughter Honor Guest at Academy.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 25.—(AP)—Josee tête-à-tête between Josee and a handsome navy football star today redeemed the disappointment that made her weep yesterday at the White House.

Lee Bryan, regimental commander of the Navy academy corps, was the escort of the premier's daughter at an inspection trip through the grounds of Annapolis.

Rides to Annapolis.

Bryan distinguished himself yesterday in Navy's victory over Princeton. Josee had looked forward keenly to seeing the game and was bitterly disappointed when she found it impossible. The necessity of making news and pictures at the White House kept her from going to Princeton.

But today she motored over the winding roads to Annapolis for a visit to the academy before making her farewells to the capital. She was accompanied by her friends from Paris, Mlle. Jacqueline Guimier and the daughter of Robert T. Pell of the American embassy in Paris.

Cdr. S. D. Cooke, the commandant, and his wife received the girls and took them to famous old Bancroft hall, the midshipmen's home. There Josee and seven other midshipmen were presented. After a stroll about the academy grounds all went to tea together in the commandant's quarters.

10 Midshipmen See Her.

When Capt. Cooke escorted Josee to the big graystone Bancroft hall he met a simultaneous salute by the midshipmen lined up in V formation just inside the door. Bryan walked beside Josee. They went through the big rotunda to the mess hall, then through the memorial hall, and back.

In the course of her short visit the gay and vivid Josee saw about 150 of the midshipmen—for word had spread and the midshipmen obviously wanted to see her.

Mrs. Josee made the 42 mile trip in a fraction less than 40 minutes. Capt. H. Miller was one of the motorcycle officers escorting the car. As the limousine sped into Cottage City, another automobile cut across in front to make a left turn. Miller tried to break, the motorcycle skidded out, throwing him. Josee stopped out and ran over to Miller, but he was already on his feet and apologized for having delayed the party.

Earlier in the day Mlle. Laval went to Fort Myer, the army post across the Potomac river from Washington, with Mlle. and Mrs. George F. Patnam, and watched a private horse show for officers and their wives. Miss Elizabeth Rogers, a niece of Secretary Henry L. Stimson and Mrs. Stimson, was with them. When the riding class was over Josee awarded a silver cup to the winner, Mrs. Frank Andrews.

Dines at French Embassy.

Josee had to hurry back from Annapolis to prepare for a formal dinner party in the embassy. On both sides of her were members of her father's party, and all the other guests were thoroughly grownup official personages. The youngest besides Mlle. Laval was Representative Andrews of Massachusetts.

QUEEN OF COOK COUNTY FAIR IS SELECTED

Madeline La Salle (right) of 3349 West Harrison street was chosen last night to preside over the Cook county fair at the Chicago stadium. Bernice Argast (left) of 4119 North Kenneth avenue was second, and Kathryn Rasmus of 8246 Green street third in competition for the honors.

Delivery of the last ten Hornet powered Boeing mail planes, which carry 1,800 pounds of mail at a cruising speed of 115 miles per hour, has been made to National Air Transport division of United Air lines, operating from Chicago to New York and to Dallas. These supplant Falcon and Douglas planes with water cooled motors.

The department of commerce announces the opening of a commercial airport six miles north of Peoria with paved highway east and south and railroad west. Runways are, northeast-southwest, 3,700 by 200 feet; northwest-southeast, 3,700 by 200 feet. Portions of field to the north, east, and south outside of the runways are unfit for landing. Hangar, 100x225 feet, and servicing.

Explosion Wrecks Kitchen of Roosevelt Road Cafe

A terrific explosion of undetermined origin, followed by fire, wrecked the second story of Baron's restaurant at 714 West Roosevelt road early this morning. The damage was estimated at $5,000, chiefly to the banquet room in which a short time before the Socialist party of Chicago had given a banquet. Samuel Abel, 29 South St. Louis avenue, one of the owners of the café, and two employés were just outside at the time of the blast and were shaken up. The fire attorney began an investigation to determine the cause of the explosion.

FRANCE PLEASED BY LAVAL'S TALK WITH PRESIDENT

Sees Way Paved for Other Agreements.

PARIS, Oct. 26.—[Monday.]—(AP)—Stephane Lauzanne, French political writer, called the outcome of the Hoover-Laval conversations a victory for common sense, "of which France happens to be the incarnation," in commenting in the newspaper Matin today on the joint statement issued at Washington.

"We induced America to conform her attitude to ours on at least one capital point," he said. "It is a great thing to succeed on one point. It permits hope for success on others some day."

Le Journal said Premier Laval upheld all France's positions and that the mutual understanding between the premier and President Hoover would have lasting results. The press generally gave the statement a favorable reception for the reasons stated in Le Journal, but the statement arrived too late for extended comment.

French Feel Better.

[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, Oct. 25.—Everything that could be reasonably hoped from Premier Laval's brief visit to Washington has, in French opinion, been accomplished. What was sought was the establishment of mutual respect by each country for the other's point of view, and that, it is felt, has been achieved. There was also sought an outline that should trace the possibilities of collaboration, and that has been secured.

The official statement issued from the White House is sufficiently precise on some of the most important points to give assurance here, even to that section of French opinion which has always been excessively sensitive and suspicious.

By far the most gratifying feature of the statement from the French viewpoint is that it justifies expectation for the future that there will be an avoidance of such misunderstandings as occurred last July when the Hoover moratorium was proposed. At that time it was felt here very strongly that Washington had shown misconception of and disregard for that deeprooted French sentiment for the preservation of legal form, which augured ill for any possibility of cooperation. The conversations at the White House, it is judged here, have changed that situation.

Brunette Wins

Madeline La Salle, 18 years old, 3349 West Harrison street, was chosen Miss Cook County last night at the closing exhibition of the Cook County fair in the Chicago Stadium. She is a brunette, and the contest was the first in which she has competed.

Second place went to Miss Bernice Argast, 19 years old, 4119 North Kenneth avenue, and third to Miss Kathryn Rasmus, 17 years old, 8246 South Green street. More than three hundred entered the competition, and from these twenty-five were chosen for the finals.

A. C. Thompson, manager of the horse show at the fair, said that $50,000 in prizes had been paid to owners of live stock and poultry exhibited at the fair. He said that the fair would be reimbursed for 55 per cent of the prizes by the Illinois department of agriculture under the state law. About 350,000 persons attended during the week.

POLES PROTEST BORAH'S ATTACK ON CORRIDOR

WARSAW, Poland, Oct. 25.—(AP)—Twenty-four Polish political, scientific, and literary organizations today cabled to Secretary of State Stimson a protest against Senator William E. Borah's statement concerning the Polish corridor.

His sentiments were criticized as "offending the feelings of justice."

Prussians Cheer Senator.

BERLIN, Oct. 25. — (AP) — United States Senator William E. Borah's name was cheered vigorously today at a patriotic gathering of east and west Prussians commemorating the 700th anniversary of the conquering of the land between the Vistula and Memel rivers by Teutonic knights.

REVOLT FLARES ANEW IN CYPRUS; TROOPS STONED

NICOSIA, Island of Cyprus, Oct. 25.—(AP)—Despite the presence of British military, naval, and air reinforcements and the arrest of a number of ringleaders, the island of Cyprus still was seething with revolt tonight and fresh outbreaks occurred during the day.

A crowd of 6,000 persons attending the funeral of a youth killed in the first day's rioting last week attacked police here in the capital, hurling stones and shouting maledictions against their British rulers.

Bluejackets from the cruiser London, which arrived yesterday, were fired on at Larnaca by mobs agitating for union with Greece, and the sailors retaliated with six shots, but inflicted no known fatalities. Several police and rioters were injured in other encounters there.

Stone British Troops.

Greek manifestants assembled in large numbers in Larnaca last night and attacked British troops with stones, crying their defiance. The soldiers opened fire and forced the mob to disperse. The number of casualties was not known. A fresh movement started in Morphou on the north coast, and lorries bearing troops were held up.

The second death from the revolution occurred in Limasol yesterday when police fired on a group which exhibited violence occasioned by the arrest of Greek Orthodox Bishop Kitium of Larnaca and six others who were charged with leadership in the revolt. Four were wounded.

Four More Planes Arrive.

Responding to an urgent request from Gov. Ronald Storrs, four bombing airplanes arrived here today from Egypt, supplementing seven already on the scene, and will be used to combat recalcitrant Cypriotes in the event they begin guerrilla warfare from the hills. Eight planes circled over Nicosia, Famagusta, Larnaca, Limasol and Paphos in a show of force.

THESE BANDITS NOT THOROUGH AND MISS $100

Three bandits might have obtained $100 additional loot last night had they not been disgusted over 55 cents. The trio invaded the Walgreen drug store at 5243 Woodlawn avenue and stole $296 in receipts from the manager, John Marszaluk, 4350 South Whipple street.

Next they confronted two couples at the soda counter. They searched one of the youths. All he had was 55 cents. The robbers cast a look of disgust at him and his companion. "No use searching the other guy; they're punks," observed the leader. They left. The second youth breathed a sigh of relief and fished out a roll amounting to $100.

JUGO-SLAVIA AND BULGARIA CLASH ON BANDIT RAIDS

VIENNA, Oct. 25.—(AP)—A dispatch from Sofia said the Jugo-Slav minister there delivered a note to Foreign Minister Mouchanoff of Bulgaria today protesting against alleged incursions of Bulgarian bandits into Jugo-Slavia. Jugo-Slavia, the note said, felt it was necessary to put the matter in the hands of the league of nations.

Foreign Minister Mouchanoff said he had replied to Jugo-Slavia with the assertion that the marauders had organized on Jugo-Slavia territory, as Bulgarian soldiers on the frontier had strict orders to prevent Bulgarians from crossing the frontier. These instructions, he said, would be made even more emphatic.

THIRD VICTIM OF ROOMING HOUSE FLAMES IS DEAD

Fire set by a jealous suitor on last Thursday morning which destroyed a rooming house at 160 West Oak street, and resulted in the deaths of a man and a child at the time, claimed a third victim this morning when Gideon Prins, 38 years old, died in Henrotin hospital of his burns. The earlier victims were Doris Boehm, 5 years old, daughter of Mrs. Mary Arnold Boehm, and Aubrey Lay, favorite suitor of Mrs. Boehm. Henry Thompson, 1943 Letuhen street, Lay's rival, confessed that he hired two boys to set the fire in revenge on Lay and Mrs. Boehm.

A NOBLE SCION IS SAVED FROM MARTS OF TRADE

Baron Will Be Happy to Hear About This.

For the Baron Giorgio Mario Suriani time and conditions have changed, although he doesn't know it.

About ten years ago the baron, a veteran of the world war with a chestful of medals, came to the United States. He brought money with him and while it lasted he lived well. Those whose names were in the social registers accepted him. His friends recall that he was once engaged to an heiress in the east, but don't remember exactly who she was.

Early in 1928 the baron decided, since money was growing a little short, to make a sacrifice. He offered his hand and his proud old 16th century Neapolitan title to any eligible lady with a dowry of $100,000.

A Romance Rises and Falls.

There were no takers and soon afterward Baron Suriani became engaged to Miss Winifred Barry, an actress, in New York. They were to be married in the Little Church Around the Corner on May 3. But as such things sometimes happen, only the bridegroom appeared for the wedding. The prospective bride stayed at home and issued a statement for the press.

"I did not know," said she, "that he had offered his title for sale. And I learned today, after I got over the shock of reading about that in the papers, that he had been engaged to another woman for a year. She can have him. I don't want him."

In December of the same year the baron came to Chicago, announced he had no further idea of selling the proud old title and went to work as a haberdashery salesman in a State street store.

"I hope to rise," he said, "to a position of responsibility in the business world."

Nearly three years have passed and now the baron is again in print. In yesterday's TRIBUNE appeared a want ad:

"Will pay reward for information on whereabouts of Baron Giorgio Mario Suriani, Italian nobleman, reported in Chicago about three weeks ago. Wanted in connection with estate matter. Leslie G. Agasim, 134 North La Salle street."

Lawyer Agasim Explains.

Mr. Agasim, an attorney, explained yesterday that Baron Suriani is the heir to an estate of 5,000,000 lira, or $250,000.

"It was left him by the will of his uncle, Giacinto D'Neis, noted continental orchestra leader, with whom he was a favorite," said the attorney. "D'Neis disappeared in Petrograd at the time of the Russian revolution and was not heard from until a few months ago. He arrived in Naples shortly before his death. I have been commissioned by the family to find the baron."

Investigation disclosed that Baron Suriani, his wife—apparently his wedding was unheralded—and a small child were at the Ehstgate hotel in May and that they moved later to 20 East Delaware place. The baron left that address in July and was at the Cass hotel, 640 North Wabash avenue, until a few weeks ago. He left with the expressed intention of coming back soon.

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 25.—(AP)—Ruth Nichols, Rye, N. Y., aviatrix who left Oakland, Cal., last night on a projected nonstop flight to New York landed at Bowman field here at 9:40 a. m., central standard time, today. Officials at the airport said she evidently had lost her way.

Although some distance from the projected end of her flight, the aviatrix apparently had achieved a new distance record for women. Airport officials said they were positive she had flown more than 2,000 miles, although the sealed instruments on the plane had not been examined. The air mileage from Oakland to Louisville is approximately 2,000 miles in a direct line.

The present women's distance record of 1,810 miles is held by Maryse Bastie, French woman, who flew from Paris across southern Europe into Russia to establish her record.

The famous society flyer circled her Lockheed-Vega monoplane over Louisville almost an hour before landing. She planned to refuel here and proceed to New York in the morning.

AUTOIST DIES IN FIST FIGHT OVER PARKING

A dispute between two motorists over a parking space in a downtown street last night led to a fist fight and the death of one of them as his wife looked on. The fatal fight occurred in State street, just south of Washington street.

The victim was Edward L. Berger, 30 years old, 7356 North Damen avenue, a salesman, father of two small girls. The other motorist was Max Sclar, 28 years old, of 2109 South Harding avenue, an unemployed salesman.

A parking space vacated by an unidentified driver precipitated the trouble. Berger and his wife, Eva, waited for the motorist to depart, and were about to move into his place when Sclar, accompanied by Miss Josephine Kraft, 27 years old, 4423 Sheridan road, tried to turn his car into the space. After a wordy interchange, both men jumped from their cars and exchanged blows. Berger collapsed. Sclar placed him in his car and took him to the Iroquois Memorial hospital.

At the hospital Berger was pronounced dead. A coroner's physician said a preliminary examination failed to disclose any fractures or other fatal injuries, and said it was possible Berger's heart failed from excitement.

KILLED BY TRAIN ON SOUTH SIDE.

POLICE SURPRISE 5 BURGLARS AT WORK ON VAULT

Five armed men, interrupted last night as they were drilling their way into a safety deposit vault in the real estate office of Rubin Brothers at 3804 South Kedzie avenue, fired on a police squad and fled.

The police, led by Sergts. Charles Beatty and John Danforth, were sent to the scene when neighbors reported the burglary. Beatty and Danforth went to the rear and, apparently seen by one of the men acting as a sentinel, were the first fired on.

In the basement from which the burglars ran the police found explosives, drills, and dynamite caps. They were boring into the vault which was above them through the floor.

THREE JAPANESE KILLED; TOKIO ACCUSES CHINA

Slayings Increase Anger in Manchurian Row.

BY JOHN POWELL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MUKDEN, Manchuria, Oct. 25.—An official announcement from the headquarters of Gen. Shigeru Honjo, commander in chief of Japanese military forces in Manchuria, this afternoon stated that two Japanese policemen were shot and killed in the area of Kungchuling near the South Manchurian railway tracks, and also that Sergt. Maj. Shidaka of the 77th Japanese infantry was slain while patrolling the district adjacent to the railway within the walled city of Mukden.

The killings are attributed to Chinese secret service men, supposedly sent to Mukden with orders from Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang, Manchurian war lord.

Calls Attention to League.

The official spokesman at Gen. Honjo's headquarters declared that if the delegates of the league of nations had any realization of the dangerous activities of the Chinese refugee soldiers and secret service agents operating on both sides of the railway tracks, they would gain a better appreciation of Japan's position and understand the high necessity of Japanese troops remaining in the outlying areas in order to preserve peace and order against Chinese anarchy."

It was announced that Chinese refugee troops are continuing to massacre Koreans as well as Chinese civilians in the vicinity of Molin.

Japan Sends More Troops.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Oct. 26.—[Monday.]—Japan today sent additional troops into Chinese territory in Manchuria to guard the Taonan-Chengchiatun-Ssupingkai railway, which is reported to have been attacked by Chinese bandits. The railway, which is under Chinese control, was built with $25,000,000 loaned by the Japanese owned South Manchurian railroad.

According to reports received from Gen. Shigeru Honjo, commander-in-chief of the Japanese military forces in Manchuria, bandits, masquerading as Chinese troops, have destroyed considerable railway property along the Taonan line. The bandits, he said, attacked trains and stations, and Chinese employés were forced to flee.

Japan to Reveal Stand.

The government has announced that it will issue a statement at 5 p. m., outlining its stand on the Manchurian crisis.

The statement, it is declared, emphasizes that the league of nations council's resolution calling upon Japan to withdraw her troops from occupied Manchurian territory by Nov. 16 does not bind Japan in any way.

The statement will further say that the first military action in Manchuria was confined to self-defense measures and was absolutely not based on territorial designs. It will state that the japs, instead of continuing conversations between Kenkichi Yoshizawa, Japanese delegate, Aristide Briand, chairman of the council, and Sir Eric Drummond, secretary of the league, rejected a request for a delay and put the resolution to a vote. This action, Japan considers as regrettable, as it is Tokio's belief that an understanding could have been reached.

Japan will also state that she is willing to withdraw her troops as soon as China guarantees to safeguard the lives and property of the Japanese, but that it is entirely impossible to pledge a date for the evacuation at this time.

League Faces Acid Test.

GENEVA, Oct. 25.—(AP)—The league of nation's greatest task in arbitrating the Sino-Japanese conflict still lies in the future and the test will come on Nov. 16, international opinion agreed tonight in reviewing the events of the last seven days.

Operating solely under article XI. of the league covenant, the council was adjudged to have done its duty to date by calling for the evacuation of Japanese troops from nontreaty areas in Manchuria by its next meeting. But the resolution adopted last night has only moral force, for Japan's vote destroyed its unanimity and its legal value.

Friends of the league said, however, the council debate and 13 to 1 vote constituted a "striking moral condemnation of Japan."

43 CITY RELIEF CAMPAIGNS NOW ON OR TO START

New York, Oct. 25.—[Special.]—Forty-three organized unemployment relief campaigns in cities throughout the country were under way or in preparation today, when the President's organization on unemployment relief entered upon the second week of its emergency welfare and relief fund drive under the direction of Walter S. Gifford. Nineteen of the campaigns were continued from last week. Twenty-four new drives will be in full swing by Thursday. The combined monetary goal of the 43 cities is $7,706,000. Last year they raised $6,660,000. Seventeen cities with community chests have already completed their campaigns for emergency relief and welfare funds. They have raised a total of $3,691,792, exceeding their aggregate goals of $3,552,381 by $139,411.

Ottawa Has Spectacular Fire; Damage $75,000

Ottawa, Ill., Oct. 25.—[Special.]—Damages estimated at from $75,000 to $100,000 was caused tonight by a spectacular fire which destroyed the plant of the Crescent Silica Sand company, west of Ottawa. The origin of the fire, which was seen for twenty-five miles, was not determined.

Strangles to Death as He Eats Steak in Cafe

A large piece of steak which lodged in his throat choked an unidentified man to death last night. The man, about 60 years old, was sitting at the counter in the restaurant at 2407 Lincoln avenue eating the steak. He collapsed suddenly, gagging. Dr. Robert M. Crowe, 2374 Lincoln avenue, was called, and ordered the diner taken to the Augustana hospital.

MICHIGAN ACTING TO BARE HUSHED UP DRY SHOOTING

Victim Taken Secretly to Hospital.

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 31.—[Special.]—An attempt to determine the authority of a state in a case when one of its citizens has been shot by federal agents and the shooting hushed up by federal officials will be made this week.

Frank Ramsay, 28, Wyandotte, was shot near the heart Sept. 20, when two United States customs border patrol agents found him assisting a beer runner in unloading eighteen cases near Grosse Isle. After the shooting one of the agents took Ramsay by car past at least half a dozen hospitals to the Marine hospital twenty miles away, where government surgeons treated him.

No report of the shooting was made to state authorities as is required by law, and the surgeon failed to report his treatment of a gunshot patient, in violation of the Michigan criminal code.

Leaks Out Month Later.

The case was well hushed up and did not become known until a month later, Oct. 21, when United States Representative Robert H. Clancy, Detroit, accused Collector of Customs Heinrich A. Pickert and his assistant, Walter S. Petty, with deliberate covering up the willful shooting of an innocent citizen.

Col. Pickert replied unofficially that the wounding of Ramsay was accidental, that the agents fired to scare him, and the bullet richocheted.

Clancy retorted with the charge "That is the usual cock and bull story put out by Pickert and his kind in general. It's the same yarn they usually spin when some one gets shot as the result of their utter disregard for human life.

Charges Victim Intimidated.

"Pickert clearly violated a federal law when his victim was taken clear across town to a government hospital. The Marine hospital is supposed to treat only marines and sailors or veterans of these services. How will he explain his breaking of this law?

"Ramsay was told, I am informed, that if he did not agree to the customs' agent's story of how the shooting occurred he'd be given a long prison sentence. He was taken to the Marine hospital in a desperate effort to protect the tarnished reputations of the highest customs officials in the state and the hospital superintendent knew of the guilt of the agents because he kept no official records of the case in his regular files.

"The audacity of these officials can be measured by the fact they do not hesitate to threaten a member of congress. I have been told that because of my attacks on the prohibition and customs services that I am in danger of being beaten up by the desperadoes of the services or that I might even be assassinated."

Col. Pickert replied, "I am not recognizing any statements of the sort Mr. Clancy is making."

He did, however, admit to newspaper men that Clancy's charges that Ramsay had been hastened secretly to a hospital were true and that he had done it because Ramsay was of a good family and wants no publicity.

When Ramsay finally was located by Assistant County Prosecutor George S. Fitzgerald, representing Prosecutor Harry S. Toy, he scoffed at this and said, "I didn't ask him to keep it away from the papers. I'm not afraid of publicity."

To the charge of Fitzgerald that no report of the shooting was made, Pickert replied: "A report was made to Washington within 24 hours, as required by regulations."

Seymour Lowman, assistant of the treasury, Amos W. W. Woodcock, director of prohibition, and members of the department of justice said no report from Pickert's office had been received, according to Washington dispatches.

"We have received no cooperation from the customs officers," Fitzgerald said. "Upon my request that Col. Pickert surrender the two border patrolmen to us for questioning, Mr. Pickert replied that he would have to have authority from Washington before giving me the names.

"If his office does not give us the information we desire tomorrow, we shall make direct demand upon customs officials in Washington. If the federal government continues to ignore the request of the state, we shall find the agents ourselves.

"We are going to find them if we have to send our own boats out into the river and seize every customs agent to have him stand before Ramsay for identification. We do not want any controversy with the federal government unless it is absolutely necessary. If the customs officers were justified, we will not prosecute, but the United States government should give us the courtesy of coöperation and should have abided by the state criminal code and informed us of the shooting."

Fitzgerald announced Saturday that as soon as Ramsay identifies the federal surgeon who treated him, charges will be filed against the surgeon for failure to report a gunshot case. If felonious intent to wound is proved on the border patrolmen, they, too, will be tried.

SLAYERS OF WHALE THAT WON SEATTLE FRIENDS TO BE TRIED

Portland, Ore., Oct. 25.—(AP)—The slayers of Ethelbert, the playful whale admired by Seattle's thousands, are under arrest, charged with "grossly disturbing the public peace and health and outraging public decency and morals."

Indignation ran high against Edward O. Lessard, self-styled "whaler of the old school," and his son, Joseph Lessard, who have admitted sinking harpoons into Ethelbert's sleek sides.

The complaint against the pair was sworn out by A. L. Cross, state officer for the Oregon Humane society. Hearing is set for tomorrow. If convicted, the Lessards face one to six months in jail or fines.

Even after his demise, it has not been fully explained how the sportive mammal happened to arrive in Columbia slough here, 114 miles inland in fresh water.

The elder Lessard, when pressed for his reason for killing Ethelbert, said he had hunted whales "for scientific reasons."

COAT, VEST AND PANTS REUNITE; AND OWNER, TOO

But Linoleum Underwear Is Still a Mystery.

When Lyle McGuire, janitor of a building at 7952 Phillips avenue, discovered a coat and vest in the front hallway yesterday morning he did what a good janitor should do. He called through the speaking tubes to all the lessees and asked who had carelessly shedding his clothes in the hallway.

He got nothing but denials so he went to the South Chicago police and gave them the garments.

Two hours passed and Charles P. Pinckard, insurance broker, 2221 East 67th street, reported to the police that his large automobile had been stolen between 11 p. m. Saturday and 8:30 a. m. yesterday in front of the home of Robert E. Holmes, 8006 Phillips avenue. Mr. Holmes and his father own a chain of bakeries.

Find a Pair of Pants.

When two more hours had passed Kenneth Strong, who lives on the second floor in Janitor McGuire's building, informed the police that he had found a shirt, a pair of shoes, a pair of pants, and a tie in front of the door to his apartment. He and Mrs. Strong were just returning from a trip to Champaign. It was now 4:30 a. m.

Looking through the pants, the police found a card representing a city license for an automobile. It was made out to Mr. Charles P. Pinckard.

"Yes," said Mr. Pinckard, "I must admit that it's my suit."

"How," asked the police, "did it get scattered around the way it did? And how did you get from that building to another suit of clothes?"

Owner of Pants Explains.

"I will explain," replied the owner of the pants, etc. "At 3 a. m., I think it was, I left Mr. Holmes' house. The next thing I remember is that I woke up in a vacant third floor flat at 7951 Phillips avenue at 11 o'clock the morning. I told myself this was a pretty pickle to be in—no pants and, well, nothing to wear. But I made the best of a bad situation. I wrapped a piece of linoleum around me like I was a Roman senator and walked back to Mr. Holmes' house."

It was suggested that Mr. Pinckard must have been slugged by the men who stole his car, disrobed and thrust into the vacant flat. Mr. Holmes said that his friend was entirely sober, but very sleepy when he left the Holmes home.

And Janitor McGuire wants to know how anybody could get into the front door, which was locked, without a key, and how Mr. Pinckard wrapped himself in linoleum when there was no linoleum there to wrap himself in.

HELD ROBBING LAUNDRY.

MISSOURI HUNGER MARCHERS REACH JEFFERSON CITY

Jefferson City, Mo., Oct. 25.—(AP)—The advance guard of Missouri's "hunger marchers," who are making the trip to the state capital in motor cars and trucks, arrived tonight. Leaders of the "marchers" estimated 200 were already here, and several hundred others, camped in nearby towns, would arrive in the morning.

W. C. McCuistion of Kansas City, organizer of the demonstration, said a committee will call upon Gov. Henry S. Caulfield tomorrow to demand immediate payment of $150 to unemployed workers, $10 a week for each unemployed person, $2 a week for each dependent of an unemployed worker, and unemployment insurance.

Most towns refused to give the "marchers" food and shelter, and Jefferson City had taken a similar stand. Tonight, however, Mayor Henry Asel granted the women and children use of the city hall.

DEPOSITORS PAY HONOR TO SMITH FOR BANK QUIZ

Stage Waukegan Meeting for Prosecutor.

Twenty Chicagoans, members of the executive committee of the United Depositors' Association of Illinois, motored to Waukegan yesterday to attend a meeting in honor of State's Attorney A. V. Smith of Lake county, who has been active in obtaining indictments in connection with bank failures.

A. V. SMITH.

About 150 persons, principally depositors of the defunct Waukegan State bank, attended the meeting, held in the auditorium of Waukegan High school.

Speeches were made by Dr. E. Byron Kelly, chairman of the depositors' association; Thomas D. Bell, treasurer of the association; Harry D. Winder, president of the North Shore Civic association, and Col. Smith.

Seek Law for Private Auditors.

Dr. Kelly said the depositors' organization was prepared to advocate legislation permitting private accountants employed by bank depositors to audit the books of closed banks. Mr. Bell and Col. Smith criticised State Auditor Oscar Nelson for "laxity."

"Since delving into the Waukegan bank situation I have discovered that protection of depositors is a myth," Col. Smith declared. "It is apparent now that in many cases the bank examiners, instead of thoroughly studying the bank books for evidence of bad loans, were in many cases content to accept the word of bank directors as to the condition of their institutions."

Col. Smith urged that the depositors' protective committee of the Waukegan State bank join the United Depositors' association. H. F. Marsh, chairman of the Waukegan depositors' group, indicated this suggestion would be followed.

Seek Change of Venue.

Albert Fink, attorney for State Auditor Nelson, who was indicted on nonfeasance charges in connection with the Waukegan failure, was scheduled to appear before Circuit Judge Ralph J. Daly in Waukegan today to file a motion for a change of venue. Counsel for George Woodruff, former chairman of the National Bank of the Republic, another defendant, were to make a similar motion.

The Cook county grand jury, which on Friday was reported to have voted true bills against Olaf A. Christensen, former president of the North Town State bank, Capital State bank and the Builders and Merchants' Trust bank, all closed north side institutions, will resume its investigation of Christensen's activities today, Assistant State's Attorney Henry E. Ayers announced.

CALLS AT HOMES OF SIX MEMBERS OF HIS FAMILY AND KILLS ALL.

Wagener, S. C., Oct. 25.—(AP)—George Jackson, about 35, Aiken county farmer, today shot and killed six members of his family. Jackson, a resident of the Bethcar section, about six miles from here, then fled, accompanied by a small daughter.

Sheriff J. P. Howard and two deputies, who were summoned, attempted to trace the slayer by the barefoot tracks of the little girl in the soft ground near the scene of the killings.

Armed with a shotgun and a pistol, Jackson, described as "an eccentric character," first went to the home of Dari Jackson and slew two uncles, an aunt and two cousins. He then proceeded to the home of Herman Jackson, a cousin, and shot him to death.

GIRL KILLED IN AUTO CRASH.

Bloomington, Ill., Oct. 25.—[Special.]—In a three car collision south of here, Miss Maris Allen, 19, of Peoria, was killed. Twelve others escaped with minor injuries.

CAPONE PRISON TRIP RESTS ON APPEAL TODAY

is mandatory when an appeal is perfected.

The prosecutors admit that the authorities disagree as to the effect of an appeal on a supersedeas, but they contend that under the practice of the Chicago federal courts an appeal does not operate per se as a supersedeas.

If Capone were allowed a supersedeas, he would not necessarily gain his liberty, for such a writ does not entail bail. It merely stays execution of the trial court's judgment and Capone could still be held in custody pending his appeal.

Bail up to Appeals Court.

Judge Wilkerson denied bail and the Appellate court is the next resort in this matter. This court usually follows the action of the judge below as to bail. Two of the three judges of the Appellate court, Samuel Alschuler, Will M. Sparks, and Evan A. Evans, must be present, and since the court is in session, all of them probably will be there today.

In 1924, the prosecutors pointed out, Federal Judge Adam Cliffe denied a supersedeas and appeal bond to William Fahy, former postal inspector, and James Murray, both of whom were sentenced to 25 years in the penitentiary for complicity in the Rondout mail robbery.

In 1929 Federal Judge Walter C. Lindley denied a supersedeas and appeal bond to Virgil Litzinger, who was sentenced to a 25 year term for his connection with the Evergreen Park mail robbery. In each instance the Circuit Court of Appeals followed the court below and the defendants went immediately to prison.

Supersedeas Won't Free Him.

If Capone obtained a supersedeas and were denied bail, he could not be taken to the penitentiary, where his sentence must begin under Judge Wilkerson's order, but he could be held in the county jail pending the outcome of his appeal, like a man awaiting trial, and no credit would be received on his sentence.

He was sentenced to a total of ten years in the penitentiary and one year in jail, but the jail term cannot be served until his release from the penitentiary, under Judge Wilkerson's ruling.

D'Andrea's contempt case is to be heard before Judge Wilkerson tomorrow morning.

DRUGGIST ROBBED OF $250.

MANY THOUSANDS CROSS HUDSON ON NEW BRIDGE

New York, Oct. 25.—[Special.]—New York and New Jersey met today above the Hudson on the massive steel span of the new George Washington bridge. The crossing was opened to vehicles for the first time and the public celebrated it. It went across by pleasure car and service car, on foot, motorcycle, and roller skates, and one citizen was on a horse.

Officials estimated that the first day would see 56,000 crossing by car and 30,000 by foot. At 9 o'clock tonight the count on the cars was 50,000 and on pedestrians anybody's guess.

It was a day of traffic problems and of harassed police working under the direction of deputy inspectors. Lines of automobiles formed dark snakes for many blocks at each entrance to the bridge.

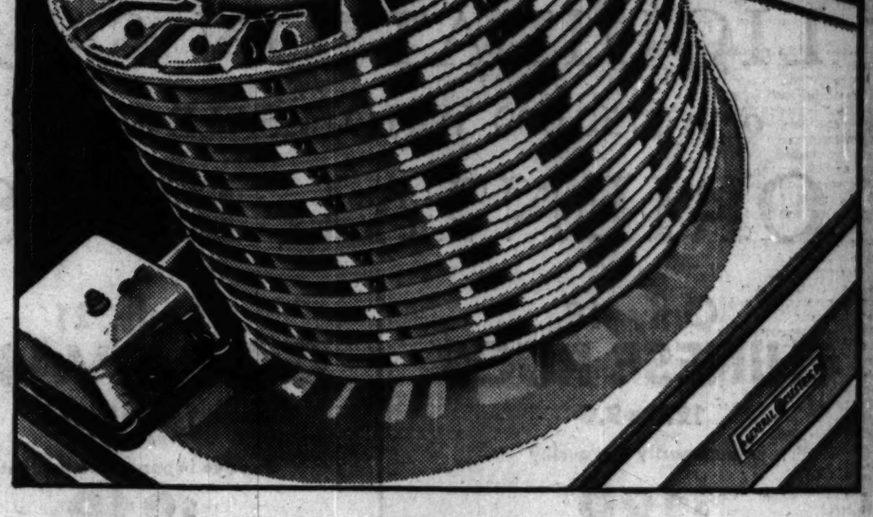
YOU CAN STOP WINTER WASTE WITH THE MONITOR TOP

¶ Here's the test of an electric refrigerator—how it performs during the winter months—when the kitchen and pantry are almost constantly overheated... Then a General Electric saves most—both in food protection and in vastly lower current consumption.

¶ Refrigerating is really heat absorption. The refrigerating mechanism actually absorbs the heat from the food you put into the cabinet and from the air that gets into the cabinet every time you open the doors. The heat absorbed by the refrigerating mechanism must be thrown off. If it is blanketed within a portion of the cabinet, the refrigerating mechanism must work longer, and at more frequent intervals—and must consume more electric current.

¶ The entire General Electric refrigerating mechanism—hermetically sealed in a lifetime supply of oil—is on top of the cabinet—where it belongs—in the Monitor Top—uncovered—air-cooled. Heat absorbed from the cabinet is not blanketed within any portion of the cabinet. Result—the General Electric motor runs less frequently—for shorter periods. It consumes less current and performs at greatly increased efficiency.

¶ General Electric gives you improvements on every feature to be found in any other electric refrigerator plus exclusive General Electric features such as turbine construction, all-steel cabinets; food shelves that slide in and out—easily, conveniently—like a well fitting drawer—no reaching 'way back into the cabinet—no food rubbing your sleeves or wrists....



COSTS NO MORE

$10 DOWN $10 A MONTH

AND A GUARANTEE THAT MEANS SOMETHING

¶ Protect your food against overheated surroundings this winter. General Electric will mean dollars-and-cents savings. Don't delay. Waiting is wasting. Telephone Franklin 5720—have a General Electric refrigerator placed in your home on free trial—no obligation on your part.

GRANDFATHER, BABY KILLED AS TRAIN HITS AUTO

Two Chicago Women Die In Another Crash.

Benjamin Spindler, 53 years old, 643 West 44th place, Gary, and his granddaughter, June Spindler, 2 years old, 643 West 44th place, Gary, were killed yesterday when their automobile was struck by a Michigan Central passenger train at 41st and Harrison streets, Gary. The baby was killed instantly and Spindler died a few hours afterward in the Mercy hospital, Gary. The automobile was demolished.

Spindler had taken the car of his son, Albert, the baby's father, to fill the tank with gasoline. The accident occurred only a few blocks from their home. The crossing is protected by a light signal, which Spindler apparently did not see.

Two Chicago Women Die.

Two Chicago women were killed and three other persons seriously injured yesterday when their automobile skidded from the Lincoln highway while traveling 60 miles an hour at Dilling Springs, Ind., five miles west of Valparaiso.

The dead women were Mrs. Anna Simonsen, 60 years old, 3333 West 57th street, and Mrs. Martha Uza, 32 years old, 1958 South Wood street.

The injured are Mr. and Mrs. Anton Uza, 337 West 58th street, and Charles Uza, 1959 South Wood street. Uza, who was driving, cut out of a line of cars and was forced into the ditch by an approach of one from the opposite direction, police learned.

Woman Dies in Crash.

Mrs. M. F. Kobb, 65 years old, of Cedar Rapids, Ia., was fatally hurt yesterday in an automobile collision at Belvidere and Telegraph roads, west of Waukegan. She and her husband were driving with their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph P. Daly of Waukegan, when their car struck one in which Mr. and Mrs. K. C. Young, 5339½ North Paulina street, were riding. Mrs. Kobb was thrown to the pavement, receiving injuries which caused her death a short time later at St. Therese's hospital in Waukegan. Her husband received a possible skull fracture.

Three Deaths in County.

Three deaths yesterday raised the traffic death toll in Cook county to 1,052. The victims:

John Kubanek, 60 years old, 1636 North St. Louis avenue. Died in the county hospital of injuries suffered Sunday when he was struck at 16th street and Clifton Park avenue by a car driven by John Caruso, 25 years old, 611 West 23d street. Caruso was held.

Mrs. Ellen T. Kearns, 68 years old, 159 Amado place. Found unconscious at Lincoln and Harrison streets and taken to the County hospital. She died a short time later. Before she became unconscious she said she had been struck by an automobile. The driver of the car did not stop.

Unidentified man, about 45 years old. Fatally injured by an automobile while he was walking in Waukegan road near Dempster street, in Niles Center. He died in St. Francis hospital, Evanston. The driver was Sergt. John Connell of Fort Sheridan.

An automobile in which Dr. and Mrs. James R. Gilhooley of the Seville hotel, Detroit, were riding was crushed yesterday when it struck a lamppost on the outer drive opposite 31st street. Mrs. Gilhooley received severe lacerations about the face and a fractured bone in her foot. Her husband was not seriously hurt.

Running across the street in front of his home at 3013½ North Crawford avenue, Frank Futs, 3 years old, was struck and seriously injured by an automobile driven by Earl G. Launer, 21 years old, 1304 South Avers avenue. Launer was not held.

Policeman Emil Mueller, 53 years old, a wagonman at the Fillmore street station, and Alex Born, 19, of 223 Evergreen avenue, a special delivery mail boy, were injured last night in a collision at Fillmore street and Independence boulevard.

Municipal Judge Frank M. Padden, who is sitting in the Speeders court, sent a letter to Police Commissioner Allman yesterday calling the latter's attention to the fact that many taxicab chauffeurs and private car owners are in the habit of driving at night with only their cowl lights lighted instead of their headlights.

He suggested that the practice may have been responsible for a number of motor fatalities, due to failure of pedestrians or other motorists to see the approach of cars so dimly lighted. Pointing out that the law requires that headlights be plainly visible at a distance of 200 feet, Judge Padden closed his cooperation while sitting in the Speeders court to the police in stopping the practice.

NURSE WITNESS DISAPPEARS IN RUTH JUDD CASE

Phœnix Girl Is Missing After Threats.

lumberman, mentioned before in the case.

"Some days before Jack had dropped in at the clinic [where Mrs. Judd was employed] and asked me to introduce him to a new nurse. What her name is doesn't matter. So I shall call her Miss X.

"As we talked last Saturday morning about Jack and Miss X Anne [Mrs. Le Roi] suddenly reached the breaking point."

Mrs. Judd then said that Mrs. Le Roi threatened to tell Halloran a professional secret about "Miss X" and that Mrs. Judd then threatened reprisals.

"Sammy [Miss Samuelson] was standing at her dresser," Mrs. Judd continued. "She stopped combing her hair and turned around to face me.

"'Ruth,' she said, 'if you ever say anything about Anne and cause her to lose her job, I'll shoot you as sure as your name is Ruth Judd.'"

The thought then flashed through her mind, Mrs. Judd wrote, that there was a pistol in the drawer of the bureau.

"There was that gun, loaded," she wrote, "where Sammy could grab it up if she chose. So I walked away and went to the kitchen. Only a few seconds later I turned and saw Sammy standing in the doorway. She was aiming the pistol at me.

"Bullet Hit My Finger."

"I made a lunge for her. I tried to strike the pistol from her hand, but she fired and the bullet hit my finger.

"We struggled. It was terrific. We swayed, then both fell to the floor, both clutching at the pistol. Anne came screaming into the kitchen. She seized an ironing board and as she did so I grasped the gun.

"From my half-prone position on the floor I fired. The bullet struck Sammy in the head—I may have fired another—I am not sure.

"I got to my feet. As Anne came at me with the ironing board I fired at her. I fired again—I don't know how many times. Then everything went blank."

Mrs. Judd then wrote that she placed the bodies on beds, washed the blood stains from the floor and went to the clinic to work as usual. In the afternoon she returned to the apartment and dragged Mrs. Le Roi's trunk from the garage and placed the two bodies in it.

She called an expressman, the letter continues, and when he told her that the trunk was too heavy she had it sent to her own home.

"Sunday morning," the letter continues, "when I lifted Sammy from the trunk to place her in my own little metal locker trunk I found that it was too small. So I dragged her to the bathroom and in the bathtub I severed her body with a butcher knife. The upper part I put in the locker trunk. Then I divided the lower part, removing the legs at the knees. There was room for them, too, in the little locker trunk. The rest I placed in my suitcase.

Tells of Checking Trunks.

Mrs. Judd then told how she had checked the trunks to Los Angeles, traveled there and gone into hiding.

She hid in a department store restroom, she said, and spent the first night there. Then she said she dyed her dress in the restroom, went to a movie, and then walked to an outlying district.

She recalled a sanitarium near Pasadent where she had been a patient, she said, and went there and hid in a vacant cottage before coming to the city and giving herself up.

ASKS CITIZENS TO HELP POLICE FIGHT HOLDUPS

Schoemaker Asks for Prompt Calls.

A wave of minor robberies on Saturday night and in the early hours yesterday led Chief of Detectives William Schoemaker to urge that citizens cooperate with police in dealing with stickup men by reporting any suspicious characters seen in their neighborhoods.

CHIEF SCHOEMAKER.

Between 4:30 a. m. Saturday and 4:30 a. m. yesterday there were sixty-six robberies reported to police, most of them for small sums. Police laid the number to the advent of cool weather, which annually increases the number of holdups, combined to some extent with the present depression.

"I doubt, however, if there are any more robberies at present than there have been in years past," said Chief Schoemaker. "The difference is that every robbery, even if it is a jackrolling for 50 cents, goes on the books, while in the old days most of the reports never got beyond the station house where they were made.

"There are few, if any, organized holdup gangs working. Most of the robberies are by amateurs in crime, who soon fall into the hands of police.

"If citizens will call the police every time they see a suspicious group riding about or sitting in a parked car, or when they see a man lurking in a dark doorway, they will prevent many of these robberies."

Police searched yesterday for a bandit who was shot by Joseph Hausler, proprietor of the Farm, a roadhouse at Lawrence avenue and River road, early yesterday after the gunman and four companions had held up 125 patrons and employés in the place.

While the holdup was in progress Hausler went to his living quarters on the second floor, and as the gang fled fired a double barrelled shotgun at them. One of the men dropped, but was carried away by his companions. The loot in the robbery amounted to several thousand dollars.

GIRL IS HELD FOR FATAL SHOOTING OF SWEETHEART

Dubuque, Ia., Oct. 25.—[Special.]—Susan Jansen, 21, Dubuque, is being held on charges of first degree murder at Lancaster, Wis., on charges filed by Michael Conrad, Cassville, Wis., who alleges that she shot his brother, Leo, 21, during a lovers' quarrel at a party in Potosi.

Guests at the party declared at a coroner's inquest that Conrad told the girl that their affair was ended. Next, he was found on the sidewalk bleeding from a bullet wound in his head, they declare.

District Attorney Christianson and Sheriff Jo Greer declare that the Jansen girl tried to make it appear that Conrad shot himself. The absence of powder marks on the body disproves this theory, they say. The Jansen girl steadily maintains her innocence.

MUSSOLINI ASKS EUROPE BE FREED OF DEBTS OF WAR

Also Calls for Revision of Peace Treaties.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

NAPLES, Oct. 25.—Revision of reparations and war debts to free Europe from 59 years of payments, modification of the Versailles treaty, and recognition of conquered Germany's juridical right to be as well armed as the victorious nations of the war were urged by Premier Mussolini here today as essential conditions for any lasting peace or economic reconstruction for post-war Europe.

Il Duce addressed a multitude of black shirted Fascist followers together with the populace of Naples and thousands of others who poured into Naples in 18 special trains on the second day of his triumphal visit to the city of legendary Parthenope.

Proposals Highly Significant.

His proposals for restoring Europe to a lasting peace are believed to have added significance from the fact that the address was made while Foreign Minister Grandi was in Berlin discussing the interrelation of debts and reparations with the Germans and Premier Laval of France was on the eve of his departure from the United States after his conference with President Hoover.

Mussolini pointed out that this always has been the Fascist program, but the reaffirmation of it now is regarded as foreshadowing intergovernmental decisions which have been or are about to be taken.

Urging the necessity of immediate action if disaster is to be averted, Mussolini declared that the economic machinery of the present world has been completely wrecked.

His voice was carried by loud speakers to the throng overflowing Plebiscite square as he outlined Italy's foreign policy.

"World Slowed Up Rythm."

"We would have done much more gether.

world had not compelled us to slow up the rhythm of our work," he said. "Nine years have passed since Fascist Italy at London posed the problem of reparations and debts in terms which have now been made the order of the day. But now we ask ourselves if we must wait 60 long years before the end is written on the tragic bookkeeping of credits and debits founded on the blood of 10,000,000 youths who will never again see the light of the sun.

"And can it be said that any juridical equality exists between nations when on one side stand those armed to the teeth and on the other those condemned to be disarmed altogether."

"And how," thundered Mussolini from the flagdraped balcony of the prefecture, "can you speak of reconstructing Europe if you do not modify several clauses of the peace treaty which have pushed the world to the threshold of material disaster and moral desperation."

Spokesman for Central Europe.

In this passage Mussolini is seen as the spokesman for reclamations for the central European nations over boundary questions as against the status quo policy of France.

Only if these lines are followed in international politics can there be any real peace, declared Il Duce, adding:

"Peace cannot be disassociated from justice, otherwise it becomes a protocol or declaration of vendettas, rancors, and fears."

Special importance was attached to these declarations in diplomatic circles tonight as revealing the outlines of the position which Grandi will present to President Hoover three weeks hence when he visits Washington. Mussolini spoke 16 minutes and replied to several "curtain calls" from the cheering crowds.

Fascist Thermometer Rises.

It is considered his visit has caused the Fascist thermometer in southern Italy to mount several degrees.

None the less interesting, from the Italian standpoint, were his other utterances on internal affairs. Settling the whisperings that have been bussing recently, Mussolini reaffirmed the indissoluble links between Fascism and the monarchy, which, he indicated, had not been changed since Fascism nine years ago, on the eve of its march on Rome, proclaimed it was monarchical and not republican.

The Naples crowds, traditionally monarchist and lovers of royal pomp, cheered loudly when the premier mentioned Crown Prince Humbert, who is to establish his residence here. Il Duce reindorsed the prince as a representative of the house of Savoy, which he designated as a bulwark in Italy's struggle for unity. Referring to the prince, he said:

"Naples now is worthy to receive this august guest who from Turin, the bulwark of Italy during the 'resorgimento,' is coming to live among you."

And he appealed for a renewal of the oath of loyalty to the monarchy and the house of Savoy.

About 300,000 persons heard Mussolini's speech. This morning Il Duce paid a postponed visit to Pompeii and Herculaneum. He returned to Rome following his address.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

CAPONE SENTENCED.

Judge Wilkerson has sentenced Al Capone to 11 years' imprisonment and imposed a fine of $50,000. Before 1920 Capone was only Scarface Brown, known as one of the shady characters familiar to the vice districts of great communities, where profits come from gambling, drink and prostitution. Drinks could be sold legally then. The other profitable enterprises needed political protection. Brown evidently had abilities above the average in the muck of vice mongers, but abilities which required more opportunities than they found until the United States government, which has sent him to prison, offered them. They were called national prohibition.

Under prohibition Brown soon felt important enough to revert to his family name, Capone, and soon he had made that name a word which contained compendiously the whole new phenomenon of lawlessness in the country. He became the symbol of the gang, of the new verboten and its consequences, of a savage and startling criminality. He was a direct product of federal legislation. Congress had conjured him forth as if by magic. The drys had put an interdict upon the habits of millions of American citizens who refused to submit, and out popped Capone and his like. Without the Volstead act he could not have existed. With it he was the predetermined product. For any one who could see he was the flower of the noble experiment.

Unfortunately this product of federal prohibition was popularly accepted as a product of Chicago. So far as Chicago was concerned he would have remained Al Brown of Cicero dives. His success had its origins in sources the city could not control. It was not offering him the profits over which men fought, for which they were massacred and which corrupted government wherever it could be reached. The Volstead act provided the rewards of the new criminality and Chicago, protesting against it, could not change it. Capone was a federal gift to the city and he and Volstead combined to make the city notorious the world over.

Now the government which made Capone the symbol of everything wild and predatory in American life is punishing him, but not, however, for any of the criminality for which he stands in general report and common belief. He is punished quite candidly because he did not give the government its share of his earnings. He was prosecuted as a tax dodger. He did not split the proceeds of lawlessness with the internal revenue department of the United States.

For Capone, to explain this carelessness, it was suggested that naïvely he did not think the profits made by violating laws were taxable; that it was ridiculous to make a report of such earnings and offer the government a percentage. More likely the income tax law was just another one to be pushed over, but whatever Capone's ideas were, the issue the government made in these tax suits was simply that the gangster did not pay on what he made in lawlessness. There are other indictments against him charging the violations themselves, but the case today is one involving only his pecuniary infidelity to the government which, with its Volstead act, made him what he was before he was brought to trial. Ingratitude, you might call it.

There may be gratification for law in the sentence given Capone, but there is not complete satisfaction for the community. The conditions which made him remain and no one knows what they will make next. There may not be many such gangsters as he and his associates and enemies, dead or alive, in the future, but the Volstead act breeds crime and corruption and we still have that.

EDUCATIONAL FRILLS.

The failure to pay teachers' salaries has focused attention in Chicago upon public education. Every one agrees that the teachers have been made the victims of the political management of the school system, and most observers are convinced that as long as the present school board majority is in power no great improvement in the board's finances is to be expected. That is because the present majority cannot command credit, and also because the present majority does not know where to economize.

During the years of great prosperity no particular attention was paid to the mounting costs of education. Property values were rising and there seemed to be no lack of money with which to pay taxes. Accordingly, school board expenses were allowed to mount from year to year until the budget exceeded $100,000,000. That sum includes the cost of teaching tap dancing and table manners.

Any parent who can afford it is free to send his child to a private school built to provide Roman luxuries and instruction in all sorts of accomplishments, useful as well as useless. Perhaps it would be a happier world if the public schools were modeled after finishing schools for young ladies of wealth, but, for better or worse, that is out of the question. The taxpayers will not foot the bill; in fact, they cannot foot the bill. There is a limit to the amount of money which can be extorted from property owners, and that limit in Chicago has been reached and passed.

The educational budget has to be cut down to conform to the lowered prices of commodities and the reduced incomes of the taxpayers. There will be enough money to provide Chicago children a sound education, but the frills must go. Otherwise the teachers cannot be paid.

CASH AVAILABLE FOR CHICAGO.

The governor's tax commission is expected within a few days to report its findings on the revenue requirements of the state. The commission is said to be ready to lay before the governor a program of legislation which will relieve the immediate financial difficulties of the local governments and prevent, as far as possible, their recurrence.

So far as the immediate problem in Chicago is concerned, an obvious remedy is the use of funds now available in the public treasury. Chicagoans have paid millions of dollars in gasoline taxes into the state treasury where it is performing no useful purpose. Little of that money is ever coming back to Chicago. Most of it is going to be spent, under present arrangements, to build roads, many of them of little value, in sparsely settled districts downstate. Meanwhile the taxpayers of Chicago are finding the tax burden increasingly difficult to bear and at the same time the local governments with few exceptions are broke.

Under the circumstances the obvious remedy is to give back to Chicago what Chicago has already paid in taxes. The money could be applied to the construction and maintenance of streets in Chicago, thereby relieving the taxpayers of that portion of their payments for the costs of local government. Enough would be left over to proceed with the west side elevated highway of which Chicago stands in great need and which, of itself, would serve to reduce costs of street maintenance and repair in years to come by diverting traffic from existing highways.

The governor's commission is performing a task which resembles in many respects the work of a committee engaged in reorganizing a corporation in receivership. The commission, it is to be hoped, will not overlook the assets in cash which are available.

PROFITS FROM THE MANCHURIAN CRISIS.

Friends of China will hope that, whatever the outcome of events in Manchuria, some good will come from the collision with Japan.

It now seems probable, for example, that the dangerous schism in the Nationalist party, resulting in the setting up of a separate government at Canton, may be healed and some sort of workable reunion established. No one who has watched the operations of Chinese politics since the overthrow of the Manchu dynasty will expect too much of such a reunion. The factionalism and personal ambitions which have repeatedly defeated the hope of political unification and the progress which is vitally dependent upon it are not to be abolished by a crisis already moderating. With the passing of its pressure they are more than likely to return. But meanwhile it is not impossible to hope that some ground will be gained. The communist menace in central China is serious enough and the conditions it is creating are so destructive that even a relatively short cessation of interparty disunion might be of great importance.

Another benefit, less likely but almost as important to Chinese peace and progress, would be a realization on the part of Chinese leadership that organized campaigns of anti-foreign agitation are likely to be an expensive and dangerous resort of Chinese politics.

It would be unfortunate if this lesson of the Japanese imbroglio were overlooked. If China expects assistance from external forces, whether that of governments or that of world opinion, such as exists, it must be more careful to weigh the disadvantages and dangers of provocation. The moral and even the legal strength of the Japanese case derive from the rather reckless anti-foreignism in which Chinese organizations have indulged. We realize that a nascent spirit of nationality and race solidarity may be in some measure strengthened by it. It has played a part in the political tactics of other peoples than the Chinese. But, deplorable as it is in any country, it is especially dangerous and costly in a nation as unprepared to resist foreign aggression or reprisal as China. What benefits it may have in arousing and fusing national sentiment are offset by the probability that it will not only provoke reprisal but in the eyes of the world largely justify it. It thus may serve, as the Chinese charge it is serving in the case of Manchuria, as a mask for ulterior purposes, but if it is, it is a mask difficult to expose.

In short, responsible leadership in China ought to be impelled by the experiences of its present situation in Manchuria to reconsider whether its use of organized anti-foreignism and its tendency to repudiate treaty engagements, however plausible repudiation may be from the Chinese revolutionary viewpoint, are not likely to cost much more than they are worth, whatever that worth in internal politics may be.

Editorial of the Day

GUIDO SERIO.

[New York World-Telegram.]

Guido Serio, Italian communist, whom the United States is ejecting, is going, after all, to Russia instead of to Italy.

It is discouraging to remember what a vast amount of effort has been necessary to bring about this result.

The country founded by political refugees, which was once a sanctuary for all whose opinions clashed with those of ruling European powers, was determined not only to eject Serio but to deliver him to the one spot in the world where his life would not have been safe.

It took a year and a half of fighting in the courts to reverse the executive department's ruling to this effect.

Serio probably will go to Russia and talk of American tyranny. In regard to his own case he will be dangerously near right.

IS ALCOHOL EVER A MEDICINE?

THE physicians who are anxious, for one reason or another, to keep alcoholic beverages in the list of drugs to be prescribed are having to do some vigorous scratching. As they look over the list of diseases, for the cure of which alcohol has been used, they find that the evaporation rate has been exceedingly high. Consumption was once high on the list. It has disappeared. Likewise erysipelas, blood poisoning, pneumonia, snake bite, shock, malaria, and many others.

The present claims are about as follows: If one is having trouble getting a diabetic to digest and absorb enough calories without causing sugar in the urine on the one side, or acidosis on the other, it may be possible to bridge the gap with a small amount of alcohol. It is not claimed that the alcohol acts as a drug, the thought merely being that in such a situation one can make use of the food values of a limited amount of alcohol as a substitute for sugar.

Another claim is that old people often times do better if they have a little daily drink. Especially is this true if the old people had a mild alcohol habit in the earlier reaches of life. They do not claim that, used in this connection, alcohol has any curative value. They say that old age is not a good time to reform a man. They make about the same claim for people in some other times of need. They say—and rightly—that a time of trial is no time to undertake reforming his alcohol habits.

A claim of another kind is due to receive considerable investigation. Some gallstones are composed of cholesterol. Likewise, in atheroma of arteries there is a deposit of cholesterol in the tissues. In arcus senilis, the white rim of the pupil, that most people say is due to age, is caused by a local deposit of cholesterol. The new claim is that drinking alcohol enough to keep some free alcohol in the blood will prevent gallstones, atheroma of the arteries, and the diseases that come from it.

This is very important, if true. Carried to a logical conclusion it means that one way to prevent gallstones and apoplexy is to keep mildly soused. The danger of contracting the alcohol habit, when one is trying to ward off gallstones, caused one authority to advise postponing the adoption of the preventive method for apoplexy and gallstones until we can find some drug that will prevent the deposit of cholesterol but which will not be habit forming.

This theory, that drinking alcohol prevents the formation of gallstones, grew in a roundabout way out of the well known fact that one way to drink and not get drunk was to mix milk with whisky.

CAUSE OF HALITOSIS.

A. J. R. writes:

1. What are the causes of halitosis?
2. Is it curable?

REPLY.

1. Among the causes are ozena, foul tonsils and teeth, coating on tongue, and, most important, chemical changes in the digestive tract.
2. Cure of that due to ozena is most unsatisfactory. Cure of that due to other causes is easier. The treatment depends on the cause.

CAUSE OF BLUE BABY.

Mrs. S. writes: What causes a blue baby—that is, one with a heart valve that does not close? Would the health of the mother have anything to do with it? Where one child in a family is born with that trouble, is it liable to happen again?

REPLY.

The blue baby condition is due to a congenital defect in the heart. Why the building of the heart fails to follow plans and specifications nobody knows. The cause in any one case was something that just happened right then, which will never happen again, and for which no explanation is possible. The health of the mother is not a factor. Nor is anything else.

STOCK PURCHASE.

Chicago, Oct. 18.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Some time ago I bought a utility stock on the installment plan from an employé of the said utility. The stock is not delivered until fully paid for, and then only interest on the installments are paid. I did not sign any contract whatever. 1. Can I withdraw my money if I have not fully paid for the stock? 2. Is there any law regarding this kind of purchase? 3. Can they force me to pay for the stock fully? 4. Can they legally keep all the installments paid if payments are not kept up?

R. N.

1. Not unless so agreed.
2. There are general principles of the common law.
3. Presumably your contract is so worded as to authorize them to collect from you.
4. As long as they are ready to carry out their agreement and you are not ready to carry out yours, you are not in a position to enforce legal remedies against them.

APARTMENT LEASE.

Chicago, Oct. 18.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—The lease on my apartment expired Sept. 30. I have not signed another but paid my rent for the month of October. Does this hold me for another six months' lease, for which time I have always signed one? L. S.

Where a tenant under a lease for a definite term holds over beyond the term and the landlord accepts additional rent, these circumstances, in the absence of other circumstances showing a contrary intent on the part of the landlord, result in a renewal by implication so that neither party can terminate the tenancy nor increase the rent during such renewal.

DEFECTIVE RAIN GUTTER.

Chicago, Oct. 18.—[Friend of the People.]—My next door neighbor has raised his sidewalk to slant to our building. His drain pipe is open and runs directly into our basement. What can be done? L. P.

You are advised, that, due to a former complaint, the following notice was served on the owner: "Properly connect sun-porch gutter to house drain, to abate nuisance of flooding adjacent and own premises." This matter will be followed up until compliance with the foregoing order has been obtained.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the gibes fall where they may.

Speech of Commander Marlinespike, U. S. N., on Navy Day, Tomorrow.

"Navy officers are warned from the White House that in making speeches on Navy day, tomorrow, they must not mention the London treaty or naval appropriations, reductions, needs, personnel, or any controversial topics."—News from Washington.

Ladies and gentlemen, fellow Americans: This is Navy day! Yes, Navy day. Speaking of the navy, we are brought first to consider the navy bean. As one who has served long in the United States navy, both on sea and land, I can truthfully say, without fear of contradiction, that the navy bean is one of our most prized articles of food. It is rich in protein, in butter fat, in vitamins—all that builds us up to be stronger physically and makes us better and nobler Americans. This is Navy day! The navy floats on the ocean, and it is well to consider at this time, on Navy day, the effect of the moon on the tide. Or even when it isn't tied! And then there is Alexander the Great! What of him? And so Rome burned and Nero played on his fiddle. This is Navy day! Bull Run was indeed a disastrous defeat for the North, but at the same time in making a real corn pone you need only cornmeal, a pinch of salt—and this being Navy day—I may say, water.

But the north pole is of ice, and what use will it be for explorers to keep on with the weary search to find it and bring it back to our great country? Our climate is such that even if the north pole is brought here and set up as a monument in Washington or New York or Chicago it would soon melt away. True! but if Napoleon had not gone on that madcap expedition to Russia he might indeed have conquered the whole world. Now one may go to Russia on a round trip ticket from New York for $350, everything included except cocktails and vodka. It was not so in Napoleon's time. He should have waited.

This is Navy day! Let me read to you four or five chapters from this most interesting little book, "How to Know the Wild Flowers," so that when we go out into the woods we will be able to recognize the difference between a wild rose and an oak tree or a fox.

This is Navy day! And after this comes Hallowe'en, Armistice day, and then it's only forty-four more days until Christmas. But let us not cross our bridges, fellow Americans, until we get to them. This is Navy day! Navy blue is always a nice choice for your new suit, but why not try a snappy two-button job this year for a change? Speaking of change reminds me of a story. Maybe you've heard it before. There are only seven stories in the world and this is one of them. The days are growing shorter, there is a touch of autumn in the air, and whether you like it or not Rudy Vallee is on the air. The stars give us light at night. One of them is the North star; it is always right exactly in the north, the cute little rascal, and telling us which way to go if we want to go north. If we want to go west we ask a policeman.

This is Navy day, my friends, and over the Alps lies Italy, and today and yesterday are the blocks with which we built. Nowadays people order their houses from the nearest mail order company. This is Navy day! And in the great forests of Canada grow spruce, pine, and fir. What fir? I do not know. This is Navy day. I thank you.

LOST DEIRDRE.

Blind, he wanders down the roads.
And roads run everywhere.
He whispers, "I shall find her soon,
Lost Deirdre—touch her hair

And smooth her face and kiss her lips
And bend to worship on my knee.
And know her nearness once again."
(His eyes, monsieur, he cannot see.)

And so he wanders past her grave
Still thinking of the light.
The black rooks call above her dust.
And it is night.

RICHARD DUFFEY.

G. BERNARD SHAW is out in favor of prohibition. Which is just too bad for prohibition, because it tends to prove it is not a success. George knocks everything that is a success.

THIS CHANGING WORLD! They found Louis XVI. guilty of high treason in France and a few hours afterwards they chopped off his head. The Spanish cortes found King Alfonso guilty of high treason last Saturday. It is related that Alfonso read the news, yawned, drank a Martini cocktail, and went to see a tennis match.

AFTER ALL, a lot of small boys who have thought when they were grown up they would like to be a big shot in the rum racket and have a castle at Miami and wear solid silk undies and diamond belts and things, may fall back now on their former ambition to be a policeman.

AND OUT JUMPS Bill Borah down in Washington, while M. Laval and Mr. Hoover are talking it over, and steals the whole show. Saturday six lines on the conversation in the White House and many columns on what Bill said. All the prime ministers in Europe and the League of Nations in a body will have to come over for a conference with Bill, and it's dollars to doughnuts he'll outtalk the lot.

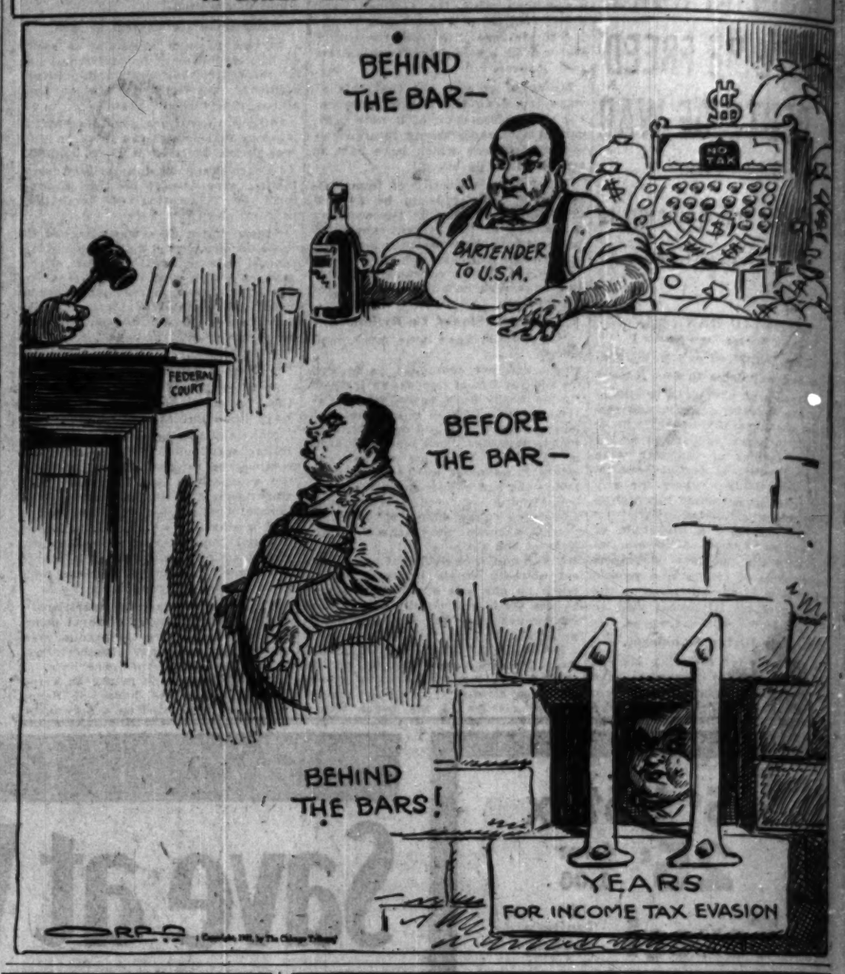
CHANGES.

The autumn moon's a yellow thing,
The night is sweet and mad,
I wonder if I'm getting old . . .
I can't feel sad!

HELEN WELSHIMER.

AND IF THESE U. S. should sign a security pact with France we will demand the government signs a security pact with us to keep other cars from bumping into our fenders and denting them all up. Our car has got just as much right to security as France has. Huh? R. H. L.

A BRIEF BIOGRAPHY OF AL CAPONE



FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

OCTOBER 26, 1915.

LONDON.—The Bucharest-Rumania correspondent of the Times says: "Serbian troops have withdrawn from the neighborhood of the Danube and the Austrians have crossed the river, traversing the island of Odakale. The Austrian forces will now obtain free passage through Bulgaria from Orsova, where fifty steamers and lighters laden with munitions have assembled."

LONDON.—Advances by the Germans on the north, check of the Bulgars in the vicinity of Veles, and defeat of King Ferdinand's troops farther south were the outstanding features in the Serbian war theater. The Austro-Germans advanced in King Peter's domain along an 80 mile front, about 30 miles south of the Danube and Save, and straddled the Belgrade-Constantinople railroad and Morava river.

PARIS.—French attacks gave them possession of most of the German trenches on hill 196, to the north of Meanil les Hurlus. The Germans later regained part of the central portion of the line. Possession of this position gives Gen. Joffre a new grip on the hills which overlook the main railroad feeding the German lines both in the Champagne and in the Argonne.

ROME.—Venice was twice attacked last night and once today by airplanes from which bombs, some of which were incendiary, were thrown. An incendiary bomb fell in front of the ducal palace on the piazzeta of St. Mark, but did no damage and another bomb crushed the sculptured ceiling of the church Degli Scalzi.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Rear Admiral Schley continued his story of the Santiago campaign before the court of inquiry. He made a positive denial of the "damn the Texas" incident testified to by Lieut. Hodgson. Schley said he not only did not make the remark, but the whole story of the colloquy, as related by Hodgson, was a fiction. He declared that Admiral Sampson's vessel was not in sight when the Spanish fleet under Admiral Cervera emerged from the harbor and attempted to make its escape. He testified that the Brooklyn did not cross the bow of the Texas, and that there was never any danger of the two vessels colliding. He went into minute details of the battle after the first shot was fired from the Brooklyn and until the Spanish fleet was destroyed. He said that before approaching the Iowa, on which Admiral Cervera was a prisoner of war after the battle, he cautioned his men not to cheer, as it was not proper to exult over a foe which had fought so well. It is definitely known now that Rear Admiral Sampson will not be summoned before the court.

CHICAGO.—Judges Dunne, Kavanagh, and Brentano, sitting en banc, decided the ordinance under which Robert E. Burke, Democratic leader and city oil inspector, was indicted for embezzling oil fees, is illegal, because it conflicts with state law. Burke was set free. The court held that the state law says the fees belong to the official, and adds that he could not embezzle his own money.

CHICAGO.—Thomas J. Loftus, for two years manager of the Chicago National league baseball team, will be with the American league next season. This fact was revealed after a two hours' conference between Loftus and President Hart, in which Loftus failed to renew his contract. The man most generally spoken of as his successor is Frank Selee, formerly of the Boston National league club.

NEW YORK.—The amount of the fund raised for the benefit of Mrs. Garfield, widow of the assassinated President, is now $361,791. Of this sum $361,770 has been paid for $311,000 worth of United States 4 per cent bonds, leaving a balance of $21.

CHICAGO.—A. S. Trude, the well known criminal lawyer of Chicago, has telegraphed to Attorney Scoville, Guiteau's counsel, that, if he can get certain libel suits in which he is engaged here continued, he will endeavor to assist Scoville in the assassin's trial.

THE COUNTY'S ROAD FUNDS.

Chicago, Oct. 22.—My attention has been called to a letter published in the Voice of the People in which certain inquiries are made concerning the use of the highway fund and the fiscal affairs of the county government.

There is apparently a misunderstanding in connection with the proposal for the voluntary reduction in the highway tax rates. Since the enactment of the motor fuel or gasoline tax law this county has been obtaining approximately the same revenue from this source for county road building as it had obtained heretofore from direct highway taxes. The county board, coöperating with the business, industrial, and motor organizations, has worked out a highway construction program under which all of the gasoline taxes allotted to the county will be used for building of roads, streets, bridges, and grade separations. This program is being pushed forward and adequate amounts are available from the gasoline tax to carry the work through within a minimum period of time and cost.

Reduction and not diversion of the county highway tax, therefore, will not affect the highway program, and is suggested by the county board as a means of reducing the tax burden. If temporary financing must be resorted to for current operating purposes, no additional tax burden need be placed on the taxpayers pending the collection of the overdue general taxes.

Specifically, there is no plan to divert any highway or road building funds now available or to be collected from the gasoline taxes. As these moneys are adequate to meet the requirements as set out in the county highway program, the levying of the additional maximum allowable highway taxes would be inexcusable at any time, and particularly when taxpayers are overburdened with the tax load.

The county board is pressing on the completion of the county highway program with the moneys available from gasoline taxes. With the reduction of material costs and with increased labor efficiency, the county highway projects are being carried forward at substantial reductions in unit costs and at the same time providing increased employment in the county.

EMMETT WHEALAN,

INCORPORATED IN DELAWARE.

Chicago, Oct. 19.—The fact that President Hoover's (or should one say Wall street's) new banking pool is being organized under the notorious Delaware corporation laws leads one to believe that there must be a dark gentleman in the wood pile somewhere. INQUISITIVE.

WRIGLEY FOR GOVERNOR.

Chicago, Oct. 21.—Prior to the mayoralty primary there was quite a little agitation among both Democrats and Republicans to pick a candidate entirely divorced from politics—a recognized business man. What did we get? A bunch of politicians to pick from.

I think it is time for a new deal. Gov. Emmerson can give us that deal by supporting William Wrigley for governor. All factions can get behind him. A factional leader that would not support him does not deserve public recognition.

I am precinct captain in a Republican section, and I speak the sentiment of my precinct and surrounding precincts. The people are not satisfied with the leaders put forth as candidates for governor and not satisfied with the foreign policy of our officials in Washington. I think it is high time for the injection of some new blood into the organization.

A REPUBLICAN PRECINCT CAPTAIN.

BRYAN.

South Chicago, Oct. 21.—William Jennings Bryan during the latter part of his political life was made the butt of many unjust criticisms, due to many political and economic proposals that he sponsored. One of his proposals was government insurance for bank depositors.

If my memory serves me right, the plan called for a levy of one mill per annum on each dollar deposited, thereby creating a fund to reimburse depositors in case of bank failures. Some of his critics considered him looney then and many a depositor is looney now.

Who was looney, Bryan or his critics?

ALEX PERSON.

REAL ECONOMY.

Chicago, Oct. 20.—Your "Real Economy in National Government" today ought to be read by official Washington.

With army and navy reductions and internationalism and pacifism running riot in the mind of the President, it is high time that his attention was called to conditions, in no gentle manner. Reducing either army or navy in personnel, to throw more men on the market for jobs at a time like this, is just about the acme of damfoolishness; and that does not include the folly of weakening our defensive arms of government.

H. A. WELSH.

A TRIBUTE TO EDISON.

Chicago, Oct. 20.—The Board of Trade should be highly complimented on the way it paid its tribute to Thomas A. Edison; however, the postoffice, a government building, failed to show respect for this great man by neglecting to fly flags at half staff.

RUSSIA HARD HIT AS CREDITS STOP; SHORT OF MONEY

Five Year Plan Menaced; Crops Unharvested.

BY DONALD DAY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIGA, Latvia, Oct. 25.—Despite denials from Moscow that the soviet government is hard pressed for money and that the five year industrialization plan is on the verge of collapse, it is learned here that the bolshevik régime is faced with a desperate situation because of inability to obtain further credits and machinery abroad.

During the last two months ten large factories in Latvia and Esthonia have been forced to shut down because of the impossibility of discounting soviet bills abroad. The Phoenix corporation of Riga has a million dollar order for railroad cars, but work was discontinued because of inability to cash soviet government notes. The Latvian State bank, too, has refused to advance money to the largest Latvian coöperative, which has sold the bolsheviks 15,000 hogs.

Bills Total 100 Millions.

Officials of the state bank, explaining their refusal to grant further credits to Russia, declare that on Dec. 1 the soviet government will be obliged to meet about $100,000,000 in overdue bills, which it had planned to pay with money realized from grain exports.

The collapse of the grain market has made it impossible to obtain the needed amount of foreign currency, and the Moscow State bank is not believed to have sufficient money to cover the bills coming due.

That Russia has been severely affected by the world wide depression, despite her claim that she is the only nation to have escaped, is clearly revealed in figures compiled and released yesterday by the chamber of commerce at Moscow. The figures show that in the first eight months of 1931 the soviet's unfavorable trade balance rose to $105,315,000.

During the last eight months imports continued to increase until they totaled $322,585,000. Exports, the figures showed, increased in volume but decreased in value, reflecting the falling prices in the world markets. The exports totaled $217,250,000.

Exports to U. S. Rise.

The Moscow Pravda reports that during September soviet orders placed in the United States amounted to about $50,000,000, or half the amount placed in September a year, while soviet exports to America increased from $14,000,000 to $22,000,000. The Amtorg corporation explains that the decrease in orders placed in America was due to the failure to obtain necessary credits.

An indication that the soviet government is moving toward a drastic curtailment of the five year plan was given in a decree issued by the national commissar organizing a new commission which will control the industrial development of the country.

Operating under the soviet labor and defense commission, it will have authority to interrupt building plans of the government trusts and syndicates.

American engineers at Moscow declare this new commission was formed to quietly delay building operations in view of the decreasing revenues.

Farm Crops Unharvested.

The Moscow press is filled with alarming reports revealing the increasing difficulty the government is experiencing in forcing the collectivized farms to deliver their crops to the government.

Besides reduced deliveries of grain, Pravda reports that 400,000 acres of the flax crop in the Ural region has not been harvested, and the harvesting of vegetables in the Voronesh-Blackarth district has fulfilled only 30 per cent of the five year plan. This district, upon which Moscow depends for its potato supply, reports that 80 per cent of the potato crop and 54 per cent of other vegetables have not been gathered.

Hunter Stumbles in Front of Comrade's Gun; Killed

Frank Dworak, 19 years old, 845 Rose street, was killed yesterday when he stumbled in front of a shotgun discharged by Mike Stortz, 29 years old, 3844 Bernard street, while the two were hunting near Lake Geneva, Wis. Dworak had just fired at some birds when he lost his balance and fell in front of Stortz's weapon. Stortz was questioned by Coroner W. F. Best of Walworth county and released.

BRITISH POLITICAL CHIEFS IN FINAL PLEA FOR VOTES

Premier Winds Up His Campaign Today.

LONDON, Oct. 25.—(AP)—Last appeals were addressed by British political leaders to the electorate tonight before the nation goes to the polls Tuesday, either to continue the MacDonald coalition—the so-called National government—in power, or thrust it out and put another in its stead.

"Labor's return would be an irreparable disaster," said Philip Snowden, chancellor of the exchequer, in a statement which emphasized the topsy-turvy nature of the campaign, in which former Labor leaders have been fighting their own party.

Lloyd George Exhorts Voters.

"The fate of the country is in the hands of the Liberals," said David Lloyd George, repeating his adjuration that the Liberals vote for free trade candidates for the house of commons, preferably Liberals, but Labor nominees, rather than Tories.

Arthur Henderson, former member of the late Labor government, said there had been a strong leaning toward Labor in the last few days.

The general election, all its split parties and confused issues affecting great Britain's international relations, is simplicity itself in the mere mechanics of voting.

Voters to Get Time.

The event is comparable to a presidential election in the United States. But the 29,955,131 men and women voters will not have to wrestle with large blanket ballots such as those required in many American states where national, state and local offices are filled the same day.

When the British voter goes to the polls Tuesday he will identify himself, his name and address will be checked by officials, and he will receive a ballot about eight inches square. On it, printed in alphabetical order, will be the names of candidates for the house of commons from his constituency—nothing more.

The voter will have to know the politics of his man, for there will not even be a party identification after the candidate's name.

DEDICATE PIER AS FEATURE OF NAVY DAY FETE

Navy pier was formally dedicated to the United States navy yesterday with ceremonies held in the pier auditorium to commemorate Navy day.

About 1,000 persons, mainly wives and relatives of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, who sponsored the dedication, attended the ceremonies. Mayor Cermak was represented by City Controller M. S. Szymczak. Attorney General Oscar E. Carlstrom, another scheduled speaker, did not appear.

An invocation was delivered by Dr. John Timothy Stone of the Presbyterian Theological seminary. Benediction was pronounced by Bishop Leon Grochowski of the Polish National Catholic church. An address, setting forth the history of the navy and the exploits of its heroes, John Paul Jones, Dewey and others, was delivered by Lieutenant Commander George M. Weichelt, retired.

AIR LINE AND BUS COMPANY UNITE SERVICE

Air bus service will be opened in Chicago and other cities on Thursday by the Transcontinental and Western Air, Inc., and the Greyhound lines, it was announced yesterday. The announcement was made jointly by Richard W. Robbins, president of the air line, and Orville S. Caesar, president of the bus company.

The buses will act as feeders to the air line, picking up passengers and transporting them to the nearest airport, where ships of the Transcontinental line operate. All flights here and in the other cities will be coördinated with important bus schedules. For the present, the new service will be restricted to passengers, but later will be expanded to include package express service, the announcement said.

According to F. W. Benefiel, local traffic manager for the Greyhound lines, all the bus company depots and agencies will become representatives of the air company. Air travel should be stimulated by the new system, he said.

NORTHUP RENEWS WAR OVER JUDGE FOR CANAL TRIAL

Ready to File Prejudice Notice Before Fisher.

John S. Northup, first assistant state's attorney, will make a new attempt tomorrow to file the sanitary district graft conspiracy cases assigned for trial to some other judge by Chief Justice Harry M. Fisher of the criminal court. Judge Fisher announced last week that he would hear the cases himself.

JUDGE FISHER.

Mr. Northup said yesterday that he will attempt to file a certificate of prejudice before the chief justice tomorrow, when motions are called on a defense motion to quash the indictments.

Previous Certificate Recalled.

In 1930 the prosecutor filed such a certificate before Judge Charles A. Williams, alleging that the judge had a case on the sanitary district pay roll, and obtained a transfer of the sanitary cases, then assigned to Judge Williams.

Last week Mr. Northup entered objections when Judge Fisher said that he would hear the sanitary cases. They had a heated discussion in court which resulted in talk of contempt action.

Rule 15 Is Amended.

Rule 15 of the rules of the Criminal court, which Mr. Northup invoked to obtain the transfer of the case from Judge Williams' jurisdiction, has also been the subject of action by 16 judges of the Circuit and Superior courts. These courts supply the judges for the Criminal court.

The 16 judges filed a document with the clerk of the Criminal court on March 31, amending Rule 15 to prevent a prosecutor from using a certificate of prejudice to obtain reassignment of a case.

Mr. Northup claims, however, that the judges' action had no effect on his case, because it was not taken in accordance with the rules for amending the procedure of the court. He is expected to argue along those lines in attempting to present his motion tomorrow.

Takes Drug to Relieve Illness; Overdose Fatal

Albert J. Geller, 47 years old, 1522 Belgrade street, formerly a clerk for the sanitary district, died yesterday at the county hospital of an overdose of a sleeping potion. He had been advised by a neighborhood druggist to use the drug as relief for neuritis, his widow, Anna, told police. He apparently took an overdose, and was found unconscious at the wheel of his automobile last Monday.

WOUNDED IN BANDIT BATTLE.

PROBE BLAST IN WHICH ELLER'S KINSMAN IS HURT

Four Quizzed on Farm Explosion.

Lieut. Frank Johnson of the bomb squad was investigating an explosion yesterday which tore two fingers and a thumb from the left hand of Martin Klass, a nephew of Morris Eller of the Twentieth ward. Four men were arrested as a result of the explosion. They are Abe Klass, former chauffeur for Eller on the sanitary district pay roll; Samuel Kaplan, 2108 Alice place, who was indicted with Abe Klass and others for Twentieth ward terrorism; Sidney Rubin, 710 West 14th street, and Thomas Smith, 669 West 14th place.

Claims It Was Shotgun.

The explosion was heard for a considerable distance from a farm at 53d avenue and 147th street where Maxie Eisen, racketeer and organizer of small business associations, keeps a stable of horses. Klass said his injuries resulted from the explosion of a shotgun cartridge, but Lieut. Johnson said the noise and the effects of it suggested that it was a percussion cap he was handling.

The arrests were made by the county highway police after Klass was taken to the Midlothian Health resort for treatment. A search of the farm followed but no bombs or other explosives were found.

Quizzed on Movie Bombs.

The prisoners were then turned over to the city bomb squad. Lieut. Johnson questioned the men regarding the bombing of fifteen moving picture theaters during the recent trouble between the theater owners and the operators' union. He inquired also into the recent activities of Eisen, whose opponents' places of business have been bombed.

Last night he said no admissions had been made by any of the prisoners but that because of their reputations and associations they would be under observation in the future. The four were booked for disorderly conduct and will be arraigned tomorrow before Justice of the Peace Julius Linakiewicz in Blue Island.

Walk Up Michigan Avenue, Lunch at Some Smart Place— See How Many Women Are Wearing Fashions Like These

Velvet Frocks

This frock begins its day at luncheon and spends the afternoon and evening in chic informality. It's the slender kind of frock that goes about under the street coat, and as the season advances there will be even a greater demand for this type—and every smart wardrobe will have one.

The neckline is irregular without being draped. One side is scalloped and the vestee of Alencon lace and embroidered batiste accents the deep V. Hipline is moulded to give a long and fluid line to the skirt. Brown, black, blue and wine. Also in silk crepe if you like. Sizes 36 to 42. $25

Moderate Price Section, Fourth Floor.

Short Jacket Suits

Raccoon collar and nubby woolen—the perfect kind of young suit to wear in town, country and travel. See how the jacket buttons at the side at a rather high line but low enough to give the collar a long sweep. Green, brown and rust. Sizes 14 to 20. $50

Suits, Fourth Floor.

Gigolo and Gigolette

Reboux's Hats with Crushed Crowns

$10 to $15

Not just two hats but a new mode under the influence of Reboux that is certain of success. There's not a trace of Empress in it—and smart women have been waiting for this change. The hats for the matron are called Gigolo and the young hat is Gigolette.

We present two of the Gigolo type, copies of Reboux's—one has an irregular brim with a crown that comes to a point near the back. Then a beret with the Gigolo folds and draping. The Gigolette that sits on the side of the head in an audacious manner.

Main Section, Fifth Floor.

Black Silks
$1.75 yd.

Black silk frocks are far and away the most important frocks in the wardrobe, and canton, satin and flat crepes fashion most of them. See sketch left: Vogue pattern No. S-3538.

The price belies the quality. When you have felt its softness, when you have worked with it and draped it into the moulded lines of this season's silhouette, you will realize the fine quality of these crepes is unusual at this price, $1.75 yard.

ITALY PLEDGES TO HELP GERMANY OVER ROCKY ROAD

Grandi Begins Conferences with Chancellor.

BERLIN, Oct. 25.—Foreign Minister Dino Grandi of Italy, arriving here as the emissary of Premier Mussolini, began a series of conferences with German officials today and pledged Italy's hand in "bringing about justice and equality for all."

At a dinner in the chancellery tonight he replied to an address by Chancellor Bruening by recalling the cordiality of the Italo-German meeting in Rome last summer.

"Be assured that we Italians admire the readiness with which the German people suffer sacrifices," he said, "and the manly virtues with which they are addressing themselves to the task of overcoming their present difficulties.

Offers Helping Hand.

"Italy has always fully appreciated the part Germany has played in the history of the world and knows she is an essential factor in our culture. Italy is free from prejudice, she offers her hand to all willing coöperators in bringing about justice and equality for all."

Herr Bruening toasted King Victor Emmanuel of Italy, Premier Mussolini, and the Italian nation and said he was glad to hear that il duce himself intended to come to Berlin later in the winter. Never before has direct intercourse between two responsible statesmen been more imperative, he said.

Sees Hindenburg Today.

"The German nation feels a bond of sympathy with all who are willing to bury the past," he said. "We admire the Italian nation with its youthful energy which is developing its rich resources. We discern the same indomitable will to live as we have here. That emboldens us to hope to find across the Alps a full understanding for our struggle against economic stress and our fight for freedom and equality."

The Italian visitor will have an audience with President von Hindenburg tomorrow at noon and will resume his conferences with Chancellor Bruening in the afternoon.

BULKLEY JOINS GLASS TO GUARD RESERVE BANKS

Fight Loosening Credit Structure.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 25.—[Special.]—Growing opposition to President Hoover's recent proposal to broaden the provisions of the federal reserve act pertaining to the eligibility of paper for rediscount was indicated today with the publication of correspondence between Senator Carter Glass [Dem., Va.] and Senator Robert J. Bulkley [Dem., O.]. Both are members of the senate committee on banking and currency, and Senator Glass is co-author of the federal reserve act and is now chairman of a special subcommittee studying possible revisions of the national banking laws.

CARTER GLASS.

The two Democratic senators, the correspondence reveals, are opposed to any program which would, as Senator Glass says, tend to "clutter up the federal reserve banks with speculative securities" and permit "stock and bond operators to ply their trade."

Glass Writes to Bulkley.

Six days after the night conference at which the President informed a chosen group of senators and representatives what he had in mind Senator Glass wrote to Senator Bulkley saying in part:

"It seems to me that another attempt is to be made to clutter up the federal reserve banks of the country with speculative securities and thus amplify the opportunities of stock and bond operators to ply their trade and to disturb the business of the country periodically as a result of their excesses.

"The greater part of the persistent talk for 'broadening the base for eligible paper' is not intended to help legitimate commerce, which has not been denied ample accommodations by the federal reserve banks. It seems rather to be a calculated effort to expand and to stimulate speculative transactions in unliquid or frozen securities. Doing this, as any well informed person should know, would endanger rather than strengthen the federal reserve system of the country."

To which Senator Bulkley replied that he was "opposed to any relaxation whatever in the principle involved in what is rediscountable at federal reserve banks."

If, as seemed possible, more credit was needed than could be furnished by the bankers' credit pool, rather than set up a government credit corporation, Senator Bulkley thought it better to extend the plan for further capitalizing the federal land banks. He proposed legislation which would enable the land banks to purchase or rediscount loans made on all forms of real estate, urban as well as rural.

His plan, he said, had been discussed with and approved by several bankers, and he wrote that he would not hesitate even were a federal appropriation of two billion dollars found necessary.

LOST! 22 Lbs. Of FAT

Well Known Battle Creek Woman Jubilant! Reduced Waist Four Inches—Limbs More Shapely—Feels Oh, So Light and Full of Pep!

Suppose you weighed 172 and your mirror constantly reminded you of a double chin, heavy arms and legs, large hips and bust.

And suppose this over-fat condition made you too heavy for your own feet—until you felt constantly all dragged out, stomach upset with gas and indigestion, and you were grouchy and irritable.

And then you tried one thing after another—and you're all ready to give up in despair.

Such was the dilemma of Mrs. Harold Tyler, 291 Elm st., Battle Creek, Mich. She read about Bonkora, the safe, natural way to take off excess poundage by cleansing wastes from the intestines and removing retained moisture from fatty tissues. But let her tell the story:

"I wanted to reduce badly, for I was far too heavy. I was nervous and irritable. I tried one reducing preparation after another, but got no results. They seemed only to increase my nervousness. Then I tried Bonkora, and the results certainly came fast. I lost 22 pounds of fat and 4 inches of my waist line—from 172 to 150 in a short time, without following any special diet."

You may not want to lose 22 pounds. But if you have excess fat you can lose it in the famous "3 easy stages" as shown in this picture. For the next week, before meals, take a little Bonkora, the new Battle Creek treatment, in half a glass of water. No need to starve. Eat as much as you want. The big secret is selecting for each meal the proper combination of foods that do not clog the system and turn to fat. An almost endless choice of appealing dishes, showing how to select the correct combination of foods you probably like best, furnished free.

Bonkora, the safe and effective method to reduce—recently perfected by a skilled chemist—contains only the choicest and most efficacious medicaments of Nature. No thyroid or other drug that may jeopardize your health.

Simply get a bottle of Bonkora, the new Battle Creek treatment, with free list of anti-fat food combinations, at Walgreen's today—unhealthy fat will quickly disappear and with it bloat, gas, and other stomach ills. You'll feel younger; yes, you'll look younger, with those bright eyes and that clear skin and stunning, youthful figure which only perfect health can impart.

GOVERNOR FINDS NO TIME TO HEAR OF HIGH HIGHWAY

Can't Reach Emmerson on Chicago Project.

BY HAL FOUST.

[Illinois Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 25.—[Special.] Gov. Emmerson is having difficulty in finding time to consider the proposal that the state should start construction on the west side elevated highway in Chicago this winter so as to furnish employment to from 10,000 to 20,000 men.

Since Friday, Charles M. Hayes, president of the Chicago Motor club; Sidney S. Gorham, chairman of the World's Fair traffic committee, and R. G. Tiffany, president of the Automobile Trade association, have been trying by long distance telephone and by telegraph to arrange an appointment with Gov. Emmerson, but they have been unsuccessful.

Today the governor was in a conference and could not be disturbed. Tuesday his excellency attended the football game at the University of Illinois. Today, the Sabbath is respected.

Fifth Has Been Reached.

The Chicagoans consider that a crisis has been reached. The governor is about to issue a call for a special session of the legislature, and the employment of from 10,000 to 20,000 men this winter depends upon whether the administration includes in the call a favorable consideration of the west side elevated highway.

The Chicagoans consider that it is a much greater crisis than a couple of months ago when 5,000 men were given set of jobs and $4,500,000 in city road construction was halted as a mitigation over the prevailing unrest. At that time Gov. Emmerson was in the north woods fishing.

Mr. Hayes wants to explain to the governor that the construction of the elevated highway will cost less than Chicago motorists are due in return for the $34,000,000 a year they pay to the state in gasoline tax and license fees. He wants to explain how construction can be started a few weeks after an appropriation is made, since the Chicago plan commission has had three years on preliminary surveys.

Life and Limb Involved.

Mr. Gorham wants to impress the administration with the desirability of getting as many sections as possible of the elevated highway in service during the World's Fair in 1933. He has statistics showing that the west side is the traffic congestion center of the city and that this congestion has contributed motor fatalities in the neighborhoods which would be relieved of most of the dangerous through traffic on their surface streets by the elevated highway.

Mr. Tiffany is armed with an argument that improved motor transportation is vital for the future prosperity of Chicago.

SINGER SILENT ON ENGAGEMENT TO ITALIAN DUKE

Renee Thornton of New York, operatic and concert singer and teacher, and Duke Fabio Carafa d'Andria, a member of the royal Italian household, are to announce their engagement soon, acording to reports among their friends.

Miss Thornton, wso is visiting in Chicago, said at her suite in the Drake hotel that she would make no statement about the engagement at this time, but did not deny that an understanding exists. She is the former wife of Richard Hageman, who was a conductor of the Chicago Civic Opera company and the Ravinia Opera company for several seasons, ending his connection in 1922.

HOOVER PLEADS FOR REAL PEACE AMONG NATIONS

Asks Churchmen to Help Disarm World.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 25.—[Special.]—Pausing with timely emphasis amid his discussions with Premier Laval, President Hoover this afternoon concluded a broadcast message to the Methodist Ecumenical congress, now meeting at Atlanta, Ga., by telling the churchmen how close to his heart was the problem of disarmament and how necessary is the creation of a world wide will to peace.

"May I close this brief message with a word upon a theme very close to my heart, and, I believe, equally close to yours," the President said. "I refer to peace among all men that dwell on the earth, to a future free from the horrors, the wrongs, and the results of wars between nations. It seems strange and incredible that after all the centuries of man's experience with war we still have to discuss it and to argue against it.

Progress at Snail's Pace.

"It seems even more strange that with all the crushing burdens resting upon every nation because of wars we still make progress against them at snail's pace. The nations groan under taxation, people in all lands suffer daily from economic depression, governments are perplexed—and yet we go on using incalculable sums in evident dread of those that may come upon us.

Referring to the troubles in which the world now finds itself, the President besought the attention of churches for a settlement of the problems of crime and lawlessness.

Urges Churches to Help.

"Governments have their normal limitations," said Mr. Hoover. "They must depend largely upon churches and schools to create, preserve and increase the spiritual and moral basis essential to the life of the states themselves. They must have the cooperation of bodies like yours, of all religious faiths alike, working in their proper sphere, in the making of necessary attitudes and the creation of essential human tempers, such as a keen, quick consciousness of human needs and a high sense of human values.

"And I am sure you will let me say that the churches in every land must never fail to help the governments to establish and maintain plain, simple righteousness."

Curtis Addresses Churchmen.

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 25.—(AP)—Attainment of universal peace through a return by the nations of the earth to fundamental religious concepts was visualized today by Vice President Charles Curtis in an address before the 6th ecumenical conference of Methodism.

Mr. Curtis said there was a "desperate urge and need for the nations to get back humbly" to the spirit of "love thy neighbor as thyself," and to create a sentiment of good will and forbearance leading to a fixed policy of arbitration of international differences.

The Vice President said the people generally accept arbitration in principle and that if questions involved in the world war had been arbitrated "they could have been settled without the resort to war with its cruelties and barbarities."

Mr. Hoover, he said, is a peace loving President and he told of his efforts to bring about understanding and accord.

Woman on Way to Church Killed by Street Car

Mrs. Marguerita Coane, 54 years old, 350 West 29th place, was fatally injured yesterday when she was struck by a surface lines car at 29th street and Wentworth avenue. She died a few minutes later, after the police had taken her to the Wesley Memorial hospital. Witnesses reported that Mrs. Coane, who was on her way to church, stepped in front of the car and was apparently unable to hear it approaching.

FIREMAN BURNED FIGHTING BLAZE DIES OF INJURIES

William Fitzgerald, 1931 Archer avenue, one of five firemen burned early yesterday when they were trapped in a blazing building at 2962 South Park way, died last night of his injuries in the Michael Reese hospital. Another fireman, Elmer Wolff, 1949 Irving Park boulevard, is in a critical condition at the hospital. The fire was caused by an explosion of a still in the building. The others injured, who were taken to their homes, are Capt. James Cotter, Charles Phillips, and Otis Loftus. All four injured firemen are members of squad 3, as was Fitzgerald.

Teeth 3 Shades Whiter in 3 Days!

Now there's absolutely no excuse for stained, yellow, discolored or decayed teeth or sore, spongy gums. For science has discovered the way to remove the cause of most tooth and gum troubles—the millions of germs that swarm into the mouth with every breath—and make teeth gleaming white. It's called the Kolynos Dry-Brush Technique.

Start using this technique—a half-inch of Kolynos on a dry brush. Overnight you'll note an improvement. In just 3 days your teeth will look whiter—fully 3 shades whiter. Gums will feel firmer and look healthier. Breath and taste will be clean and sweet. Kolynos is unique. The very moment it enters the mouth this highly concentrated dental cream becomes a refreshing FOAM which permits the use of a dry brush, thus making KOLYNOS 10 times more effective.

This penetrating FOAM gets into and cleans out every tiny pit, fissure and crevice. Kills millions of destructive mouth-germs, 190 million in the first 15 seconds. Erases tartar and stimulates the gums.

THUS TEETH ARE QUICKLY AND EASILY CLEANED AS THEY SHOULD BE CLEANED—RIGHT DOWN TO THE BEAUTIFUL NAKED WHITE ENAMEL WITHOUT INJURY.

For sound, white teeth and firm gums start the Kolynos Dry-Brush Technique. Buy a tube of KOLYNOS DENTAL CREAM.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 20 years, and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, just a healing, soothing vegetable laxative, safe and pleasant.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They help cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver—constipation, you should find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets.

Heart Attack Is Fatal to Hughes' Successor.

Beverly, Mass., Oct. 25.—(AP)—Roland W. Boyden, member of the permanent court of arbitration at The Hague, died suddenly today while attending services at the First Parish Unitarian church of Beverly. He was 68 years old.

Mr. Boyden, who only last August was appointed president of the arbitration tribunal under The Hague agreement of 1930, collapsed in his pew as services were beginning. He was removed to the vestibule, where he died, apparently the victim of a heart attack. He was pronounced dead when taken to the Beverly hospital.

With him as he died was Mrs. George Barton, a cousin. Mr. Boyden's death was wholly unexpected here, where it was generally believed his health was good.

Harvard Football Star.

Born in Beverly in 1863, he was educated at Harvard and won early distinction in baseball and football. After graduation he continued in amateur sports as a member of the Beacon nine of Boston and the Boston Athletic association gridiron team.

Admitted to the Massachusetts bar, he rose steadily in legal and banking circles in New England until, in 1917, he was called to Washington to join the legal staff of the United States food administrator.

He so distinguished himself during this period that President Wilson selected him to represent the United States on the original reparations commission. He served as unofficial delegate from April, 1920, until August, 1922.

Boyden attended the world finance conference in Brussels, and subsequently, when the league of nations considered restoring the financial status of Austria, he was offered the post of controller.

In 1924 Harvard university conferred on him the honorary degree of doctor of laws. Later he became president of the Boston Chamber of Commerce.

Took Hughes' Place.

In 1929 he served as an American delegate to the Institute of Pacific Relations in Kioto, Japan, and in 1930 he was appointed by President Hoover to be umpire of the German-American mixed claims commission, succeeding Judge Edwin Parker, who had died.

On April 15 of the same year he was designated a member of the permanent court of arbitration at The Hague, to take the place of Charles Evans Hughes, who had resigned to become chief justice of the United States supreme court.

J. S. CAPPER, WHO FOUNDED CHAIN OF STORES, DIES IN WEST

John Sheville Capper, founder and for many years head of the haberdashery firm of Capper & Capper, died yesterday in Pasadena, Cal. He retired from the company in 1927.

JOHN S. CAPPER.

Mr. Capper was born in Philadelphia in 1867. He started his working career as a cash boy in a department store. At the age of 20 he married. He pooled his savings to purchase a home, and with a loan secured from the property opened a men's furnishing store in the basement of the old First National bank building. That was in 1893, during the World's Fair year.

Mr. Capper established his first branch store seven years later and on his retirement branches were located in a number of cities.

Mr. Capper moved to Pasadena a year ago, but returned for a visit to the farm of his son, John Jr., at Star City, Ind., leaving there for the west coast less than two months ago. Surviving are his widow, Nellie, and four children, John Jr., Mrs. Margaret Beaver of Chicago, Howard Capper and Mrs. Marion Doud. Funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon in Pasadena.

Funeral Services Today for Rev. John R. Lathrop

Funeral services will be held today at Jamestown, N. Y., for the Rev. John R. T. Lathrop, D. D., 74 years old, a retired Methodist minister, who died on Saturday in the Presbyterian hospital here. He began his preaching as a circuit rider in the hill country of southern Indiana. He served for twelve years as a district superintendent in the Michigan Methodist conference. In 1925, Dr. Lathrop retired, completing fifty-two years as a preacher. After retirement he lived in Kalamazoo.

Mrs. Charlotte Ingersoll Funeral to Be Tomorrow

Beloit, Wis., Oct. 25.—[Special.]—Funeral services will be held here Tuesday afternoon for Mrs. Charlotte Rinewalt Ingersoll, 89 years old, who died on Saturday. She was the widow of Chalmers Ingersoll, former Beloit postmaster, and newspaper editor. Surviving Mrs. Ingersoll are two children, George B. Ingersoll of Beloit, and Mrs. Charles H. Morse of Lake Forest.

TRIES TO END LIFE WITH GUN.

George F. Hoffman, 50 years old, 6419 South Carpenter street, shot himself near the heart last night during a fit of despondency. He was taken to St. Bernard's hospital in a critical condition.

Ald. O'Grady in Hospital; Ill with Serious Cold

Ald. Thomas O'Grady [14th] was taken to the Mercy hospital yesterday because of a serious cold. Dr. Philip H. Kreuscher, after examining the alderman at the O'Grady home at 861 West 53d street, ordered him to the hospital. Ald. O'Grady was running a high temperature with the bronchial ailment, and Dr. Kreuscher feared more serious complications might develop.

Jennie Lucas, Resident Here 64 Years, Dies at 91

Mrs. Jennie F. Lucas, 91 years old, for the last six years a resident of the Old People's home, 4724 Vincennes avenue, died suddenly yesterday in the home. Mrs. Lucas, who was born in Nantucket, Mass., lived in Chicago for 64 years. Funeral services will be held from the home at 2 o'clock tomorrow.

ASK TEACHERS' PAY FROM SALE OF 1930 WARRANTS

James A. Meade, president of the Men Teachers' union, yesterday announced that he will ask enough of the proceeds of the proposed sale of $24,000,000 of 1930 tax anticipation warrants be employed to purchase 1931 school board tax anticipation wararnts to insure paying teachers and other school employes in full to Nov. 1. City Controller M. S. Szymczak is to confer with bankers today in an effort to dispose of the 1930 warrants.

Of the warrants about $7,000,000 1930 school certificates are held by the city. Under the plan to aid teachers officials propose to sell these by increasing the interest rate from 4 per cent to 6 per cent and purchase 1931 tax warrants with the proceeds, thus putting some cash in the school board treasury. It has been estimated that the $7,000,000 would pay teachers' and employes' salaries for April, May, and a part of June. The city also aims to sell $27,000,000 of its warrants.

Mr. Meade is to urge that a substantial portion of the city's share be turned over to purchase school warrants so as to place $18,000,000 in the school treasury, including the $7,000,000. This total would pay salaries to Nov. 1. Mr. Meade said such action would not work hardship on city employes, as the balance of the city's sale would leave sufficient money in the treasury of the city to meet all salaries to February, 1932.

Richard Smith, Veteran Gage Bros. Worker, Dead

Richard Smith, 76 years old, for sixty years an employe of Gage Bros. & Co., 18 South Michigan avenue, milliners, died yesterday in the Alexian Brothers hospital. He had been a patient in the hospital intermittently for the last five years suffering from hear trouble. His home address was listed as 2022 Indiana avenue. Mr. Smith was born in Rochester, N. Y. He came to Chicago when a boy and joined the Gage company on its organization serving in later years as an usher.

Soldier Under Wallace in Civil War Dies at 86

Bloomington, Ill., Oct. 25.—(AP)—George W. Robinson, 86, of Crawfordsville, Ind., who served under Gen. Lew Wallace in the civil war, died at the home of his daughter today. He will be buried in Crawfordsville.

CREW OF SUNKEN RUSSIAN SUB IS REPORTED SAVED

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Oct. 25.—(AP)—The Finnish radio station at Viipuri reported today that the entire crew of an unidentified Russian submarine which was reported in collision yesterday with a German freighter in the Gulf of Finland had been rescued.

The station made repeated but futile efforts to reestablish communication with the freighter Gratia. It was understood, however, that the Gratia was at Kronstadt, with its bow dented and the fore part of the ship filled with water.

Russia Denies the Sinking.

MOSCOW, Oct. 25.—(AP)—The Tass News agency today denied published reports that an unidentified Russian submarine had sunk in the Gulf of Finland yesterday with its entire crew. Tass said that the submarine was only slightly damaged and had returned to Kronstadt, while the German vessel put back into Leningrad after springing a leak. Both proceeded into port under their own power, the agency said, and neither was in need of much repair.

Arthur Henderson, Leader of British Labor Party, Ill

LONDON, Oct. 25.—Arthur Henderson, leader of the Labor party, was suddenly taken ill at Burnley tonight, and was forbidden by his doctor to leave his bed.

TRAFFIC SURVEY IN CHICAGO AREA TO START TODAY

Vehicular traffic in Chicago and within a fifty mile radius will be studied jointly this week by the city and the state division of highways to obtain information for the improvement of traffic conditions. In the survey, which will begin this morning, particular attention will be paid to the origin and destination of the traffic.

Traffic policemen will be detailed at various times during the week to make observations for the study at 42 street intersections in the city. These points are arranged in two circuits, one of which follows Chicago avenue from the lake to Halsted street, Halsted street to Roosevelt road and Roosevelt road to the lake.

An outer circuit runs along the boulevard system, roughly following Diversey parkway, Sacramento boulevard, and Hyde Park boulevard.

Six of the intersections where policemen today will be asking motorists where they came from and where they are going, are Chicago and Michigan avenues, Chicago avenue and La Salle street, Halsted street and Chicago avenue, Milwaukee and Grand avenues, and Halsted street and Washington boulevard.

The state observations will be made at 123 points along the city limits and also along an outer circuit formed by Illinois route 20 at the north and route 22 on the west and south.

George Lammert, Engineer, Dies at 27; Ill a Month

George Cramton Lammert, 27 years old, a mechanical engineer, died yesterday after a month's illness in the West Suburban hospital, Oak Park. He lived at 745 North Grove avenue, Oak Park. Mr. Lammert was associated with his father, Ferdinand E. Lammert, in the engraving and engineering business of Lammert & Mann at 221 North Wood street. Surviving Mr. Lammert are his widow, an infant daughter, Babara; his parents, and a sister and a brother.

Don Marquis' Daughter Dies, Pneumonia Victim

BELL'S COUNSEL TO ASK CHANGE OF VENUE TODAY

The sanity trial of Frank Bell, murderer of Christ Patras, restaurant owner, is to open today before Judge James J. Kelly in the Criminal court.

Attorney Ralph Sharp, who obtained a last minute stay of execution for Bell by filing the insanity petition, announced he will seek a change of venue.

Dr. Orlando F. Scott has withdrawn from participation in the hearing. In making his announcement that doctor criticized Attorney Sharp for agreeing to allow state alienists to examine Bell. Drs. Harold Hurlburt and James Whitney Hall, who were to examine Bell, according to Attorney Sharp, have said their names were used without authority. No defense alienists have examined Bell.

BARBECUE MAN KILLS ROBBER.

Lucius Young, colored owner of a barbecue stand at 610 East 49th street, shot and killed Harold Farmer, 25 years old, a Negro, when Farmer and two companions tried to hold up the stand early yesterday.

GANG FIRES ON HOME OF PERU'S NEW PRESIDENT

LIMA, Peru, Oct. 25.—(AP)—Lieut. Col. Luis M. Sanchez Cerro, who is believed to have been elected president of Peru on the basis of unofficial returns, was the object of a pistol attack today by political enemies.

A band of men in three motor cars fired on his house as they passed, and the residents returned the fire. One of the cars stopped and its occupants engaged in a fist fight with Sanchez Cerro's bodyguard. They were badly battered. The attackers were handed over to police and a guard was thrown around the house.

The provisional government issued a manifesto calling on all elements to cooperate in maintaining order so that the nation could resume constitutional life in accordance with the people's wishes as expressed at the polls. Virtually complete returns gave Sanchez Cerro 113,249 votes, to 35,538 for his nearest opponent, more than the necessary plurality.

SEIZED AS SHOOTING SUSPECT.

Floyd Emery, 42 years old, 26 East Harrison street, who has been sought since Sept. 19 on the charge that he shot Sam Fiser, waiter in a restaurant at 14 South Halsted street, in the arm following an argument, was arrested yesterday.

When Muscles HURT

Here's good news for everyone who has rheumatism, sciatica, lumbago, neuralgia or any ill or sore muscles and joints. Science has found a new way to end muscular troubles. Just a simple, harmless liquid applied directly to the affected muscle or joint—yet it ends all pain in from 7 to 10 minutes.

Muscletone acts by absorption. Nothing is taken internally. There is nothing to affect stomach or heart. But pain stops completely—almost instantly. The medical principle behind Muscletone is to neutralize accumulated toxins through the skin and effect quick restoration of congested tissues. Almost a million people have found relief. All good druggists have MUSCLETONE for $1.00.

Girl's Views of War Told in This Book

Heroine Becomes Nurse in German Army.

"Tabris Becomes a Soldier," by Adrienne Thomas. [Little, Brown & Co.]

THIS novel has caused a sensation in Germany, within a few weeks selling a hundred thousand copies there. For years it has been said the market for war books is exhausted—ever since the publication of "All Quiet on the Western Front." But the sale of this woman's novel about the war only goes to show there is a market for war novels of real merit.

ADRIENNE THOMAS.

A comparison with "All Quiet on the Western Front" is inevitable on account of their origin and similar exception in their native land. Remarque's book is, to many of its good million readers, the last word on the war from the man's point of view. Its technical detail and structural simplicity and restraint it has not since been surpassed in its particular field.

The same thing can be said for "Tabris Becomes a Soldier." It reveals a woman's attitude on war. The two books differ most in the extent of the tragedy which they relate. For instance, Miss Thomas evades one of the major tragedies—the horror of readjustment after the war is over—by killing her two main characters perhaps. Remarque's bitterness finds expression in the continued existence, after hostilities are over, of his hero.

There is a peculiarly moving and beautiful quality to "Katrin Becomes a Soldier." With no exaggeration or undue emphasis, the author instills into her narrative a quiet and delicate poetry that is the very essence of truth.

The first half of "Katrin Becomes a Soldier" takes up the cultural and emotional background of a group of young people living in Metz. These boys and girls, all young and eager, full of ideals and visions, love and quarrel, work and play as most children do the world over. Katrin, a beautiful, sensitive, precocious Jewess, falls in love with Lucien, restless with youth, eager to paint and to be happy. In our descends suddenly upon them and separates the two lovers. Lucien finds at first an outlet for his thwarted energy in the propaganda of war. He believes in courage and patriotism and in the essential rightness of his country. Slowly as the front wears on his illusions are shattered and his cynicism replaces his youthful optimism. He is already spiritually dead before he dies in battle.

Katrin serves in a soup kitchen for a long time before she becomes a nurse. She has never believed in war and her services only disillusion her further. Death, disease, and sorrow are her daily fare. Her soul slowly sinks into a numb acceptance of things while her body and mind must be active and occupied every minute to stay alive. But she, like her lover, must long before she actually succumbs to overwork to pneumonia. Both of these children, if they had lived, would have been misfits in society—a tragedy more real than that of final physical death.

The descriptions of the air raids on Katrin's city, of the wounded who come to her kitchen, of the whole mad, frantic, ghastly atmosphere of war are vivid and unflinching. Nevertheless they are not as significant as the analyses of her own mind and her emotional reactions to what she sees and does every day. As the story progresses we watch the growing maturity of the girl, quiet with a wisdom much beyond her actual years. There are five years of her life described in the novel.

Over the last two or three years there is thrown a veil of sadness so thick that the personality of the girl is lost in a figure that the war slowly destroys. Her native joy, vivid sensuousness and real delight in being alive are lost in a monotone of grief.

There is no moral degeneration in Katrin's conception of futility. She remains courageous and gentle and thoughtful to the end. Where her ideology reveals itself is in her indifference to life, to its meaning and its ends. And this indifference is as terrible as the more obvious emotional and spiritual decadence we usually associate with the sensitive war generation.

The fine technical accomplishment of this novel is in the author's use of the diary form. We are never once bored, nor do we feel as if there are omissions. By selection and emphasis, by implication and restraint, but most of all by implication, the author says all she wants to say without a superfluous word. This is not by any means only a woman's book. Any one can read it because the experiences are universal, but women will be especially glad to have novelized woman's present attitude towards war.

Again like "All Quiet on the Western Front," the story of "Katrin Becomes a Soldier" is powerful pacifistic propaganda, and the book is devastating in its pathos, its tenderness, and its despair.

Good Morning!

Shades of Mrs. Henry Wood and Laura Jean Libbey! You can just hear them whisper of "Devotion." "Why, THAT'S the sort of story I used to write!"

Pamela Wynne's novel, "A Little Flat in the Temple" [that could be taken two ways] is strikingly reminiscent of the Libbey and Wood heartbeaters of an earlier day. The picture adaptation might have seemed too lushly sentimental were it not graced with such a distinguished cast. As stands, here is a charming movie, delightfully staged and costumed and subtly appealing because of astute character delineations.

The story's locale is London, where Shirley, daughter of globe-trotting parents, decides to remain in town and work rather than go a-ROMEing with her papa and mama.

So, for reasons you'll learn, this fair haired darling dons a dark wig and becomes governess to the 5 year old son [the dearest little boy with the quaintest little old English accent!] of a busy and domestically tried lawyer. With Mr. Trent never DREAMING that this modest and unprepossessing young woman is the daughter of his friend Mortimer, to whom he had confided his need of some one to look after the lad.

Far be it from me to tell you what occurs when blond hair peeps from beneath wig, when dipsomaniac wife returns to sneer and jeer, when amorous artist complicates matters!

The story isn't one, two, three with "Holiday," but that beautiful creature Ann Harding gives a beautiful performance. Her delicate humor and soft voice with the little breathless flutter in it are delightful. Leslie Howard, Robert Williams, Allison Skipworth, Louise Closser Hale et al., are just great. Direction is unusually fine.

And so, "Devotion" becomes a movie to jot down as "worth seeing."

"GET-RICH-QUICK WALLINGFORD."

Produced by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.
Directed by Sam Wood.
Presented at the Chicago theater.

THE CAST.

Wallingford.....William Haines
Schnozzle.....Jimmy Durante
Blackie Daw.....Ernest Torrence
Dorothy.....Leila Hyams
McGonigal.....Guy Kibbee
Charles Harper.....Hale Hamilton
Mr. Tuttle.....Robert McWade
Mrs. Layton.....Clara Blandick
Mr. Layton.....Walter Walker

Young Mr. Haines, who has been doing the crab stride in pictures lately, proves in this revamped version of the Wallingford tales by George Randolph Chester that he's not a crustacean after all. As a genial, agile-brained fleecer he's a real, likable human being—SO likable that you gladly forget all you've been holding against him and welcome him back into your good graces with open arms. He in no way, of course, saves as to disposition, resembles the florid, portly Wallingford of Mr. Chester's stories, but does that matter?

Mr. Haines is discovered as a youthful crook who is "putty in the hands of a girl." He has two pals, who do all they can to keep him from the straight and narrow, only to discover to their discomfiture and amazement that they're traveling that way themselves. And all because young Mr. Wallingford loves a damsel who—NEVER MIND . . .!

Ernest Torrence qualifies amusingly as long, lank, devoted, unmoral Blackie Daw. Jimmy "Schnozzle" Durante is funny. Leila Hyams makes the girl in the case sweet but not too sugary, and other rôles are satisfactorily taken care of. The director was up on his toes all of the time.

Official Contract

By Charles True Adams.

(International bridge authority; author of "Official Contract at Sight.")

The Squeeze Play.

Throwing away sound values under pressure has become a habit for many people who once turned to stock market reports in happy anticipation. Most of us must look to bridge for that happy sensation of being the squeezer and not the squeezee.

Yesterday's hand was played by Milton C. Work with the late Wilbur C. Whitehead. They were playing auction.

The play, given at the end of this article, includes a very pretty squeeze, but today we are concerned with the modern contract bidding of this hand:

NORTH.
♥—J,2
♦—A,J,7,3,2
♣—7,3

WEST	EAST
♠—Q,J,10,4	♠—7,6,3
♥—9,8	♥—7,6,5
♦—K,10,8,4	♦—Q,9,5
♣—7,6,2	♣—K,Q,10,9

SOUTH.
♠—A,K
♥—A,K,Q,10,4,3
♣—A,8,5,4

South, as dealer, should open with a bid of three hearts. Under the Official system, an original suit bid of three is a game demand bid requiring a response from partner. It is made with nine probable tricks.

South holds six high card tricks and three low card tricks, making nine in all. West passes. North, not holding as much as normal support in hearts, would answer his partner's game demand bid in diamonds, provided that it was not necessary to raise the size of the declaration. In other words, if his partner had bid three clubs in place of three hearts, North would have answered with a bid of three diamonds, since he holds a biddable five card suit and the hand contains one high card trick. However, when it is necessary in taking out partner's game demand to raise the size of the declaration (as with a bid of four diamonds over three hearts), then the hand must contain one and one-half high card tricks. Without this holding, the minimum response of three no trump must be made. Since North holds but one high card trick, he should give the minimum response of three no trump. East passes.

South, not wishing to play no trump with a singleton diamond and but one stop in clubs, and having a rebid in hearts, should bid four hearts. West, of course, passes. North is now perfectly content to play four hearts, since he knows by South's rebid that South holds either a very strong five or a good six card heart suit. Since North holds the ♥ J-2, the suit should play well if South holds six and fairly well if South holds a strong five.

The play [heavy type indicates hand taking trick]:

PLAY-A-PROBLEM: SOLITAIRE OR PARTNERS

Play this hand tonight at your bridge game. Keep a record of the bid and play in the spaces provided. Numbers in the bidding squares are for successive rounds. Check your results with tomorrow's answer.

To play "Solitaire": Record the bids you think each hand would make in the bidding squares. After the final declaration has been made start the play, leading from the hand at declarer's left. As you play each card, cross it off of the diagram and record it in the proper square, as S. 3, H. K, etc. In the last column indicate the hand which won the round and lead from that hand on the next round.

Finds Education by Films Aids Economy Plan

Holds Pupils Learn Rapidly by Visual Method.

Visual education as developed in the Chicago public schools by Dudley Grant Hays in more than a quarter of a century holds great possibilities for economy in education, according to Paul G. Edwards, recently appointed director of the department. The conclusion is based on the results of a national survey made by Prof. Frank Nugent Freeman of the University of Chicago and other educational psychologists which demonstrated that the use of educational films and lantern slides increased teaching efficiency 24 per cent.

Thus it is pointed out, if children can learn 24 per cent more efficiently with the aid of visual methods, the period of study may be shortened without detriment. Authorities on education are agreed that the most feasible method of reducing educational costs in a complex system lies in putting the usual eight year course into six years.

In the Chicago schools visual instruction is given from the first grade through the twelfth. There are in each school between 600 and 1,000 lantern slides on basic subjects. Last year an additional 750,000 slides were circulated from the central bureau. At the laboratory teachers are taught to make slides required for special purposes, such as outline maps. In many instances, according to Mr. Edwards, the cheap slides are made to replace more expensive equipment. There are 150 portable motion picture projectors in the schools and about 100 educational films are circulated daily.

The equipment ranges from slide sets of the "Three Little Pigs" for primary children to films explaining the intricacies of gasoline engines. The annual cost was budgeted last year at $65,000, making it very inexpensive, according to Mr. Edwards, considering the variety and extent of the work.

American education week is to be observed beginning today, it was announced by Supt. William J. Bogan. "The purpose," said Mr. Bogan, "is to help the parents and the public to understand the school, its work and problems. Without that understanding, no real progress can be made in education."

THE STAGE

"THE BLUE GHOST."

A farcical melodrama by Bernard J. McOwen and J. F. Rieverts; given at the Playhouse Oct. 25, 1931, under the management of Cosmopolitan Productions, Inc.

THE CAST.

Dr. DuFormer.....Bernard J. McOwen
Mr. Gray.....Leslie King
Jasper.....Nate Busby
Inspector Wise.....Allan Franklin
Richard Hunt.....Richard Bowler
Florence Waller.....Joan Winters
The Stranger.....Charles Ward

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

"THE BLUE GHOST," which came to the Playhouse last night, is one of those hugger-mugger shows called "mystery melodramas," which are supposed to afford lively entertainment to defective children and neurotic women who love to screech. It is an unashamed goulash of the plots of its numerous predecessors; its borrowings begin with "The Bat" of fifteen years ago and run straight down the list of "mysteries" until they reach last winter's "The Ninth Guest."

This daffydill of drama seeks to outdo its rivals, however, by presenting for comic relief the loudest and liveliest colored servitor that was ever frightened into conniption fits. This Jasper, acted by Nate Busby, establishes a world's record in howls, spasms, blubberings, groans, gurgles, jumps, gyrations, and epilepsies. If I had ambitions to own a side show at the Century of Progress exhibition, I would buy the rights to Jasper, as acted by Mr. Busby, and would establish him in a crazy house under the title of "Walla Walla, the Wild Man from Whooperup." There I would feed snakes to Jasper and charge 10 cents a look, and make my fortune. For Jasper, in his own weird way, is a wonder.

When I crept away from "The Blue Ghost," hoping that no one would dare to tell me how the plot ended, the master mind of crime, assisted by the Phantom of the Opera, was preparing to slip Jasper the poisoned wine. But I felt sure that no lethal draft would quiet him. The house was wired for the explosion of a carload of T. N. T., but I was confident that this cataclysm would not stop Jasper's yawping. The only getaway was a trick tunnel that dropped fugitives down a lofty cliff, but I knew that if Jasper took that dizzy leap he would bounce right back again.

"The Blue Ghost" is acted as it should be, for the fearless author, Mr. McOwen, is prominent in the cast and doubtless sees to it that none of his subtle points are neglected. Mr. McOwen, appearing as a scientific fiend in human form, wears a medical beard which prevents me from discovering what a man who writes a "mystery melodrama" really looks like. I can only testify that he seems quite normal, and deports himself like a member of the actors' union in good standing.

Joan Winter, who was the heroine of "Apron Strings" a few months back, is the good looking girl of the proceedings. She plays a newspaper woman who talks back pertly to the woman who talks back pertly to the "O, yeah?" detective, and is whisked off and on stage so often by hobgoblins that she gives the impression of being twins.

The statistics of "The Blue Ghost" follow: Mysterious clutching arms, 15; spooks, apparitions and vampires, 10; Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde scenes, 7; lights turned out, 35 times; secret service man, 1; yards gained by plot, 0; yards gained by Jasper, 435.

Charms Against Witches, as Used by Yankees, Shown

Well known loop stars were guests yesterday of the third Chicago Antiques exposition now being held at the Drake hotel. A varied collection of objects which delight the collector are on display, among them a fireside stool used by Charles Dickens, English novelist, at his Gads Hill home. An original Chippendale desk, fan portrait, and other articles from the home of Gen. Robert E. Lee also may be seen. Old witch balls of blown glass, hung from mantels by American colonists to ward off evil spirits, are included in the exhibition.

Child Welfare Experts Meet Here This Week

Will Plan for Carrying Out Chicago Program.

For two days this week Chicago will be the meeting place for authorities on child welfare, national and local, for extensive discussions of ways to make life healthier and happier for the younger generation. Friday and Saturday will be devoted to the sessions of the regional White House conference on child health and protection at the Palmer house. Superintendent of Schools William J. Bogan is chairman.

Secretary of the Interior Ray Lyman Wilbur, who has called the gathering to put into operation the recommendations made at the President's White House conference of 1929-'30, probably will head the list of speakers.

Notables who are due to speak include Dr. H. E. Barnard, Washington, head of the conference; Miss Grace Abbott and Miss Julia Lathrop, respectively present and past head of the Children's bureau; Miss Jane Addams, Miss Sophinisba Breckenridge; Gov. Emmerson, Mayor Cermak, Dr. Herman N. Bundesen; Prof. John Dewey, Dr. Charles H. Judd, and Dr. E. C. Lindeman of the New York School of Social Research; Dr. W. A. Evans, health editor of THE TRIBUNE, and numerous others.

Under the children's charter drawn up at the original national conference, nineteen points are set forth as necessary to guarantee to any child the right to grow up in a family with adequate living standards, and with the most auspicious educational, moral and physical training for his future life.

At this week's gathering the emphasis will be placed on inauguration of this program in the Chicago region. National, state, county, and city officials will participate in shaping the schedule in an effort to provide the greatest opportunity for every child.

Infantile Paralysis Is Rare in Chicago, Dr. Bundesen Says

Of the 450 cases of infantile paralysis reported in Illinois up to Oct. 5, this year, only 100 occurred in Chicago, Health Commissioner Bundesen stated yesterday. This means, he said, that Chicago with a population approximately as large as the rest of the state had less than 30 per cent of the number of cases in the downstate area.

"Chicago is fortunate in having had relatively few cases when contrasted with the prevalence of infantile paralysis in New York City," said Dr. Bundesen, "where 891 cases and 70 deaths occurred in a single week. Chicago has had fewer cases so far this year than for the corresponding period in 1930. At this time last year 148 cases had been reported, but this year only 131."

Dr. Bundesen predicted that inasmuch as infantile paralysis has never been at its height in Chicago during November, the disease will decrease next month, and still further in December.

Relief Outlook Brightens for Fund Raisers

Charites Aid 43,901 Families in September.

While no announcements were forthcoming yesterday of additional gifts to the Joint Emergency Relief Fund, prospects for this week are bright, in view of the fact that reports are due from the trades, industries, and professions group chairmen, and also from the women's and the city-wide divisions.

Statistics proving the vast need to be met by the five major agencies participating in the drive were submitted yesterday to officials of the fund, showing the steady increase in the number of families applying to these agencies for relief. All records for such appeals have been broken by the September figures, with indications that the trend will be steadily upwards as cold weather advances.

In September 43,901 families received aid from these principal charitable groups, the returns show. This compares with 8,684 families in September, 1930. The United Charities, Catholic Charities, Salvation Army, and American Red Cross records are included in the compilation.

January	9,755	34,966
February	9,457	36,966
March	9,119	41,451
April	9,368	37,989
May	9,206	33,927
June	9,361	34,328
July	9,751	38,841
August	9,778	36,903
September	8,684	43,901

"These reports indicate that the need for relief today is even greater than it was last winter," declared Edward L. Ryerson Jr., president of the Joint Emergency Relief Fund. "We are coördinating the work of the agencies so that there is no duplication of relief and little delay in the administration of relief. The relief agencies are faced with a tremendous task, unequaled in Chicago's history, and the people of Chicago and Cook county must support them to the utmost in helping them to meet this emergency."

Einstein Evolves New Theory, May Tell Details in California

New York, Oct. 25.—[Special.]—Preliminary announcement was made today by the Josiah Macy Jr. Foundation, which last year created a fellowship to provide a competent collaborator to Dr. Einstein in his research work, that Einstein and Dr. Walter Mayer, his assistant, have a unified field theory. According to that there is only a single background to all material activity.

Previously a material object commonly was conceived as existing in space, time, a gravitational field, and an electromagnetic field, each object thus having four different backgrounds. But Einstein's theory of relativity amalgamated space and time into one, space-time, while the general theory of relativity, with its Reimannian geometry, further absorbed the gravitational field into space-time. Thus Einstein reduced three of the four backgrounds to one.

Einstein's newer unified field theory goes a step further by including the electromagnetic field in the synthesis.

Details of Einstein's new theory will be published in the near future, probably in Pasadena. His preliminary announcement is a brief statmenet in general of the mathematical lines of procedure followed by him and Dr. Mayer.

Instead of the theory of distant parallelism Einstein, with Dr. Mayer, has worked out a new unitary field theory on new mathematical concepts based on the theory of Theodore Kaluza, promulgated in 1921. That Einstein formerly had regarded as "not acceptable."

Kaluza's theory rests on the assumption that the physical space-time is five-dimensional. He thus was able to obtain field laws which agree in first approximation to the known field laws of both electricity and gravitation.

Einstein objected to a fifth dimension, believing it was less well supported than the other four dimensions.

The new theory, Prof. Einstein says, "formally approximates Kaluza's theory without being exposed to that objection. This was done, he adds, "by the introduction of an entirely new mathematical conception."

Ithaca Pastors Honor the Marrying Parson, Aged 80

Ithaca, N. Y., Oct. 25.—(AP)—Ithaca churches joined today in observing the thirty-seventh anniversary of the Congregational pastorate of the Rev. B. Frank Tobey, known as the "marrying pastor." He acquired the title by performing the wedding ceremony for 1,000 persons during his ministry.

"That's enough couples to fill a large village," the 80 year old man reflected.

Mr. Tobey, who was born in Gardiner, Me., expressed faith in the younger generation. "I've buried such multitudes," he said, "that it seems the whole older generation must be gone."

Mr. Tobey remained in his church at Danby to conduct an anniversary service.

Romakoff, in Song Recital, Merits Praise

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Musical events were scarce in number yesterday, but pleasant in quality. Among them is to be counted the Chicago debut of Vasily Romakoff, Russian baritone, in a song recital at the Playhouse. It is not entirely a meaningless repetition to say that his voice is Russian in character, for the Russian baritone is as typical in quality as the Italian, or German, or French.

Not only that, but is a good voice, perhaps not as young as it once was, but resonant and well trained. Unfortunately for some of us, the Russian tongue is not a language of frequent circulation in song recitals, and three-fourths of Mr. Romakoff's program was in Russian. One could catch an occasional "notch" and "lublu," words apparently as necessary in Russian song lore as "andiam" and "mai piu" are in Italian, but they were hardly enough to project the full meaning, especially in such places as Mr. Romakoff grew dramatic, which he did at times with a good deal of manner.

Still, there was enough to discover an enjoyable and intelligently sung recital. There were arias from "Prince Igor," "Herodiade," and "Boris Godunoff"; there were songs by Beethoven and Brahms as well as an unrecognized number by Verdi, and a full group of fairly modern nonoperatic Russian.

An unusual combination of instruments, two violins, not as solos but as an ensemble, was presented by the Civic theater by Gaylord Browne and Gibson Walters, and it was as agreeable as unusual. With Gertrude Krieg, an excellent artist, at the piano, there was music in the ancient, aristocratic vein by Corelli and Haydn, modern works by Goossens, Honegger, and Juon, and a complete suite by Moszkowski.

Good tone, exact rhythm, and an accurate feeling for what makes good ensemble were the distinguishing points of these artists. They are worth hearing repeatedly for two reasons. They have tapped a vein of rarely heard music, and they present it like first class musicians.

The United German Male choruses of Chicago celebrated their golden jubilee last night in rather impressive style. Founded in 1881, on the 25th of October, 1931, some 750 singers banked themselves on the stage of the Civic Opera house and lifted up their voices in praise of German song and German art.

Karl Recksch was the conductor, a man of incisive, authoritative beat whether the music happened to be orchestral or choral. For the program was not confined to chorus singing. About sixty members of the Chicago Symphony orchestra played the overture to "Tannhäuser," the prelude to "Hansel and Gretel," and other works. Helen Freund, soprano, created great enthusiasm for her solo performance of "Caro Nome" from "Rigoletto" and her later appearances with the chorus. Nesta Smith, violinist, played the first movement of the Beethoven Concerto.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., Oct. 25.—[Special.]—President and Mrs. Hoover took advantage of the gorgeous autumn afternoon and walked out around the ellipse south of the White House which was built by Gen. U. S. Grant when he was President and which was known for many years facetiously as Gen. Grant's race track. Many years ago it was the one spot where Washingtonians could run their horses at unlimited speed and without danger to pedestrians. Mlle. Laval was the guest of honor at dinner and at a dance following given last night by the undersecretary of state and Mrs. William R. Castle Jr. Mrs. Henry L. Stimson entertained a number of guests at luncheon today to meet Mlle. Laval. Mrs. J. Hamilton Lewis, wife of the new senator from Illinois, is at the Mayflower.

Go Lightly If You'd Gain Subtle Effects in Use of Perfumes

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

It's no secret, though it's been recently advanced as one by the perfume authorities, that women are more skilled in the purchase of perfumes than in their application.

Women's noses tell them what smells good in the bottle, but the same perfume organ fails noticeably in just how to get the most effective results. Women do know, of course, that the most subtle effects are not gained by dousing clothing, the back of the ear sector, or the hanky with scent. But many of them aren't so sure how to achieve that lure which must hint a mysterious flower influence—not advertise it loudly.

"Go lightly" is the slogan to be hung up over the row of perfume bottles on the dressing table.

In case you don't like slogans hanging over your dressing table, then a good atomizer is your best bet. It's the best bet anyway. It's not only the best way to save your perfume from the reckless waste involved in dousing skin or garment, but the atomizer answers the perfume style calling for a delicate diffusion of your favorite odor. Just a fine mist from one of the clever little sprayers, and you're sure to be neatly and alluringly scented for the big date or lesser.

Do you know that your lingerie perfumed several days before it is worn has a more tantalizing, intriguing scent than if the perfume is applied after one has donned her underthings? It has.

Pretty soon, we gather, it won't be a question of "What perfume is that you are wearing?" [an impudent question, by the way]. The question will be: "How do you manage that delicate, subtle effect with your perfume?" The same women probably will not resent the latter question as they resent the former. But the same rude ones, among us, or untrained ones, shall I say, will keep on inquiring point blank, disregarding the fact that certain women choose to be as reticent about their perfume brand as about their latest beau catch. Their privilege, too. If a woman finds a scent that she adopts as her own, maybe a mixture of her own inspiration, it's her secret and should be respected as such until she tells that secret to the one person to whom secrets are usually revealed.

Wise Mother Never Lets Her Children Think Her Faultless

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

A mother was half apologizing, half explaining to her child. She had had a cold, and had been extra busy and worried, and altogether felt impatient and easily irritated.

Her young daughter of 12 was a little out of sorts, too, irritable and touchy. The result was anything but happy and the mother, partly to help her child and partly because she was so disgusted with herself, began to half explain and half apologize.

"We're having rather a hard time, these days, aren't we? You know, I haven't been feeling very well for three or four days and for some reason I don't seem to have any patience, at all, and it makes me so provoked at myself." Here her daughter interrupted.

"But I've been a pest, mother. I don't know why I've been so awful."

"Well, that shouldn't make me fussy with you. I'm a mother and I'm supposed to act differently from a little girl. I knew I just ought never to let my own feelings make me impatient to you—I know I ought never to be irritable and cross with you, no matter how I feel."

Her daughter looked up, serious eyed, and—"O, mummie, then you'd be a freak!" she said.

Well, that's wholesome, isn't it? For a child to recognize her mother as just another human being who has difficult moments, too, is good. Much better than the perfect parent on a pedestal, much more approachable, much more serviceable, as we might say.

Nor does that mean any less love or respect. The child in this incident quite adores her mother—and has a real respect and considerateness toward her. Don't try to make your child think you're perfect, and don't be afraid to explain or apologize—though that, too, is one more thing that has to be done with judgment, depending on the circumstances and the age of the child.

Field Museum Now Displays Gases Found in the Air

Visitors to the Field museum may now see the various gases in the atmosphere which they breathe. The museum opened an exhibit yesterday in which the gases, separated and purified, are contained in tubes which are lighted in various brilliant colors of the characteristic spectrum of each by the passage of high frequency currents.

The gases, eight in number, are shown in the order of their quantity in the atmosphere. They are nitrogen, oxygen, argon, hydrogen, neon, helium, krypton, and xenon.

Previous to 1894, it was pointed out by Dr. Oliver C. Farrington, curator of geology of the museum, who arranged the exhibit, scientists considered that the atmosphere consisted of about four-fifths nitrogen, one-fifth oxygen, a small percentage of carbonic acid gas and traces of water vapor, hydrogen and ammonia.

In later years five other gases were isolated, argon being found to exist to the extent of about one per cent of the atmosphere by volume, neon one part in 80,000, helium about one part in 250,000, krypton one part in two million, and xenon one part in seventeen million.

The Marriage Racket

By VINA DELMAR

SYNOPSIS.

Jane Corbin, while playing a week's vaudeville engagement in Thrace, an upstate New York town, is showered with invitations by Bill Fitzroy, friend of her planet, and fellow Chicagoan, a widower friend of Bill's. Wallace asks Irma to be his wife. Bill's attentions to her is of a different nature. Irma marries Wallace and settles down to a dull life with him. Wallace has a young daughter, Mildred, who has grown up under the supervision of her Aunt Tessie. A son is born to Irma. He becomes the center of Wallace and Irma go on a trip to Europe. Irma spoils their pleasure by her worry over the baby. They meet Russell Byrons, a wealthy bachelor of New York, through friends from the boat. He has a cabin on a boat sailing in two weeks which Irma persuades him to sell to Wallace. Back in Thrace they find the baby sick, and Mildred planning a cosmetic marriage with Scott Avery. Wallace takes Mildred out of school and appoints Irma to guard her. Mildred eludes her guard and elopes with Scott. Wallace accuses Irma of marrying Mildred off to be rid of her. They quarrel and next morning Irma decides to leave Wallace. She calls on Bill.

INSTALLMENT XXXI.

THE PARTING OF THE WAYS.

Bill whistled softly. "Don't tell me, Irma, that Wallace has another lady friend dead."

"No, he hasn't another lady. He doesn't even want the one he's got."

"But, you didn't drag me out of bed to tell me about a pre-breakfast spat, did you?"

"Lord, no. This is the real stuff, Bill. He and I are as finished as hell."

"No feeling. How come?"

"Well, Mildred ran off yesterday and got married. Wallace thinks I encouraged her running away in order to get rid of her."

"O." Bill wrinkled his brow and considered the matter. "Didn't you?" he asked after a time.

He knew he was thinking of the Halloween party which Mildred had planned and which had not come off as per schedule.

"No, I didn't, Bill. I told Wallace that I didn't but he wouldn't believe me. I think you will, however. You see I'm fond of Mildred."

"O, I believe you didn't if you say you didn't. That isn't the point. What I'm trying to get straight is the fact that you're through with Wallace because he thinks you shipped the kid off."

"O, there's more to it than that, Bill. Naturally I got sore and we told each other a lot of things that would have been better unsaid. Our marriage was a funny kind of thing anyhow. He and I both used each other as a means to bring our favorite dream upon and now we've kind of forgotten what the dream was we're so busy finding fault with the peg."

"Yes, it was sort of funny." Bill's lips drew together in a hard, tight line. "The trouble between you and Wallace goes deeper than Mildred's running away. Wallace married a hard, little, self-sufficient dancer. He gave her love, a home, a child, three meals a day, and how does she show her gratitude? She turns out to be a wife! If he'd wanted a wife he could have gotten from three or four possibilities not a stone's throw from here."

"Don't fool yourself, Bill, he wanted a wife. He's conventional as the devil, you know."

"Granted, my dear. He wanted to marry you, of course. He's too good a business man not to get a contract. But he certainly didn't pick up Irma to be expected a model housekeeper. He wanted you to stay the ego stroking waif he married. And look at yourself. You go in for authority in a big way. You translate your choicest expressions into orders. You love your fireside and start reading books on bridge, psychology and calories. My God, Irma, how you misrepresented yourself to Wallace!"

"You're dead wrong, Bill. Every time I'm a little different from Anne [illegible] the devil for it."

"Certainly, because you started to be a wife the minute you stepped over the threshold. He's forgotten now what you used to be like. The first time you sewed a button, or washed a dish, or complained to the butcher about what meat you became a wife. He's forgotten what you were but he's quite, uncomfortably aware that something went wrong with his plans."

"Well, maybe you're right. Anyhow, he and I are finished with each other. I want to go to New York today and start life over. Maybe I can get my legs limber enough to go to work again."

"Let's take the baby, won't you?"

He gulped slowly. "What do you think, Bill?"

"Say, that was a foolish question, wasn't it?"

The waiter arrived with Bill's breakfast and a pot of coffee for Irma. Neither spoke for several minutes. The waiter seemed to enjoy bustling about the table rearranging the angles of the salt and pepper shakers and making quite certain that everything was satisfactory.

When at last he withdrew Bill said, "I'll be sorry when you're gone, Irma."

"Yes," she said. "I don't see how I can go unless you're real big about the matter. I called around to see if you'd lend me five hundred dollars. If I were going alone I'd ask you for fifty, but I've got to keep the kid in a decent place and get some one to mind him while I hunt a job."

"Yes, that will cost money," he said.

"I hate to ask you, Bill, but I'll return it as soon as possible."

"I know you will, Irma. As a matter of fact I'm pretty flush at the moment. Don't be in a hurry to pay me back."

"Thanks."

"Well, I guess I'll never see you any more, eh?"

"Why not?" She asked the question lightly but wondered even as she spoke how they ever would see each other again.

"I'll tell you why not." He planted his elbows firmly on the table and leaned toward her. "You'll fall into the pitfalls of the big city. You'll write me a note when you return the money and then you'll forget me."

"I'll never forget you. You're the best friend I've ever had."

"You'll have better ones, Irma. Thrace played hell with your personality but it didn't do a bit of harm to your looks."

"I hope not. I've got to get a job."

"Well, tell them I said you're a raving, tearing beauty. Listen, if you have any trouble—money trouble—you'll let me know, won't you?"

"Yes."

"That's not bunk, is it?"

"It certainly isn't. You'll have wires, letters and telephone calls the first day I can't afford a nurse, a decent bed, the best food and at least one egg for my baby."

He laughed. "Well, I won't worry, then, but take care of you, too, Irma, for I know, I——" He stopped speaking and shifted his gaze from her face. Then, he looked at her again he said, "It'll probably take you a little time to get limber again, won't it? Too bad you didn't keep up your practicing. Of course, you couldn't know in advance that you'd be back in it again."

"No, I didn't."

"Say, how about Wallace and the baby? Won't he have fits when his second child gives him the air?"

"No, he doesn't care about the baby."

"That's a crazy idea, Irma. Of course he does."

"Oh, not much."

"But, my God, you can't take a child away from its father!"

"Who can't?"

"Well, maybe you can at that."

"Do at the one o'clock train if you have any doubts."

"Will you be going that soon?"

"Yes. Tomorrow this time I'll be leaping around in a pair of bloomers trying to kick as high as a duck's knee which will probably be an effort."

"You shouldn't be. You were a pretty good dancer."

They did not linger over their coffee. Irma was anxious to get to her room and a nervous restlessness seemed to have suddenly assailed Bill. He walked in the hotel lobby while he crossed the street to his bank and got several clean, crisp bills for her.

When he came back they stood for a moment solemn and silent as though on the side of a closing grave.

"You won't be seeing Wallace again?" he asked presently.

"No. You can tell him anything you want to. It's immaterial to me whether this matter's a secret or not. Do what's easiest for you."

"I'll tell him, I think."

"Good-by, Irma. Lots of luck. Take care of yourself."

"I will. I'll write to you."

"Will you? That'll be fine."

His smile was a little strained, she thought, and his words unnaturally gay. Very much in the mood of a message written on a postal card.

"Well, good-by."

"Good-by."

She was on the train pointing out the flying trees to the baby before she realized how really comical it was that Bill Fitzroy should have given her five hundred dollars with which to leave Thrace. Long ago—it seemed a thousand years—he had offered to give her the same amount as a guarantee against being stranded in Thrace. She wondered if he remembered that.

F. C. Bartletts to Visit Here for Ten Days

BY THALIA

GOOD news this, that Mr. and Mrs. Frederic Clay Bartlett are to be in Chicago this week for the first time since their marriage last June in Indianapolis. Mrs. Bartlett was, you'll remember, the former Mrs. Evelyn Fortune Lilly of that city, and they were in Europe for most of the summer, and since their return have been in the east.

Just now they're in Indianapolis visiting Mrs. Bartlett's father, Mr. William Fortune, at his country place, and her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Fortune. They're expected here on Wednesday or Thursday for a visit of a week or ten days. Mr. Bartlett's son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Frederic Clay Bartlett Jr. (Mary Tilt), probably will hear today what definite plans they have and where they're to stay. The junior Bartletts, whose wedding took place in July, occupy Mr. Bartlett senior's apartment at 1301 Astor street, and the seniors are making their residence in Boston.

"Way in advance of the customary trek of winter dwellers in Arizona, Jarvis Hunt has returned to his lovely desert place in the pleasant settlement of Arcadia, outside Phoenix. During the summer he's had the grounds to the rear of the house converted into a courtyard, with an attractive entrance and gate lodge, and now the place is encircled with a patio. The process of making the desert bloom, begun when the house was built a year ago, has gone steadily on until the grounds are a profusion of shrubs and flowers. And, besides, there is the interesting garden filled with varieties of cacti, in which Mr. Hunt works every day through the winter.

The marriage of Miss Isabelle Hill, daughter of Mrs. William H. Hill of Birmingham, Ala., and James M. Sheldon Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. James M. Sheldon of Glencoe, is to take place on Thursday evening at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Don M. Compton of 5490 South Shore drive. Only relatives and close friends are to be present at the ceremony. Mr. Sheldon's sister, Miss Betty Sheldon, is to be maid of honor for her future sister-in-law, and Sayre Bradshaw of Oak Park is to be best man. Miss Hill's brother, William Hill of Virginia, is to give her away. After a wedding trip to Virginia Hot Springs Mr. Sheldon and his bride are to reside in an apartment they've taken on the south side. Mrs. Hill and her daughter are staying at the Del Prado hotel.

Reminding you that today's calendar includes: The first of the Woman's Athletic club's series of four contract bridge lessons and luncheons. . . . The opening of the Evanston Junior league's luncheons and fashion shows at the Maisonette tearoom. . . . The fall meeting and tea of the Chicago Wellesley club at the World's Fair buildings. . . . The annual meeting of the Lake Shore League of Women Voters at Mrs. Carroll H. Sudler's residence. . . . The opening of Carlos C. Drake's play, "Against the Wind," at the Blackstone this evening.

In case you haven't heard . . . That Mr. and Mrs. Francis R. Dickinson have sent out the cards for the debut reception for their daughter, Miss Alice May Dickinson, at their residence at 1515 Astor street on Friday afternoon, Nov. 6. . . . That the Arts club's annual meeting is to be held on Nov. 5. . . . That Miss Marjorie Sawyer Goodman, Mrs. James M. Hopkins' daughter; Miss Jean Schweppe, daughter of the Charles H. Schweppes, and Miss Frances Clow, daughter of the William E. Clows Jr., have all sailed for their respective schools in Europe. . . . That the Earle H. Reynoldses gave a luncheon for Miss Polly Perry yesterday. . . . That the John S. Brooksmits have taken the C. B. French house in Lake Forest for the winter. . . . That the Rodney Starkweather Masons have given up their apartment in Evanston, and, with their son, Billy, are to be with Mr. Mason's parents, the Henry Masons, in Highland Park for the winter.

At Lake Geneva—The Albert F. Madleners are staying only one more week and Mrs. T. J. Lefens, Miss Lefens, and the Frank Porters a fortnight more. . . . The Henry Bartholomays returned to town last week and Dr. and Mrs. Otto L. Schmidt were at the lake for their last week-end yesterday and Saturday. . . . The Kellogg Fairbanks plan to close the Butternuts by Nov. 1.

FORMER N. U. CO-ED TO WED

Announcement was made on Saturday of the engagement of Miss Annie Joe Howel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton J. Howel of 6334 Kenmore avenue, to Edward Hamilton Banker Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Banker of Evanston. Miss Howel is a graduate of Northwestern university and a member of Alpha Phi sorority. Mr. Banker is an Illinois graduate and a member of Sigma Chi. The wedding will take place next spring.

The Woman's guild of the St. James Methodist Episcopal church, Ellis avenue and 46th street, will present an unusual program at its monthly meeting Oct. 27. Mrs. John H. Harrison is inviting all the women of the church to be her guests for luncheon in Harris hall at 12:30 o'clock. She is the widow of the late John H. Harrison, owner and editor of the Danville Commercial News.

Will Durant to Speak.

Will Durant, author of "The Story of Philosophy," will speak on "Marriage in Transition" this evening at Sinai temple, 4600 South Park way. His lecture is under the auspices of the Emil G. Hirsch Lecture association.

PATTERNS BY CLOTILDE

[Registered U. S. Patent Office.]

WOMAN'S AND MISS' DRESS.

This dress is a charming version of a Eugénie model, molded perfectly through the hips in basque effect. Velvet in a plum shade with white Venise lace would make a beautiful dress—the lace accenting the one-sidedness of the bodice. Dark green Canton crêpe and black satin are other interesting suggestions.

The pattern, 3400, comes in sizes 14, 16, 18, and 20 years and 36, 38, and 40 inches bust measure. Size 16 requires 3¾ yards of 39 inch material with ⅛ yard of lace.

Mullaney Jr. is to be best man for his brother, and the ushers will be Andrew W. Sexton, John J. Gallery Jr., Cornelius A. Ross, J. Courtney Fitzpatrick, Hans Griesser, and Harry Kranss.

Rustic Silks Charm Paris Fashion World

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Sometimes a single event will have a big effect on fashions. Since the party that Elsa Maxwell gave in Baron de Günsburg's house in the Bois, last summer, when all the smart world came as French rustic characters, Paris styles have tended to become rustic minded.

A whole group of rustic silks have been turned out by the French fabric makers and they are being used by the French couturiers to make some of the smartest winter frocks to wear under a fur coat. The Schiaparelli dress shown in our sketch today is made of this type of silk—having a weave like the old Provencal shawls and in the brightest red. Given this vivid color and the unusual silk, Schiaparelli wisely makes the dress with extreme simplicity.

The sleeves of this frock are cut in one piece with the front of the dress, and have armhole seams only at the back. The crossed scarf ends at the front of the bodice are in one piece with the back of the dress, and are loose in front, and tucked into a V-shaped slit near the waistline in front. They are clipped to a belt on the inside of the dress so they stay "put."

It is a princess cut that moulds the figure from under arms to just above the knees, where the front of the skirt is flared by circular cutting below a seam that makes an inverted V. The dress is fitted tightly to the waistline and has two slits, one at each side so you can get into it. These slits are fastened by Schiaparelli's ring buttons.

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

Mistake in Identity.

During my lunch period at school one day I noticed a friend of mine approaching and I said: "Hello there, Bob, how are you?" With a puzzled grin he said: "Hello, I'm fine, how are you?" As we finished our conversation I hurried across the street, and imagine my embarrassment when I saw the boy I thought I had just spoken to crossing the street. He laughed as I told him of my mistake, stating that lots of others have taken his double for him. E. T.

College Women to Hear Latin America Discussed

Food Talk

Mrs. L. C. P. is interested in broccoli, a vegetable much enjoyed by the Romans, and esteemed as a great delicacy by them as well as by us. She writes: "Would you be kind enough to tell me how to prepare broccoli, and give me a recipe for Hollandaise sauce?"

Both broccoli and cauliflower are members of the cabbage family, and may be prepared for the table in essentially the same way. Before cooking them, soak them in cold water, heads down, for about three-quarters of an hour. The soaking will draw out any of the small bugs which may be present. Then drain the broccoli well and put into rapidly boiling water, and boil with just sufficient water to cover for 15 or 20 minutes. Drain again, and do so thoroughly. Serve piping hot with Hollondaise, melted butter, or with a white sauce sprinkled with bread crumbs and grated cheese.

HOLLANDAISE SAUCE.

3 egg yolks.
3 tablespoons of vinegar.
1 teaspoon of lemon juice.
1-3 cup of melted butter.
Few grains of cayenne.
Pinch of salt.
1 tablespoon of cream.

Heat the vinegar. Beat the egg yolks. Mix in the seasonings [except the lemon juice] and add the vinegar. Place in the top of a double boiler and add gradually the melted butter. Stir during the cooking, and when the sauce thickens, remove from the fire. Too much heat may make the sauce separate. Stir into the sauce one generous tablespoon of cream; add the lemon juice and serve immediately.

VEGETABLE LOAF.

¾ cup of cooked parsnips.
¾ cup of cooked onions.
¾ cup of cooked green peas.
2 eggs.
1 teaspoon of salt.
½ teaspoon of mushroom powder.
1 tablespoon of minced parsley.
Bread crumbs.

Press the vegetables through a sieve; add the seasoning and the well beaten eggs. Use enough bread crumbs to make the mixture keep its shape. Bake in a greased baking dish or casserole in a moderate oven [350 degrees Fahrenheit] until heated through, and brown on top [about fifteen minutes].

VEAL STEAK WITH OYSTER DRESSING.

Make a seasoned bread crumb stuffing, and mix the oysters with it. Spread on a veal steak. Roll and tie securely. Brown well in hot pork drippings on the top of the stove; remove, and add three-quarters of a cup of water to the pan, cover and bake slowly in a moderately slow oven [325 degrees Fahrenheit] for one and one-half hours. Serve with oyster sauce.

OYSTER SAUCE.

Make a cream sauce, using the oyster liquor as part of the liquid, and supplementing the amount of liquid necessary with milk. Wash the oysters, strain the liquor over them, cook for five or six minutes, and add to the white sauce. Bring the sauce in the double boiler to a boil, and cook for two minutes before pouring over the meat. [One pint to one and one-half pints of oysters will be sufficient for both the stuffing and the dressing.]

Mother's Boy Husband Makes This Wife's Life Most Unhappy

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"I have been married four and a half years and during this entire time my husband has spent every evening with his mother. Two years ago he insisted on our giving up our flat and going to live with his mother. She promised everything would be all right. It isn't. It's terrible living here.

"Whatever she says is right, and my husband is completely satisfied. What I say is wrong and I am told to keep quiet if I make any protest. Another thing is that on my husband's bank book is his mother's name, not mine, making it a joint account. What can I do?

"ORPHAN ANNIE."

Situations of the sort boil down to an alternative. Either the younger woman has to fight like the very mischief for her right to a home away from the in-laws, or she has to give in to the situation and make the best of it, sinking her own identity, if necessary, behind that of the more powerful woman.

It depends on what your character is, what you are willing to go through for that home of your own, whether you will win or not. I'd fight for that, because it is the right of the young wife to have her own establishment. If only a furnished room can be afforded, then a furnished room were better than living under a hated mother-in-law's roof.

In some instances the break is practically impossible, the mother having the stronger hold on the boy. It isn't right that she should exercise this hold, but some mothers have it. They've been exercising their will on the boy since infancy and he, a weakling, usually, cannot rise to the occasion like a man. But if it is going to continue to be one bitter day after another at the man's mother's, then it were better to break loose, though the boy were left behind to her.

On the other hand, if one loves the son of the strong minded parent, it is worth while trying to win the elder woman over. It's a terrific job, but it has to be done. Never, however, with quarrels, with loudly asserting one's rights in her presence. You have to be a clever actress, playing the rôle of loving and appreciative daughter-in-law.

ENGAGEMENT

Mr. and Mrs. J. Willis Horton of Evanston announce the engagement of their daughter, Lucile, to Mitchell Barrett Howe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Howe of Oak Park.

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

Selfish Girl.

"Dear Miss Blake: The girl I went with broke off with me and called me cheap. I spent all the money I could on her. Please advise. HARRY."

If she is not content with what you could afford, she is thoroughly selfish and inconsiderate.

MAJOR COLLEGE ELEVENS PLAY TRUE TO FORM

Use of Scores Only Surprise.

The only surprises in the major intersectional football games Saturday were in the size of the scores. Otherwise the results were nearly as predicted.

The Big Ten ran to predictions with Michigan, Northwestern, Minnesota and Indiana winning. Wisconsin was defeated by Pennsylvania, 27 to 0, which has been an upset as far as Badger alumni and supporters were concerned, but many others were inclined to favor Penn, not because of any particular ability but because Illinois had whipped Purdue a week ago.

Penn Turns Tables.

Purdue the Badgers were beaten. They may have played better than that. Against Pennsylvania the score could not have been a true corresponding effectiveness. The Penn touchdowns came from a passing attack which always prevent tightening up. The last touchdown was by a blocked kick, after Wisconsin had scored its defensive touchdowns against Purdue.

The defeat was almost the duplicate of Pennsylvania's reception by Notre Dame at Camp Randall a year ago. The defeat, however, probably is to make Wisconsin needs to prepare for Minnesota. The Gophers are waiting for a Wisconsin victory over Pennsylvania so that they might have a supposedly overconfident foe.

Illinois opened the intersectional season for the conference Saturday, defeating Carnegie Tech, 13 to 6.

Illini Tackles Stand Out.

The outstanding game in the Big Ten opener, was Northwestern's 6 to 0 triumph over Ohio State. As expected, the Wildcats' tackles, Marshall and Riley, stopped Ohio's double wing back running attack. Where Northwestern's tackles were not quite as big as the Buckeyes, Northwestern had a decided weight and experience advantage at the important line positions.

Tom Lieber, who plays just as much as the situation requires, was one of the mainstays of Northwestern's victory. Glass was the other. His kicking gave necessary assurance that Ohio could not tie the score after a successful play.

Illinois, stopped by its 25 to 0 defeat of Michigan, cannot offer effective opposition to Northwestern Saturday. Illinois's 26 to 0 victor over Iowa, probably is the strongest opponent remaining on Northwestern's schedule. That game will be played a week from Saturday, after which Northwestern will meet Indiana and Iowa.

Illinois Eyes Wisconsin.

Illinois is more concerned with Wisconsin as opponent this week-end than it is with Northwestern. Victory would wipe out last year's 14 to 0 defeat, and would make the season a success.

Illinois caught the full force of the Pennsylvania attack. Michigan apparently was out to make some one suffer for its loss in Ohio. Indiana unquestionably achieved the ambition of a team of years for trampling Chicago, 40 to 0.

Purdue defeated Pittsburgh, 14 to 12, making the Panthers' four touchdowns during which their goal had not been crossed. The Boilermakers duplicated the 1930 battle in which Pitt's early season ended. Strangely enough, Notre Dame, which a week ago apparently was a lot of powerful foes, now looms as the best bet for an undefeated season.

Notre Dame Foes Wilt.

Carnegie Tech, defeated of Pitt. At the time they saw Army tied by Yale, 6 to 6, definitely proving that the Cadet Pointers do not have the power shown in the east. Harvard, 14 to 13, a week ago showed the first intimation of vulnerability.

The Pacific coast Southern California eked out a 6 to 0 win over California, as the Trojans, who had run over Oregon a week ago, are not to be feared. This is

Rogers Use 2 Naughty Words, Ruled Off Air

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 25.—[Special.]—The use of profanity was the cause for three interruptions last night in a radio broadcast of a University of Wisconsin alumni banquet at the Penn Athletic club, officials of station WELK announced today.

Station Director George Little and Announcer Jamieson used the word "damn" and a third speaker used the word "hell," and that accounted for the interruptions," said J. P. Begley, station announcer.

It had been reported that the program was momentarily suspended when George Levis, business manager of the Wisconsin football team, said that Senator Robert M. La Follette had failed to attend the Penn-Wisconsin game because of an expected birth in his family.

"I don't know talk about that all night long if I want to," said Mr. Begley. "There's nothing wrong with that."

The station cut off Gen. Smedley Butler several months ago for using "hell."

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Philadelphia's Yellow Jackets, who had not scored a touchdown in five National leagues games, defeated the Chicago Bears yesterday at Wrigley field, 13 to 12. Twenty-six thousand, more than half of whom were guests at the first ladies' day ever celebrated in professional football, watched the thrilling play.

The Yellow Jackets, whose best game until yesterday was a scoreless tie with Providence, employed a passing attack for their first touchdown. Then in the third period, after the Bears had duplicated the score, Merton Kaer, former star at Southern California, took Nesbitt's punt and raced 84 yards for what proved to be the winning score.

Tackwell's Kick Clinches It.

Kaer's touchdown was the winning margin only because Tackwell, former Kansas Aggie tackle, booted the ball between the crossbars for the extra point.

Luke Johnson, who failed in two attempts for the point after the touchdown, might be blamed for not tying Philadelphia, but in view of the lackadaisical play of the Bears, who muffed several scoring opportunities, it would not be fair to place the blame of defeat on him.

The defeat was the second of the season for the Bears. Previously they had lost to the Green Bay Packers, 7 to 0. The league champions come to Wrigley field next Sunday.

Largest Crowd Since 1925.

Yesterday's crowd was the largest to see a professional football game in Chicago since Red Grange, now captain of the Bears, made his league debut on the same gridiron against the Chicago Cardinals on Thanksgiving day, 1925. This throng, 18,000 attending on ladies' day passes, saw a brilliant offensive battle. Each eleven accomplished 15 first downs, and the numerous long runs, the best of which was Kaer's dash, kept the crowd cheering continuously.

The Bears, favorites before the game, started with a second back field and four shock troops players in the line. The first quarter was scoreless, although the Bears advanced to Philadelphia's 24 yard line on Laurie Walquist's pass to Luke Johnson. The advance ended when a second pass was grounded in the end zone.

Regulars Rush Into Game.

Philadelphia wasted no time getting under way in the second quarter. Interference by the Bears on a forward pass put the ball to Chicago's 37 yard line. One smash at center netted 11 yards, and the Bears' regulars came into the game.

Kaer passed to Wilson for 11 yards. Then Herb Joesting gained 5 yards. Kaer added a yard and then Joesting went to the five yard line in two plunges. On the next play Joesting scored. Barrager passed wildly from center in the try for the point.

The Bears received the kickoff and never relinquished possession until they had tied the score. Bull Behman, Philadelphia tackle, was sent from the game for slugging and Philadelphia lost 31 yards, half the distance to the goal. The last 31 yards of the drive were credited to Grange, Nagurski and Lintzenich, who smashed inside tackles and over guards without favor.

Lyman Makes Touchdown.

Nagurski went the final four yards, but fumbled at the one foot mark, the ball bouncing into the end zone, where Link Lyman recovered for the touchdown.

The Bears threatened soon after the game was resumed in the third quarter. Grange's 34 yard run was the outstanding play in the march, which finally reached Philadelphia's 10 yard line. Here stubborn line play halted three plunges with a gain of 7 yards. Directly in front of the goal posts, Quarter Back Brumbaugh declined to try for the place kick, and sent Nagurski into the line once more. Bronko was dropped two yards short of the touchdown.

Less than five minutes later Nesbitt, who had replaced Joe Lintzenvich when the right half had been injured, sent a long punt down field and near the east side line. The Bears loafed on covering the ball, and Kaer took it on the bounce and started down the field. Quickly forming interference, Philadelphia helped

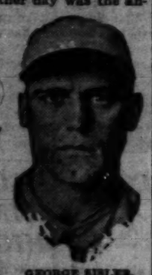
Talking it Over

BY ARCH WARD.

Buried among the filler items on the sport pages the other day was the announcement that the Rochester club of the International league had given George Sisler his unconditional release.



GEORGE SISLER.

This probably means the end of one of the most remarkable careers in baseball.

To begin with, Sisler is the best ball player the Western conference produced. He was a headliner at the University of Michigan in the days when college baseball attracted nearly as much attention as college football. Branch Rickey picked him off the Ann Arbor varsity at a time when he was doing odd chores of pitching and chasing balls in the outfield.

Sisler could have been a great pitcher had he stuck to pitching. He could have been a fine outfielder had he chosen to roam the pastures. He had the eye, the feet and the arm. But his ultimate choice was first base, and there have been few better. There was a time when he undoubtedly was the best in the game.

From the start of his career he held the diamond spotlight. His debut was marked by a skirmish between the American and National leagues. St. Louis in the American claimed him. So did Pittsburgh in the National. Both had his signed agreements to play for them.

The dispute was settled by the baseball commission, made up of the league presidents and a disinterested party. He was awarded to St. Louis. Unfortunately his best playing days were put in with the Browns where he never received the recognition that would have come to him had he been with a championship club.

Sisler made good in the big leagues immediately, both as a first baseman and a batter. He improved steadily until 1922, his most successful season, when he wound up with a batting average of .420.

Then came the tragic chapter in his life. In 1923 he was almost blinded by a sinus infection and he didn't have a ball in his hands all year. He overcame this ailment and next season was appointed manager of the Browns. Sisler was a failure as a manager because he never could get over the idea of being a "nice" fellow. The job was taken away from him in 1926, but he was retained as a player until 1928 when he was sold to Washington for a reported price of $25,000.

After playing only 20 games for the Senators in 1928 he was sold to the Braves where he finished the year with an average of .340. He took part in every game Boston played in 1929, again hitting well over .300. He was given his release in December, 1930. Sisler's major league batting record:

1918—St. Louis	.358	1924—St. Louis	.305
1916—St. Louis	.285	1925—St. Louis	.345
1917—St. Louis	.353	1926—St. Louis	.320
1919—St. Louis	.341	1927—St. Louis	.327
1919—St. Louis	.332	1928—Wash.	.345
1920—St. Louis	.407	1929—Boston	.340
1921—St. Louis	.371	1929—Boston	.326
1922—St. Louis	.420	1930—Boston	.309

PLAN CENTRAL LEAGUE WITH EIGHT TEAMS

Fort Wayne, Ind., Oct. 25.—(AP)—Representatives of five cities met here today to formulate plans for revival of the Central Baseball league. Baseball men from Fort Wayne, Dayton, Canton, Akron, and Erie sat in at the meeting, and a sixth city, identity of which officials declined to reveal, was declared ready to enter.

The conferees revealed they hoped to add two more cities to form an eight club circuit, and that South Bend and Richmond, Ind., and Portsmouth, O., were under consideration. A change in classification to class A also was being considered.

The conferees agreed on a split schedule, to start about May 1 and close Labor day. Night baseball is planned in most of the cities for at least three games a week, they said.

Defeats De La Salle in Charity Game.

Bart McKernan, veteran full back, led Mount Carmel into first place in the south section of the Chicago Catholic High School Football league yesterday as it defeated De La Salle, 13 to 0, before 25,000 at Soldiers' field. Proceeds of the contest were donated to the Sisters of Mercy building fund.

McKernan found little trouble crashing into the De La Salle line, gaining on almost every attempt. Toward the end of the first half, after a five yard penalty had brought the ball to the De La Salle 2 yard line, McKernan broke through guard for Mount Carmel's first touchdown.

Callahan Scores.

The second touchdown in Mount Carmel's third consecutive league victory came in the fourth period when Lefty Callahan, who recently recovered from a knee injury, appeared in Frank Burns' position at left half back. Callahan went through right tackle and paraded down the field for 45 yards.

Mount Carmel piled up twenty-three first downs, ten being completed in the second period when they brought the ball several inches from De La Salle's goal line. But Bud Gonya, Mount Carmel quarter back, fumbled on the second down and De La Salle recovered. De La Salle completed eight first downs.

De La Salle at Bay.

De La Salle, although it began several marches, once in the third period when it completed two first downs, never came within scoring distance. Penalties precluded chances of any sustained drives. Mount Carmel did not punt until the third quarter, when Durkin kicked from his own 20 yard line. Lineup:

Another Fighting Irishman, Melinkovich, Makes Good

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Something will have to be done about this fellow George Joseph Melinkovich. He's going to be in the football headlines for this and the next few seasons and there isn't room for all that name.

Who is he?

Just another "Fighting Irishman" of Notre Dame, whose skill as a full back was revealed after fate in less than a year had blocked out eight men who were thought to be better.

The youngster, who happens to be of Austrian parentage, not only is better but probably sufficiently skilled that it won't be long now before somebody will point out that he is even a few notches higher in rating than the famous Joe Savoldi, whose troubles a year ago started the jinx to operate on Notre Dame full backs.

How George Got His Chance.

When Savoldi, whose rise was as sudden and as unexpected as that of Melinkovich, quit school by request, there were a few other full backs to take his place. There were Mullins, Howard and O'Connor, the latter moving over from a half back just as Melinkovich has done. These three were graduated. Hanley and Stasb, who were considered timber for this fall, didn't return to school. Lukas, promoted to the regular job, suffered a broken leg right at the outset. Banas, who succeeded him, smashed a finger. Melinkovich's turn came next and he's making the most of it.

Melinkovich is more than a full back. He's a combination man. He can plunge, he can run the ends or the tackles like a second Schwartz, and he is the perfect pass receiver. He won the Frank E. Hering medal for receiving in last spring's freshman competition. He also can pass above the average. And on top of this, he takes to blocking as if he had been doing it all his life. In the average youngster out of high school this is unusual. All they know is

FULL BACK

Earns Regular Job.

Until the mud bespattered 0 to 0 game with Northwestern a few weeks ago not many except Coach Hunk Anderson knew there was such a fellow as Melinkovich on the premises. But when he got his first call before 65,000 he didn't hesitate to turn loose. He fit into the job so perfectly that he was retained as a regular for the Drake combat, and after that he still rated A1 at the position. That's why he was the regular full back again last Saturday when Notre Dame plowed through Pitt, which probably was their toughest foe of the season.

Life isn't all football and glory with the young man from Tooele, Utah, which the time tables show to be 30 miles in one direction or the other from Salt Lake City. When he isn't playing football he's "hashing" for his keep in one of the school dining halls. And when time hangs heavy he can give a pretty fair battle on the tennis court.

Nevers Leads Cardinals to 45-13 Victory

Rock Island, Ill., Oct. 25.—[Special.]—With Capt. Ernie Nevers leading the parade with three touchdowns, the Chicago Cardinals defeated the Green Bush club of Rock Island here today, 45 to 13. Holmer, Belden, Glasgow, and Hill broke loose for 30 and 40 yard runs.

Rock Island scored in the opening minutes when Walt Holmer's punt was blocked. Schroeder took the ball in the air and slipped over the goal line. The other Green Bush score came in the second quarter on a long pass, Schroeder to Mosier.

The Cards counted three times in the first quarter, once in the second and third periods, and twice in the final session. Lineup:

St. Mary's Beats Gonzaga, 13 to 7, for 5th in Row

San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 25.—(AP)—St. Mary's defeated Gonzaga university, 13 to 7, today, to score its fifth consecutive victory and remain the only undefeated, untied major eleven on the Pacific coast.

Behind 7 to 6 at the end of the third period, St. Mary's rallied in the last quarter to score after a 55 yard march down the field. A 13 yard pass brought St. Mary's by midfield, and from there on plunges put the ball in a position for Bud Toscani, right half back, who scored both touchdowns, to plunge over.

OHIO COLLEGES O. K. FOOTBALL FOR CHARITY

Springfield, O., Oct. 25.—(AP)—The Buckeye Athletic association today unanimously approved the playing by conference teams of post-season football games for charity, provided such games are participated in only by members of the organization.

The action was announced at the conclusion of the meeting in a formal statement issued by George E. Gauthier, athletic director at Ohio Wesleyan university, and secretary of the association.

Wittenberg, Ohio Wesleyan, Ohio university, Denison university, the University of Cincinnati, and Miami university were represented at the meeting.

IT'S HOMECOMING AND THE PACKERS CELEBRATE, 48-20

Engelmann Leads Attack on Steam Rollers.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Green Bay, Wis., Oct. 25.—The Green Bay Packers, champions of the National Professional Football league, celebrated their annual homecoming today by running up a 48 to 20 score on the Providence Steam Rollers. Wuert Engelmann led the attack for the winners, scoring three touchdowns in the first quarter.

It was Green Bay's seventh straight victory this year and its 23d in a row on its home field since 1924.

Pass Brings First Score.

Five plays after the kickoff Engelmann caught a 20 yard pass from Dunn and crossed the goal line. Williams' partially blocked punt paved the way for the second three minutes later. It climaxed a march down the field, which ended when Englemann took another pass from Dunn, for a net gain of 32 yards and a touchdown. His third touchdown followed the next kickoff, which he returned 80 yards.

Providence broke the monotony of the Packers' attack by making a touchdown in the second quarter, the result of a 63 yard drive, during which it recorded four first downs, Pape going over.

A Recovered Fumble Helps.

Comstock's recovery of a fumble placed Green Bay in a position to score again just before the half ended. An offensive in which passes predominated sent Dilweg over after an 18 yard run. The Packers gained 120 yards in the first half on passes. Providence gained 38 by the same method.

The Steam Rollers, however, held the advantage in first downs, seven to four.

After the Steam Rollers had scored twice in the third quarter the Packer attack again got under way. First there was Wilson's 51 yard run around right end for a touchdown; Englemann's 21 yard dash, and Molenda's plunge, which produced another, and, finally, a pass, Molenda to Grove, good for 37 yards and a score, all in the fourth period.

Pape Stars for Losers.

Oran Pape, the former Iowa star, was the whole show for the invaders. His running was responsible for Providence's touchdowns, although several times his plunges followed passes.

Russ Saunders, out of the game because of injury for more than a month, gave indication he is in form again. His passing was one of the features of the Green Bay attack. The Packers were not pressed at any stage and might have won by a greater margin if they had not been saving their power for the Chicago Bears next Sunday.

The Steam Rollers bested the Packers in first downs, 13 to 9. The Packers lost 35 yards on penalties, the visitors 30.

Give Up Hope for Recovery of Army End

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 25.—[Special.]—Richard B. Sheridan Jr., army right end whose neck was broken in the Yale game yesterday, was still in a critical condition tonight, following an emergency operation performed late last night.

Specialists, including Dr. Harvey Cushing of Boston, reiterated that there appeared to be no hope for his recovery.

Sheridan has remained unconscious since the accident. The fracture has been reduced and the pressure relieved, but his general condition is unchanged.

Suffers Relapse.

He was in an artificial respirator all day today and it is believed only this has kept him alive. At times it was thought his heart had ceased beating.

Sheridan suffered a relapse at 9:30 o'clock tonight and it was feared that he was dying, but he rallied and at 10 o'clock physicians said he had revived. He is very weak, however, and doubt is felt that he will survive the night.

Sheridan's father and brother are expected to arrive from their home in Augusta, Ga., tomorrow afternoon. Ralph Sasse, the Army's head coach, Maj. Philip H. Fleming and two other officers of the military academy staff have remained here.

Receives Last Rites.

Acting on a suggestion from Sheridan's home, the Rev. Francis Murray of St. John's Catholic church performed the last rites.

Sheridan was injured as the Army kicked off after Dud Parker had run 33 yards for Yale's touchdown, tying the score. Robert Lassiter, Yale half back, returned the kick and had gone about 20 yards when Sheridan made a clean but vicious tackle to bring him down. Several other players piled on, and when the mass was disentangled Sheridan lay inert. He was rushed to the hospital unconscious.

Two Philadelphians Hurt.

Philadelphia, Oct. 25.—[Special.]—Two football players were injured in different games here today and were taken unconscious to a hospital. The condition of both was critical.

CINCINNATI CLUB DENIES NEARING DEAL WITH CUBS

Cincinnati, O., Oct. 25.—(AP)—Sidney Weil, president of the Cincinnati Reds, denied reports today that a deal was virtually completed which would bring Outfielder Hack Wilson and Pitcher Malone of the Cubs to the Reds in exchange for Pitcher Red Lucas and Outfielder Estel Crabtree.

Both Wilson and Malone are in bad standing with the Cub management. President Weil said he would like to have both Wilson and Malone, but he does not wish to part with Lucas.

U. S. G. A. SUGGEST TOURNAMENTS TO AID RELIEF FUND

New York, Oct. 25.—[Special.]—Through its president, H. H. Ramsay, the United States Golf association has asked golf clubs throughout the country to help swell the unemployment relief funds. A letter has gone out to state, sectional and district associations requesting that all clubs under their jurisdiction conduct one-day competitions with nominal entry fees which are too be turned over to some local relief enterprise.

Swedish-Americans Beat Danish Soccer Team, 6-1

The Swedish-American soccer team defeated the Danish-American A. C. in an International league game yesterday at the Norwegian-American field, 6 to 1, for its fifth straight victory of the season. The Norwegian-American A. A. tied Egrest Park, 3 to 3.

IT'LL BE A HARD WINTER IF LEWIS FAILS TURF FANS

Rely on Young Jockey to Bring In Winners.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Melvin Lewis, the jockey sensation of the Chicago racing season, has a big job ahead of him this week—the final week of a six months racing season in Chicago.

If he continues to bring home the winners he will wind up the year as an even greater hero. But if he hits a slump just as the curtain is ready to roll down a lot of folks will be willing to let Santa Claus forget all about him next Christmas.

It seems that most Chicago racegoers who haven't been able to "improve the breed" and haven't been able to pick the winners—even though they've had five months and three weeks to improve their game—are depending on Lewis during the waning days of the season to get them even. They are going to depend on him more than ever this week with Get-Away day just around the corner.

Has Magic Touch.

Somehow or other, after watching Lewis flash to fame within less than two months, during which time he left an obscure "leaky roof circuit" stable to become affiliated with Coldstream stud, one of our most up and coming western establishments, I don't believe Lewis will fall his public.

This youngster has a magic touch of the reins, an electric kick in his heels or a way of applying the leather in a run down the stretch, that makes horses run for him. The same horses have refused, time after time, to run for other jockeys.

That's what made Sloan, Archer, Murphy, and Sande famous. They had a way about them of whispering into the ear of a horse. Then the horse, according to the records, would go on to unheard of deeds.

Brings Home Long Shots.

Lewis, the most likely young jockey developed in the country this season, probably shouldn't be accused of speaking the horse language. But from the way he has been booting his mounts first past the winning post he could have made every racegoer in the country wealthy if they had been playing his mounts lately. He hasn't been riding favorites, either, for most of the time when he has caught the judges' "eye" he has been on horses that have paid 5 or 10 to 1 or better.

There will be a rush of support to the horses Lewis rides today, but that does not assure profit from these uncertain races. Fred Archer, the greatest rider of all time in England, averaged one winner in every three races in which he wore silks over a period of a dozen years. When at the height of his career all England began backing his mounts playing a progressive system. Then Archer rode some 70 races without reaching the winning post. And most all of England was broke before he pulled out of the slump.

Two Feature Races Today.

The True Blue and the Georgian purses are the features at Hawthorne this afternoon. The first at three-quarters, enlarges Tannery, Supreme Sweet, Ironsides, Homer L, Broad Meadows, and other good horses. The Georgian, at a mile and a sixteenth, finds Uhuniu, Sister Zoe, Prince Athelings, Masterly, and Abdel accepting the issue. And the horse Lewis rides in each of these races will likely rule as the favorite.

Major College Elevens Play True to Form

good news to Notre Dame. That California-Trojan game was a great improvement over the 74 to 0 rout in 1930, when the Trojans won. And it might be mentioned that Navy Bill Ingram, in his first season as California coach, had considerable to do with the result.

While introducing new coaches, it should be mentioned that Iowa State may be justly proud of George Veenker and his team, which whipped Missouri Saturday, 20 to 0. It was Iowa State's first Big Six victory in three seasons, and this is Veenker's first year as coach. He resigned last spring from Michigan, where he assisted in coaching football and was head basketball coach.

Drake Routed Again.

Michigan State won from Georgetown, 6 to 0. The size of the score was disappointing, although it was compensation for the one point defeat last year. Fordham and Harvard turned back intersectional foes Saturday. Fordham won from Drake, 48 to 0, and Harvard bested Texas, 33 to 7.

On the other side of the intersectional proposition, Marquette university won from Boston college, 7 to 0, in the first of three intersectional struggles. Mississippi is the foe Friday night at Milwaukee. De Pauw university won from Boston university, 14 to 9, at Greencastle, Ind.

Vanderbilt, conqueror of Ohio State, was held scoreless for a second successive Saturday, this time by Georgia, 9 to 0. Tennessee's one touchdown victory over North Carolina cut the edge almost too close. Alabama, beaten by Tennessee, came back at the expense of Sewanee, 33 to 0.

Auburn Nosed Out.

Centenary's undefeated reign ended when the Mustangs of Southern Methodist passed to a 19 to 0 victory. Florida nosed out Alabama Poly [Auburn], 13 to 12.

Washington's scoreless tie with Stanford was consoling to Jimmy Phelan and his team, since they previously had taken a 13 to 0 licking from Oregon. Oregon was held to a scoreless tie by North Dakota. This Saturday Oregon meets New York university, one of the east's best elevens. New York conquered Colgate last week, 13 to 0.

CAIRO ELEVEN WINS.

Cairo, Ill., Oct. 25.—[Special.]—The Cairo Boys Club's eleven defeated the Crossville, Ill., Independents here this afternoon, 58 to 0.

SMITTY—PLANE ENOUGH

WHEN ARE WE GOING TO GO HOME, BOSS?
I DON'T KNOW IF OUR PLANE IS READY, SMITTY
WELL, LET'S TOSS UP A COIN AND IF IT'S HEADS WE'LL WAIT FOR THE PLANE, AND TAILS? SAYS WE TAKE THE TRAIN

Comiskey, Sox Owner, Dies; Ill a Month

a job in professional baseball which later led to absolute ownership of a big league franchise, something not attained before or since by any other player out of the ranks.

It was the irony of fate that Comiskey, after seeing a shoestring stretch into the most valuable franchise in either league, should be the owner of eight White Sox players, who in collusion with gamblers, threw the 1919 world series to the Cincinnati Reds.

Signed for $50.

A few years of prairie or corner lot ball was Comiskey's only experience when in 1875 the late Ted Sullivan signed him to play with a Milwaukee team. His salary was $50 a month and the first payment was money given Sullivan to hire a carpenter to make repairs in the outfield fence. The $50 had been given Sullivan by the late Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, a Milwaukeean, who later became president of the Canadian Pacific railway.

Comiskey's first step into prominence was as a first baseman for the St. Louis Browns in 1882 and 1883. In 1884 he was made manager of the team and between that year and 1890 captained his team to four American Association championships and "two world titles.

To Comiskey is given credit for originating the idea that a first baseman could be other than a target for thrown balls. First base was then considered the last jump before jumping to the oblivion of the bench. Comiskey converted the job into one of importance by playing away from the base, something which at the time was a distinct novelty. Natural fielding skill on his part made this possible. All first basing since then has been patterened after the Comiskey innovation.

Started As a Pitcher.

"Commy," a nickname given to him early in his career and which never left him, started as a pitcher. He was pitching when learning the rudiments of the game on two diamonds on the west side. One of these was at Harrison and Ada streets and the other at Madison street and Western avenue. In the early and late '70's the Libertys, the Dreadnaughts, the Actives, the Mutuals and the Never Sweat teams played there.

Comiskey, unknown at these grounds, showed up one day when there was need of a pitcher. He was engaged on the spot and performed so well that his corner lot fame spread rapidly. Among his playing partners were Dan and Henry O'Day, the latter subsequently a big league pitcher and umpire and Hayes and Cleming.

T. P. [Ted] Sullivan, who always took credit for having discovered Comiskey, was at that time the owner of the newspaper and candy concessions on the railroad between Chicago and Dubuque, Ia. It was his aim to place a semi-pro team in Dubuque, the players to be youths who could divide their time between baseball and train butchering. The year previous, 1879, he had backed a professional team in the Iowa city but the expense was too much. On that 1879 team he had several men who later became stars. They included Catcher Tommy Sullivan, Pitcher L. P. Ries, First Baseman W. B. Latham, Infielder Tom Loftus, Infielder Jack Gleason, and Pitcher Charles Radbourne.

Changes to First.

Sullivan, who had taken Comiskey to Milwaukee for his first pro engagement and who in 1874 had been a fellow student of Comiskey at St. Mary's college, Kas., decided to get Comiskey for the Dubuque semi-pros who were to be known as the Rabbits. Sullivan came to Chicago and returned to Dubuque with Commy, who spent the summer of 1880 as ball player and dispenser of papers, etc., on the Chicago-Dubuque run. It was at Dubuque that he met and married Miss Nan Kelly.

Comiskey was the team pitcher and first baseman. Among his mates were Catcher Jack Ross, Ted Sullivan, who also pitched, and Tom Loftus. Other positions were filled by any player who happened along. The Rabbits continued to play in Dubuque in 1881 and the following year were moved to St. Louis where Comiskey became regular first baseman of the American association team. His baseball career can best be summed up as follows:

1883—Captain and first baseman of the St. Louis Browns.

1884—Captain, manager and first baseman of the St. Louis Browns.

1885-'86—Captain and manager of the St. Louis Browns who, during these two seasons, captured the championship of the American association, and defeated the Chicago club of the National league each fall for the world title.

1887-'88—Captain and manager of the St. Louis Browns, who again won the American association championship, but were twice defeated by the National league team in the fall series.

It was while manager of the Cincinnati club that Comiskey formed a friendship with Byron Bancroft Johnson, who had abandoned a law career for that of a sports writer. This friendship, definitely broken after 25 years, was destined to figure in some of baseball's greatest happenings.

Becomes Owner.

When Comiskey finished his job as manager at Cincinnati he was ambitious to branch out as an owner. At the time there was a movement afoot to revive a league in the midwest. A meeting of interested parties was held, and Johnson, through Comiskey's help, was elected president of the new circuit, which carried the name of Western league. Comiskey was given the Sioux City, Ia., franchise, but he promptly decided he would go to St. Paul instead. He launched his career as an owner there in 1895.

The first suggestion that a second major league should enter the field against the National was made by Al Spink, then a sports editor in St. Louis. He interested various baseball men in his proposal, and meetings to discuss the matter were held in the winter of 1898-'99. The movement was not affiliated with the placing of Comiskey's St. Paul Western league club in Chicago for the 1899 season.

Comiskey's entrance into Chicago was as a minor leaguer, consent having been obtained from James Hart, owner of the Chicago National league team, when the latter realized it would be useless to object. Hart's price was that the invading team must stay on the south side and not use the name "Chicago." Comiskey promptly selected that of White Sox. The Chicago National team by that time had dropped its name of White Stockings.

Became Ball Power.

The original movement to create a second major league grew until Ban Johnson, president of the Western league, and Comiskey became interested. To Johnson fell the task of getting financial backing for most of the cities in which franchises were to be placed. Charles Somers of Cleveland backed most of the clubs, and in 1900 the American league opened as a major circuit. Then followed several years of war in which the National league was raided of 75 per cent of its star players. Peace was signed at Johnson's terms in 1903.

Comiskey, as a big league owner, soon became one of the biggest men in baseball. For years he and Johnson dominated the National league as well as their own circuit. The National chafed under Johnson's power, but continued helpless until Comiskey broke with his old friend. The exact cause of the break never was explained by either man. Johnson's claim always was that he didn't know why it happened.

When rumors spread of crookedness in the 1919 White Sox-Cincinnati series, Johnson took the lead in ferreting out the truth. The National league, claiming that the scandal proved the old National commission, of which Johnson was a member, had outgrown its usefulness, started a movement for a new government in baseball. Comiskey, by this time at odds with his old friend, joined in the movement and his vote gave the National the balance of power. The rest of the American league, after fighting the proposal, finally acceded.

Becomes Ill on Trip.

Until the scandal cost him eight of his star players, Comiskey always had been actively connected with his club. After erecting his new park in 1911 he provided quarters there for the Woodland Bards, an organization of rooters who could gain membership only by journeying to the Comiskey lodge at Trude Lake, Mercer, Wis. Every fall Comiskey played host there to a large party of friends. After the scandal Comiskey was seldom seen at the ball park.

In the fall of 1913 Comiskey, in company with John McGraw conducted an elaborate round the world tour of two ball teams. The teams were known as the Sox and Giants, but were filled up with players from other clubs. The tour started when the baseball party sailed from Vancouver aboard the Empress of Japan and ended the following spring when they sailed into New York harbor aboard the Lusitania.

During the part of the tour which carried the party from Cairo, Egypt, to Rome, Comiskey became violently ill. For several days his life was despaired of, but by the time he arrived in New York he had almost fully recovered. It was while sailing past the Statue of Liberty that Comiskey made one of his famous remarks. It was:

However he did accompany another Sox-Giants expedition to Europe in 1924.

Canada Geese Will Be Given Free Meals

BY BOB BECKER.

A free meal system that will operate both day and night awaits the migrating Canada geese when they arrive in southern Illinois within a few days and with the meals go a free ticket guaranteeing the birds immunity from hunters while they take their nourishment.

This open air cafeteria has been provided by the state of Illinois which owns and operates the Horse Shoe lake game preserve, not far from the town of Miller City, Ill. Miller City is approximately 14 miles from Cairo.

Although the Horse Shoe lake preserve has been hit by the weather because the lake itself has dwindled in size due to lack of rain, there is nothing wrong with the crops of rye, wheat and other green stuff which has been grown for the birds, according to Ralph Bradford, director of conservation. Mr. Bradford reports that the acres of acres sowed in grain solely for the birds will provide many a meal for the geese which consider green stuff a welcome item in their autumn diet.

According to the last report which reached us on the depth of the water in the Horse Shoe lake preserve, it was so shallow that the herons and other waders were finding it a dandy fishing hole. A lake or pond of this depth also would be attractive to some puddler ducks. However, there is plenty of water in the Mississippi for the geese and many a mile of sandbar where the big honkers can step up to the bar, take a drink, and then get all the gravel they want.

Last year a club owning a big tract of land on the river wisely set aside the lower end of their property containing a long pond as a refuge for the wild geese and thus provided the birds with a water area which formerly was found in the Horse Shoe lake preserve.

Matmen Meet Tomorrow in Stadium Ring

With the arrival today of Jack Sherry and John Grandovich, all wrestlers who will compete in the Chicago Stadium show tomorrow were on the scene of battle.

Sherry and Grandovich meet in the semi-windup. Don George wrestles Joe Malcewicz in the feature bout. George and Malcewicz will wrestle best two falls out of three.

From a wrestling standpoint the program is one of variety. George, a former University of Michigan football player, employs the Wolverine slam, a body tossing hold, with which he beat Gus Sonnenberg for the title last year. Malcewicz's specialty is an arm lock and toe hold.

The flying tackle will be displayed by Len Macaluso, Colgate half back last year, who led the nation's scorers. Macaluso meets Boris Demetroff, Bulgarian heavyweight.

Sherry, one of the tricky group, has been tossed in with Grandovich, who depends chiefly on strength. Sherry is known as a punisher and is not popular among the topnotchers.

Speed is exemplified in the Joe Devito-Jack Gunson number, one of the time limit affairs. Karol Zbyszko meets Bull Martin in another of the preliminary bouts. Karol is of the famous Zbyszko wrestling family. Martin is a graduate of the school of hard knocks and on several occasions has started a general rough house during a match. He comes from Trenton, N. J.

The Stadium reiterated its desire to avoid the present heavyweight controversy and has informed wrestlers on tomorrow's card that they are to do likewise.

O'KELLY, CALMES CLASH TONIGHT AT WHITE CITY

Tonight's Card

Con O'Kelly vs. Baxter Calmes [10].
Chuck Hefner vs. Al Settle [8].
Biff Bennett vs. Joe Miller [6].
Jack Moran vs. Ed Stevie [6].
George Kerwin vs. Jimmy Murphy [6].
Al Isoz vs. Jud Jodkins [4].

Con O'Kelly, Irish heavyweight, makes his third Chicago appearance tonight for Mique Malloy when he meets Baxter Calmes at White City in a ten round bout. His previous appearances here were against Tuffy Grimth and King Levinsky.

CON O'KELLY.

Calmes has come along fast through the medium of a punch. Several weeks ago at White City he stopped Pete Wistort in a fight which earned him the O'Kelly bout.

In the supporting bouts Chuck Meffner, Denver middleweight, faces Al Settle of Porto Rico. Biff Bennett, Fort Sheridan heavyweight, boxes Joe Miller in a six rounder. Miller last week won the heavyweight tournament in Detroit over twenty-six contestants from the midwest territory.

Jack Moran is matched with Ed Stevie of Champaign. George Kerwin faces Jimmy Murphy and Jud Judkins and Al Isoz open the show in a four rounder.

LOOKABAUGH IS VICTOR IN THREE CUSHION MEET

Earl Lookabaugh defeated Len Kenney, 50 to 27, in 63 innings and won the three cushion tournament which ended yesterday at Kieckhefer's Recreation. Lookabaugh finished with four victories and no defeats. Kenney, who finished in a tie for second with Edward Peters, Chicago champion, at two won and two lost, gained this tie by defeating Peters, 50 to 35, in 52 innings. Harry Towle and Charles Morin tied for fourth in a field of five with one victory and three defeats.

Uzcudun, Carnera Agree to Stadium Match on Nov. 17

Telegrams of acceptance were received yesterday by the Chicago Stadium for a Nov. 17 match between Prime Carnera and Paulino Uzcudun. Matchmaker Nate Lewis will go before the state athletic commission today to seek sanction for the bout.

This match will replace the proposed Tuffy Griffith-Ernie Schaaf return fight on the Stadium's November schedule.

Harry Dublinsky, west side Polish lightweight, will get his chance to mingle with one of the stars of the division on the Nov. 4 card at the Stadium, when Earl Mastro attempts to lift Bat Battalino's featherweight championship. Dublinsky has been signed with Louis [Kid] Kaplan, veteran 134 pounder. This is the 6-round bout closed for the world's championship card, Sammy Mandell, former lightweight king, and Ralph Lamy having been paired for the semi-windup.

Earl Mastro boxes Midget Mike O'Dowd in a ten round bout at Hartford, Conn., tonight. Battalino will be at the ringside to get a glimpse of the challenger in action.

Joe Brown, manager of Bowen's gymnasium, announced yesterday that Bryan Downey, former middleweight star, will instruct his boxers for the Golden Gloves tournament in February. A team of fifteen boxers already is lined up for the 1932 Golden Gloves tourney.

Johnny Balma, Lawndale boxer, will meet Steve Hess, north side middleweight, in an eight rounder contest at the Eagles' arena, 3241 West Madison street, Friday. Four other bouts are on the card.

Two amateur shows will be held on Friday at the 24th Ward Democratic club, 3242 West Roosevelt road, and at Merry Garden arena, Belmont and Sheffield avenues.

Berwyn Parrots Defeat Faust Cheetahs, 14 to 0

The Berwyn Parrots defeated the Faust Cheetahs yesterday at Berwyn stadium, 14 to 0. Nardiello went over to tackle four yards for Berwyn's first period touchdown. In the second quarter Crane intercepted a pass from Sluka and ran 30 yards for the second touchdown. A safety completed the scoring. In the curtain raiser, the Parrot Juniors beat Berwyn Orioles.

THIRD QUARTER OF INDIANA GAME CHEERS MAROONS

That's When They Scored; Try to Forget Others.

Dismayed by Indiana's crushing defeat of the Maroons Saturday, Coach Stagg preferred yesterday to talk about the third quarter of the game, during which Chicago scored, rather than the other three periods, which were dominated by the Hoosiers.

For ten minutes, at the end of which the score was 13 to 6 against them, the Maroons played better ball than they have at any time so far this season, Stagg believes. But he also concedes that a ten-minute flash will be no more good against Purdue next Saturday than it did against Indiana.

Fade Out Near Finish.

Just as in the Yale game, it was the final ten minutes of the game Saturday which turned the match into a rout. Yale scored two touchdowns with practically a fresh team at the field during the closing minutes, and the Indiana reserves raced through and over the weary Maroons for three touchdowns in the twelve minutes before the final gun last Saturday.

In the former game a comparative unknown, Lassiter, made a conspicuous figure of himself as a ball-carrier, and in the latter, another unheralded back, Edmonds, galloped about at will.

It is the extreme paucity of Maroon reserves which has made the scores of the last two weeks so uneven, Stagg is convinced. He plans to devote this week's practice largely to the building of his second string men, before Purdue, with its two capable backfield, is expected to try running up as big a score as possible. Stagg's sole criticism of his men yesterday was for their habit of letting pass receivers get behind them.

Epidemic of Bruised Shoulders.

Indiana left in its wake an epidemic of bruised shoulders among the Maroons. Stanley Hamberg, regular guard, has a shoulder sprained so badly that it is almost certain that he will not play against Purdue. Pete Mehrer, first full back, and Warren Johnson, end, have exactly the same disorder and may be kept out of the game.

OHIO HOPES FADE

Columbus, O., Oct. 25.—[Special.]—Ohio State's football team, with championship hopes dimmed by Northwestern's victory Saturday, today started to prepare for Indiana at Bloomington next Saturday.

Although Buckeye followers conceded that Northwestern was the better team, the penalty which allowed the Wildcats a first down in midfield after Bettner had kicked to Cramer, set to provoking argument.

One official said roughness and another said that the 15 yard penalty came for "some kind of a foul while the ball Bettner had just kicked was in the air."

It was this play that was the turning point of the game as far as Ohio was concerned. On the next play, Bettner circled his own left end for a touchdown.

No serious injuries resulted from the Northwestern play against the Purple. Coach Sam Willaman plans to shake up his lineup for the impending battle with Indiana.

The game marks the 16th meeting of the teams. The Buckeyes hold the edge, seven to six, with two ties. Ohio has scored 279 points to Indiana's 101.

IRISH SEEK 25 IN ROW

South Bend, Ind., Oct. 25.—[Special.]—Faced with 22 victories and a tie in 24 starts, Notre Dame's football players now have a good chance to run the string to 25 wins.

Next Saturday they go to Pittsburgh to meet Carnegie Tech in the second of the six intersectional games on the schedule. On the following Saturday their most Pennsylvania here will be at Baltimore, and should win both, although Penn is the surprise team of the east.

The Indians reported today that the squad survived the battering at the hands of Pitt's powerful line without serious injury, but not without bumps and bruises. The team will be out of tomorrow and will have only two practice sessions before leaving Monday night for Pittsburgh.

Carnegie Tech, with an entirely new team, has lost to Purdue and Washington and Jefferson and has beaten Georgia Tech.

In 1926 Carnegie beat Notre Dame, 19 to 6, with a green team, to provide the greatest upset of the year. In 1927 they gave the Irish their first defeat at Carter field in 25 years, 7 to 1.

The attendance Saturday will be near capacity for the Carnegie Tech stadium, according to advance reports.

BEAT BOTHERS MICHIGAN

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 25.—[Special.]—Michigan's crushing defeat of Illinois yesterday was all but forgotten today as plans were laid for this week's home invasion to meet Princeton.

Some players are still suffering from the unbearable heat at Champaign Saturday and will be given only a light workout tomorrow.

Saturday's performance indicates the team is far more of a unit with Stevenson at quarter back and that it has greater attacking force with Bergman at full back in place of Capt. Oosterbaan.

DAVIS AND ELKINS' 253 POINTS IS EASTERN HIGH

New York, Oct. 25.—(AP)—Davis and Elkins college of Elkins, W. Va., tops all eastern college football teams in the latest scoring records, both offensively and defensively. Not only has the West Virginia outfit run up 253 points in six games, but it is the only eastern school that has not been scored on.

New York university holds second place in scoring with 193 points, Colgate is third with 187 and Syracuse fourth with 183.

BIG SIX TITLE UP TO NEBRASKA, KANSAS AGGIES

Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 25.—(AP)—The Big Six football race looks more and more like a duel between the Kansas Aggies and Nebraska.

While the two chief contenders got safely through their contests yesterday, Iowa State sprang the big surprise by defeating Missouri, 20 to 0. It was the Cyclones' first conference victory since 1926 and it was also the first Big Six game for their new coach, George F. Veenker.

Oklahoma, Missouri and the champion Kansas university Jayhawkers were counted out of the title race yesterday, each suffering a second conference defeat.

Nebraska found the Jayhawkers strong defensively, but without punch. The Huskers won, 6 to 0, on a touchdown by George Henry Sauer, sophomore back. In defeating Oklahoma, 14 to 0, the Kansas Aggies didn't need to use many tricks, and it is believed that Coach Bo McMillin is saving as many as possible for the Nebraska game at Manhattan, Nov. 14.

BEARING DOWN ON THE BEARS

Brumbaugh, half back for the Yellow Jackets, is about to come to a halt after carrying the ball in the first quarter of yesterday's battle with the Bears at Wrigley field. Philadelphia won, 13 to 12, handing the Bears their first defeat at home. It was the Yellow Jackets' first victory of the National Professional league season. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

him along and Kaer outran Brumbaugh in the final 10 yards. Then came Tackwell's place kick for the 13th point.

The final Bear offensive got under way from Chicago's 29 yard line just before the end of the third quarter. Brumbaugh's pass to Drury for 16 yards and Grange's short run started the parade. After the teams had changed goals, Grange and Nagurski hammered the line and a forward from Red to Johnson put the ball on Philadelphia's 19 yard strip. Brumbaugh, faking the ball to Grange, spun through center for 12 yards and three plays more sent Nagurski hurtling the line for the score.

While the thousands waited, Johnson and Brumbaugh, who was to hold the ball, prepared for the try for the point which would deadlock the battle. Pearson sent the ball back to Brumbaugh perfectly, but Luke's kick fell away weakly to the right of the goal posts.

N. U. Loses Center for Illini Game

The Northwestern football team resumes practice today for the game with Illinois at Dyche stadium Saturday. Coach Hanley does not intend to give the players an opportunity to let down after beating Ohio State.

The game left the Wildcats considerably shaken up. Harold Weldin, pint-sized center, suffered a dislocated shoulder in the second quarter and will be unable to rejoin the squad for a week. His job will be taken over by Paul McDonald. Ken Meenan, who was forced from the game early in the first period with a recurrence of the chest injury sustained last week in practice, will be unable to practice this week.

The triangle bounded by Cottage Grove, Indiana avenue, and 22d street was occupied by Baum's pavilion?—Ben W. Alpiner, Kankakee, Ill.

The performance of Ollie Olson in making a drop kick from the 33 yard line against Ohio reminded Northwestern fans that this was the first time that a Wildcat team has scored by this route since the days of Moon Baker, who completed his gridiron career in 1926.

ILLINI GO TO WORK

Champaign, Ill., Oct. 25.—[Special.]—Striving to bolster the Illinois line, which was outclassed by Michigan yesterday, Coach Bob Zuppke will order a harder practice than is usual on the Monday following a game.

The Illini sophomores told Zuppke today that they wanted to get down to work tomorrow.

"I still believe in our boys, and I hope that the Northwestern game will show our drilling has not been in vain," he said. "It looked as if the boys forgot everything yesterday. But they can play better football, and believe that their lapse was just temporary."

Tackling will be one fundamental that will be stressed tomorrow.

Clark Root, pony half back last year, who has been out of the game with injuries, will rejoin the squad and be available as a reserve back. Shotgun Schultz, full back, will not be ready until the Wisconsin game, Nov. 7.

The Illini came out of the Michigan game in good physical condition. Gil Berry, whose all around playing brought commendation from Zuppke, is expected to be in trim to lead the Illini offensive against Northwestern.

TROJANS HOLD UNDISPUTED LEAD IN COAST RACE

San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 25.—(AP)—Undefeated and untied, Southern California's Trojans held undisputed leadership of the Pacific Coast conference today as 50,000 fans mulled over the details of the spectacular 6 to 0 victory yesterday that put Coach Howard Jones' team at the top.

California's Bears were the victims in the game that brought the Trojans their fourth conference victory of the season. The great battle put up by an underrated Bear eleven was the chief topic of discussion of those who had turned out expecting a gridiron slaughter.

Southern California has three conference games yet to play. Inactive next Saturday, the squad will point for the game with Stanford Nov. 7 at Los Angeles. As Stanford was only able to hold Washington to a scoreless tie yesterday, Southern California supporters look for another victory two weeks hence.

GRAIN MARKET ADVANCE HELPS TRADE OUTLOOK

World Factors Now Influential.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Factors in the world's wheat situation which have been ignored by the trade for many months are now commencing to assert themselves, and the supply and demand situation is starting in for more attention.

While there is some evidence that the recent upturn in wheat which carried prices up 12¾@13¼c from the low of Oct. 5 was partly due to concentrated speculative operations, the bullish news served the purpose of calling attention to the fact that the world's level was the lowest known and even at the extreme top figures of the past week the present generation of traders has never had an opportunity of buying wheat that low.

The foreign situation is regarded by the trade in general as the strongest in years, and one that is likely to result in higher prices ultimately. The effect of the advance from the low point in both grains and rye is already apparent in the improved sentiment in general business and also in the stock market, and those who should be in a position to know say that a further advance of 10c per bu in wheat would cause a sharp upturn in practically all lines of business.

World's Wheat Supply Short.

The world's wheat supply and demand position suggests that even on the basis of above average yields per acre in the southern hemisphere the total available supply will be 100,000,000 bu or more under the figures of a year ago, and with a materially lower price level than the average of 1930-'31 consumption is expected to increase, although the disappearance during the 1930-'31 season was the largest on record, having been 3,826,000,000 bu.

In some quarters it is felt that there has been an artificial surplus created by the action of a number of foreign governments in imposing a sliding quota whereby the free flow of surplus wheat from one country to other countries has been interfered with, and any change in the quota system would be quickly reflected in heavier purchases on the part of European countries.

Europe is expected to take North American wheat during the next few months on a much larger scale than recently, owing to the near exhaustion of supplies in the southern hemisphere and in the Danubian countries. Russia has proven a keen disappointment to importing countries abroad, and has ceased to sell freely, and estimates received of late indicate that exports will fall off rapidly. However, reports from that country are usually taken with a grain of salt by the grain trade.

Wheat Acreage Reduced.

Trade sentiment is crystallizing around a decrease of 15 to 16 per cent in the American winter wheat acreage for 1932, which if confirmed by official returns yesterday would suggest a yield of around 200,000,000 bu less than the record harvest of 1931, providing abandonment of acreage during the winter is normal, and an average yield per acre is secured.

Wheat closed Saturday with net gains of 1@1¼c as compared with the previous week, December closing at 65¾@66c; March, 59¾@60c; May, 60@60¼c, and July, 61¼@61¾c. Range of prices follows:

Light Trade in Corn.

Speculative interest in the corn market is light, but there is no material lessening pressure at the pressure sales, and the strength in wheat is accepted as having been the dominating influence during the last week. The spread between wheat and corn prices has widened out so rapidly of late that some feel there will be less wheat fed to livestock in parts of the belt than anticipated, and this will be reflected in an increased use of corn. Husking returns in Illinois and Iowa are reported as disappointing over a considerable area. Net gains for the week were 2¼@2¾c with December closing Saturday at 38c, while March was 40¾c, May 43c, and July 44½c. Range of prices for the week follows:

Reduce Finnish Bank Rate from 9 to 8 Per Cent

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Oct. 25.—The Finnish bank rate has been lowered from 9 to 8 per cent.

Launch War on Useless Costs in Government

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 25.—[Special.]—Abolishment of the present "archaic" limits for school districts, townships and counties as a practical step toward reducing the cost of government was recommended today by eleven executives of national organizations dealing with public finance. The executives meeting at the United States Chamber of Commerce seek to formulate means of reducing governmental cost and increase the purchasing power of the tax dollar.

"As an effective means," a statement issued by the chamber of commerce said, "the group urges the public consideration of the overlappings and duplications now existing in local government. It appears absurd to preserve such archaic geographical limits for school districts, townships, and counties as were suitable for rural communities in an age devoid of improved highways, automobiles, and telephones. Similarly it appears equally absurd and costly to permit artificial city and county boundaries to cut into numerous jurisdictions in a single homogenous area."

Would Enlarge State Field.

"In this connection," the statement continued, "state governments should consider the advisibility of assuming a larger proportion of certain services now handled by both state and local governments, such as highways, education, public health, and the like."

According to the chamber's statement, the public finance executives stressed the importance of eliminating waste and inefficiency in administration and of increasing the return on the taxpayer's money spent for public service, if increases in taxation are to be avoided. The executives, according to the commerce chamber, while opposed to horizontal and "ill considered" cuts in public expenditures in response to pressure for reduction of budgets, are nevertheless in favor of "intelligent, well considered, and well balanced programs for reducing public expenditure."

Injury of Public Debts.

On the subject of public debts, the meeting of executives issued the following statement:

"Recognizing that every public debt is a first mortgage on future taxes, one of the great embarrassments in public budgets at the present time is the large share of local taxes which must go to pay interest and principal of debts contracted long ago. Debts should not be contracted except for capital improvements of a non-recurring character."

Among the associations represented at the meeting were the National Association of Real Estate Boards, the National Committee on Municipal Standards, the National Tax association, and the Public Administration Clearing house, all of Chicago.

CURB MARKET STOCKS MOVE IN NARROW RANGE

New York, Oct. 25.—(AP)—Generally narrow price movements have characterized recent sessions of the New York Curb market.

On the whole, trading has been more active on the advances than on the declines. Resistance to selling pressure last week encouraged many traders to take a more optimistic view, but there was no haste about making long commitments despite the much firmer tone toward the end of the week.

Scattered issues pushed through to new highs for the recovery and then hesitated; thus it was evident that the market still lacked an important backlog of buying orders. However, offerings were comparatively unimportant and the list appeared to be awaiting the turn of events.

Anchor Cap 9 Months' Net Earnings Total $871,637

Anchor Cap corporation and its subsidiaries report for the first nine months of 1931 net income for the period of $719,395, as compared with $871,837 for 1930. This net income for the first nine months of 1931 is a decrease of 17.5 per cent compared with the 1930 period. For the first six months of 1931 net income was 22 per cent less than for the corresponding period of last year. As of Sept. 30, 1931, the company's consolidated balance sheet shows net current assets of $2,090,417, including $526,096 of cash.

Week's Dividend Changes Show Unfavorable Turn

The number of unfavorable dividend changes last week showed a sharp increase over those of the preceding week, totaling fifty, in comparison with thirty-two the week before, a compilation by Standard Statistics says. Favorable changes, however, were decidedly smaller, numbering only nine, while sixteen were recorded in the preceding week.

New York Banks Show Decrease in Deposits

BORG-WARNER 9 MOS.' PROFIT IS 81 CENTS A SHARE

Borg-Warner corporation yesterday reported a net profit after all charges including federal income tax of $1,267,274 for the first nine months of 1931, ended Sept. 30. After provision for preferred stock dividends this is equal to 85 cents per share on the 1,309,635 shares of common stock now outstanding. At the current annual rate of $1 the dividend requirements for the period were 75 cents a share.

This compares with net earnings of $2,574,186 for the first nine months of 1930, which after provision for preferred stock dividends was equal to $1.93 per share on the outstanding stock.

Net income for the third quarter of 1931 was $782,428, equivalent, after preferred dividends, to 10 cents a share on the 1,309,635 shares of common, compared with $198,860, or 11 cents a share on the same number of common shares for the third quarter of 1930.

Total current assets as of Sept. 30, 1931, were $16,482,350. Of the total current assets $8,925,188 was in cash, call loans and marketable securities, which compares with a total of $7,-198,353 for the same items as of Dec. 31, 1930.

C. S. Davis, president, reported that since Jan. 1, 1931, the outstanding debenture bonds of Morse Chain company, a subsidiary, have been reduced by $49,000, and the entire issue of the subsidiary Long Manufacturing company's real estate mortgage bonds, amounting to $110,000, has been retired. The book value of the common stock at the close of business Sept. 30 was reported at $22.63 per share.

Find More Evidence of Improving Steel Market

More indications of improvement in basic conditions in the steel market are appearing, in isolated spots, but sufficient in aggregate to brighten the outlook. This tendency, now noted for several weeks, however, has not yet been translated into better rolling schedules, steelmaking operations this week being fractionally lower than 28 per cent, the rate last week, the magazine Steel says. Railroad shop orders show more volume at Chicago. For 750 cars, chiefly rebuilding, for the Chicago & Illinois Midland, 7,000 tons of steel will be required.

Colorado Fuel and Iron Co. Has Deficit for Quarter

Colorado Fuel and Iron company for the quarter ended Sept. 30 reports a net deficit before deduction for equipment retired of $949,251 as compared with a deficit of $774,793 in the comparable period of 1930. For the first nine months of 1931 the company had a net deficit of $1,585,527 as compared with net deficit of $844,-259 in the same period last year.

Associated Gas Earnings for 12 Months Are Lower

Net earnings available for interest and dividends of the Associated Gas and Electric system for the twelve months ended Sept. 30 amounted to $45,032,002, a decrease of $2,778,697 from the total reported for the preceding year.

BUSINESS SENTIMENT IS MORE FAVORABLE, BANK SURVEY FINDS

While current trends in business activity and in commodity prices still fail to show any marked improvement in the present situation or in the immediate outlook, a number of constructive developments in recent weeks have resulted in a decidedly more favorable business sentiment states the Guaranty Trust company of New York in the current issue of the Guaranty Survey, its review of business and financial conditions just published.

"Among these the most conspicuous are the organization of the National Credit corporation in pursuance of President Hoover's plan for a nation-wide credit pool to release non-liquid bank assets, the American visit of Premier Laval of France, and the increasing strength of security prices," the survey continues.

"The method chosen for carrying out the President's suggestion concerning bank credit seems peculiarly well adapted to the needs of the present situation. The country's banking system, considered as a whole, is in a strong position. It could hardly be otherwise, with nearly half of the world's gold in American bank vaults, with the gold reserves of the Federal Reserve banks far above the legal minimum, and with the use of Federal Reserve credit, both in the form of rediscounts and of open market bill and security holdings, at a low level."

Sinclair Oil Concerns in Line for U. S. Tax Refund

Washington, D. C., Oct. 25.—(AP)—Overassessments of $448,480 and $159,-794, respectively, against the 1917 and 1918 incomes of the Sinclair Oil and Refining company and Sinclair Gulf corporation and subsidiaries of New York, have been reported to the joint congressional taxation committee today by the treasury. The overcharges may be adjusted by rebate, refund or credit.

NOTE INCREASE IN ACTIVITY IN MARKETS HERE

Increased activity in local wholesale merchandise markets and a fair volume of retail business was noted in Chicago during the last week despite several days of warm and rainy weather, according to the Chicago Association of Commerce.

Wholesale firms were busy, as more than 1,500 out of town merchants, members of the Interstate Merchants council, visited Chicago in connection with a special fall market session. Buying was reported good in various holiday lines, especially gift articles and toys.

Retail trade was concentrated in hosiery, shoes, millinery, and dresses. Warm weather slowed demand in the heavier articles, such as coats, blankets, and other winter wearing apparel and home accessories.

Developments were lacking in the general industrial field, activity holding steady at recent levels. Automobile sales continued at recent levels, demand being fairly brisk for good used cars, with new machines prompting considerable interest but only a fair amount of actual business. Radio and furniture stores also found business comparatively quiet.

Estimate Air Passengers for 1931 Will Top 400,000

Passengers carried over the nation's air lines this year will exceed 400,000 by a wide margin, according to an estimate by the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce of America. The number of passengers carried in the first eight months this year totaled 236,088, or 2,895 more than for the corresponding period of 1930.

Recovery in Foreign Bonds Lends Strength to Market

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 25.—The impressive recoveries in foreign bond prices during the week just completed, including issues of all shades of credit rating, has the effect of stimulating the bond market in general and at the same time slowing up the indiscriminate selling which a week or two ago had all but demoralized the market. Undoubtedly the visit of Premier Laval of France focused attention on foreign bond prices, but it was notable that recoveries in prices were by no means limited to European issues.

The net result has been that with but few exceptions the individual foreign loans are now selling comfortably above their recent lows. A sizable list of Latin-American issues closed the week at from 10 to 20 points above the lows for the year to date, which recoveries amounted from 20 to 60 per cent in many instances.

Argentine government loans, for example, showed recoveries for the week of from 6⅝ to 13½ points. Republic of Uruguay issues were not far behind with rallies of 5⅛ to 9¼ points, and Brazilian government issues, in the face of the admitted financial difficulties of that government, rose ⅞ of a point to 3 points.

Make Best Showing.

As far as European issues were concerned the major gains for the week were recorded in German bank and corporation loans, which did far better than the obligations of the German government itself. The strength in the German issues was directly traceable to the informal Franco-American parley in Washington. French government and municipal loans, however, did not show such striking gains as the Germans for the reason that the French issues have for some time been the highest priced of the foreign loans and therefore having much less slack to be taken up.

Due to the irregularity of the market for domestic railroad bonds, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S averages on 40 domestic issues for the week failed to show the same progress as in the case of foreign loans. However, public utility bonds, as a group, made a good showing, and industrial bonds displayed a reasonable degree of firmness.

Now that the financial community has had time to digest the decision of the interstate commerce commission, attention of rail bond holders is once more directed to the informal meeting that is being held here on the subject of modification of the New York legal railroad bond requirements.

Considered Reassuring.

Until a definite plan for modifying the existing law is agreed upon the market for rail bonds legal for investment by savings banks and trust funds in this state is not expected to undergo any very radical changes. However, the recoveries made by many rail bonds at the close of the week, was considered reassuring.

As far as general market bonds are concerned, new public financing has been at an absolute standstill for the last two weeks. The comparative steadiness of public utility bonds has led to predictions that bonds of this classification will be prominent in the offerings when flotations of new issues are resumed. Meanwhile, pressing requirements of corporations have had to be taken care of by bank loans which will be refunded as soon as market conditions are practicable.

AMERICAN AUTO ASSN. DENOUNCES PLAN FOR U. S. TRANSPORT LEVY

Washington, D. C., Oct. 25.—(AP)—The American Automobile association is "unalterably opposed to a federal tax on highway transport."

Reported plans to restore the war excise tax on motor vehicles as an aid to balance the budget drew an association protest that "no American industry has been harder hit by the depression" and "treasury intimation" that automobile taxes are nominal are based on "false assumptions."

The motor vehicle, the association said, already pays 18.3 per cent per annum of its valuation, bears "a very large share" of road costs, and has "contributed more than a billion dollars in the form of excise taxes which practically balances the total outlay in federal [highway] aid to date."

MAY OVERRATE CREDIT GROUP, BANK BELIEVES

There is grave danger of the National Credit corporation being considered a cure-all, according to the monthly review of the Central Republic Bank and Trust company. The bank feels, however, that the formation of the corporation was a step in the right direction and an important one.

"The first effect of this mobilization of bank credit should be to ease pressure on solvent banking institutions," it says. "With restoration of depositor confidence in banking institutions, allowing bank credit to operate in a normal fashion, a stimulating influence would be provided which would surely result in business expansion. Such expansion could be comparatively slight and yet be sufficient to bring ordinary business operations to normal," it asserts.

MARKET RISES 23 PER CENT IN THREE WEEKS

'Averages' Indicate Extent of Rally.

New York, Oct. 25.—The attention of financial readers has been directed so exclusively to momentary variations of the markets, their favorable or unfavorable response to particular news developments of a day, that sight is often lost of the longer trend.

Yet the picture is distinct enough. Measured by the "averages," prices of stocks have risen 14 points in the last three weeks or something like 23 per cent. While the rise in bonds during the same period had been considerably smaller, a change of spirit has been unmistakable; the picture is no longer presented of securities "unloaded" helplessly on a falling market.

When it is considered that the early autumn markets were beaten down mostly by psychological forces, yet that their recent recovery has occurred at the moment of the $700,000,000 requisition on our gold, the reversal of trend becomes interesting.

Reasons for Recovery.

Nor has this recent recovery been based on a turn in trade and industry for the better. Nearly all industrial weather signs have this month been unsatisfactory. Under these circumstances it is reasonable to ascribe the improvement of the markets to the appeal made to financial imagination first by the action of the President and the bankers just three weeks ago to protect the assets of sound but hard pressed banks; next to the fact that none of the disasters imagined as a necessary sequel to England's abandonment of gold payments has materialized and finally, to the impressive exhibition of composure and confidence by our federal reserve in face of the drain of gold.

Premising that Mr. Hoover's plan of relief was largely "psychological" the London Economist predicted at the time that, through releasing banks from the need of throwing their securities on the market, it ought to stop the fall in security prices and that the moment security prices rose, confidence at the banks and with the general public would return. This was no bad guess. Panic psychology is in fact familiar, even in the every day experience of life. Provoked originally

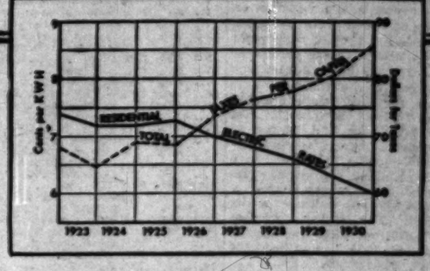
Taxes take 10¢ of your DOLLAR for ELECTRICITY



AN ELECTRIC power tax... a sales tax... increases in existing taxes are urged by political leaders to bolster state revenue.

Already, it is estimated, taxes take 10 cents out of every dollar spent by customers for electricity. In 1913, Federal, State, and local taxes were $22.66 for each man, woman and child in the United States. In 1930, 17 years later, they were $86 per capita—279% more. This may be due partly to the fact that one out of every eleven persons gainfully employed in the United States is on a government pay roll.

Utility Taxes Increase 1,450% in 18 years

Increased taxes on utilities mean that a smaller proportion of the monthly electric bill is for the service rendered. During the 18 years, 1912-1930, taxes on electric utilities increased 1,450%. Total revenue collected from electric residential customers increased only 700% during the same period.

The Associated Gas & Electric System for the year ended August 31, paid or accrued $6,904,854 for taxes, a sum 8.7% greater than during the previous 12-months' period. The mounting burden of taxes upon business enterprises and individuals is cause for serious reflection. Increased taxes are new brakes on prosperity. They eat up the savings of efficient management.

There is a mistaken notion that taxes levied on business are actually paid by business. They are for the time being. As a matter of fact, however, the buyer eventually pays. When taxes are increased on dwellings they are passed on in the form of rent. When there is a sales tax on any commodity the buying public pays. A tax on utilities likewise must be paid by the public.

by actual and alarming occurrences, it reaches its pitch of destructive violence through contagion of the crowd. But it is usually stopped by display of calm composure on the part of people in authority, by a gesture of reassurance, which will touch the imagination.

If Panic Ends, What Then?

If it were presently to be discovered that panic is burning itself out, if mental equilibrium were gradually to return, what then? Well, in the first place we should learn how much even of our trade depression has resulted directly from the pervading sense of formless dread, rather than from other causes. It should not be overlooked that even the rise in wheat and cotton, which has now carried prices for those commodities something like 25 per cent above their low figure of the year, began on exactly the same day as the recovery in stocks and was explained on exactly the same psychological grounds. It may not follow that the general public's actual purchases would instantly revive if something like financial confidence were restored.

There have been historic instances, however, even of that result—notably the rapid and sustained revival of consumption during 1895, when the whole industrial scene reversed itself on the sudden removal of fear that our government was about to lapse into depreciated money. That turn came in an old time period of financial unemployment, insolvency, and paralyzed production.

Until three weeks ago, we seemed to be confronted with an unbroken succession of bad news. The community had begun to believe that nothing could be done to help the crisis. Since that date we have had at least a series of helpful developments promising results.

Place City of Philadelphia Bonds on Sale This Week

New York, Oct. 25.—(F)—After three weeks of extremely light offerings of new bonds by states and municipalities, the total of $30,665,133 scheduled for this week represents a substantial increase. The Daily Bond Buyer reports. The weekly average of new issues in this class for the year to date is $84,991,713. Offering of $15,000,000 bonds by the city of Philadelphia, Pa., Monday and $6,000,000 in notes by the state of Mississippi on Saturday accounts for the greater part of the week's total.

Hudson Motor Car.

Please give me any information you have regarding Hudson Motor common stock.—O. A. M.

Hudson Motor Car company, producer of Hudson and Essex cars, is one of the large automobile manufacturers. It operates in the low and medium price field. The company's policy has been to concentrate production on a few models of closed cars. Earnings were substantial in the six years prior to 1930, thus mainly to large volume of production. In 1929 Essex output was the third largest in the industry.

Net sales for 1930 were $78,094,714, against $201,017,596 in 1929. Net income in 1930 was $324,656, or 20 cents per share. Charges against surplus for 1930 equaled $1.42 per share and charge against contingency reserve equaled 18 cents per share. A loss of $1,000,000 was suffered in the final quarter. For 1929 net income was $11,596,855, or $7.26 per share. Net income in 1928 was $13,457,364 and in 1927, $14,431,256.

In the first half of 1931 net profit was $526,992, or 33 cents per share, against $3,392,012, or $2.12 per share in the first half of 1930.

Net loss for the third quarter of 1931 was $1,075,136, against net loss of $2,078,165 for the third quarter of 1930.

Car registration in the first eight months of 1931 totaled 52,355, against 77,722 cars in the first eight months of 1930.

On Dec. 31, 1930, current assets were $26,132,852 and current liabilities were $5,300,919. Capitalization consisted solely of 1,696,660 no par shares. There was no bank debt. On Oct. 1, 1931, cash and government security holdings, the latter at market, were approximately $13,000,000 and current debts were about $2,000,000.

Manufacturing costs have been cut down since 1929. An increase in volume would materially benefit earnings.

The common is on an annual $1 dividend basis.

Petoskey Portland Cement 6s.

A year ago my local bank sold me $2,000 of Petoskey Portland Cement company 6 per cent notes. Is the company in good shape?—J. M. T.

Petoskey Portland Cement company has an annual capacity of 1,500,000 barrels. Gross sales for 1930 were $1,879,340, against $2,160,439 for 1929. Fixed charges were earned 2.03 times in 1930 and 3.25 times in 1929. On Dec. 31, 1930, current assets were $470,456 and current liabilities were $215,228. Cash was $54,503.

There were outstanding $1,200,000 6 per cent serial notes, due $150,000 annually Aug. 1, 1931 to 1938. They are the unsecured obligations of the company.

DECISION IS NEAR ON RAILROAD'S MERGER PLEA

Southern Pacific Seeks Control of St. L. S. W.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 25.—The decision of the interstate commerce commission is near on the application of the Southern Pacific company for leave to take control of the St. Louis Southwestern railway. The making of the record is forecast this month, when the companies filed exceptions to the tentative report of T. F. Sullivan, examiner. Only the oral arguments remain to be heard on Nov. 12. The original petition was submitted on July 15, 1930.

If the acquisition is approved, the Southern Pacific will have completed the third of three separate merger proceedings under the transportation act of 1920. The other two were the absorption of the El Paso and Southwestern railway and the unification of the Southern Pacific subsidiaries in Louisiana and Texas.

Payment control of the Cotton Belt would add to the Southern Pacific 1,900 miles of railroad with a combined stock and bond capitalization of $89,000,000. Running northeastward from Fort Worth, Dallas, and other points in Texas, the lines would extend the parent system to the gateways of Memphis and St. Louis.

Cite Benefits to Road.

The Southern Pacific would thus realize not only the opportunities of joint interchange with numerous eastern and northern railways operating east of St. Louis and Memphis, but also the benefit of the Cotton Belt's new short route between those two cities.

The management of the St. Louis Southwestern has welcomed the prospect of a closer tie of its own traffic relations with the Southern Pacific. Daniel Upthegrove, president of the Cotton Belt, has testified to his belief that the proposed union would double the traffic over his railroad within two years. Also important to the Cotton Belt, in consideration of the current decline in earnings and financial position, would be the help of the Southern Pacific in meeting on June 1, 1932, its maturity of $20,727,750 St. Louis consolidation four per cent bonds.

To approve the application of the Southern Pacific the I. C. C. must decide in whole or in part the unfavorable findings of Examiner Sullivan. The proposed ownership of stock control of the St. Louis Southwestern would lessen competition materially among the carriers of the Southwest of on that ground should be denied, he held.

Impressed by Opposition.

In the event of approval by the commission, he urged that within six months after the decision the applicant be required to buy any additional Cotton Belt stock that might be offered at not less than $100 a preferred share and $71.92 a common share.

In his finding that the union of the St. Louis Southwestern with the Southern Pacific would be against the interest of shippers in the Southwestern district, the examiner was evidently impressed by the vigorous and united against the combination by many commercial organizations as well as by competing railroads. That to have asked to lose traffic as a result of the merger was the chief objection urged by the Missouri Pacific, the Missouri-Kansas-Texas, the St. Louis-San Francisco-Rock Island and other competing carriers. The Frisco said as far as to ask the commission to assign the Cotton Belt for consolidation with its own system.

Third Quarter Income of Illinois W. Utilities Is Up

Net for retirement and dividends of Illinois Northern Utilities company for the third quarter of 1931 was $330,-218 compared with $323,319:53 for the third quarter of 1930. Balance available for fund interest was $512,-618 compared with $505,240.19. Gross operating revenues were $915,-618 compared with $928,767.43.

Why pay more than Household's low rate?

The Nationally known Household Loan Plan offers cash loans of $50 to $300 to husbands and wives at reasonable rates.

Household's rate on all loans above $100 is almost one-third lower than the maximum permitted by the small loan law. We voluntarily established this low rate in 1929, and our customers have benefited ever since. This rate remains the same until the loan is paid off. It does not increase as the unpaid balance decreases.

For example:

The average monthly cost of a $200 loan, repaid in 20 equal monthly payments, is $2.63. This is the lowest cost in Chicago.

Commonwealth Customers Pay LESS for LOANS

$2.93 is the average Monthly Cost of a $225 loan under COMMONWEALTH'S Reduced Rate. This allows 25 months for repayment. There is no lower cost than this in Chicago.

THE personal property which nearly every family owns and the signature of husband and wife enable one to secure any amount up to $300 quickly and easily.

THERE ARE NO fees or deductions. You may take 25 months or pay all or part sooner. Interest at the Reduced Rate is charged only while you keep the money.

Also Salary and Auto Loans.
